June Dairy Month Issue Pays Tribute To Producers, Consumers

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Anne Marie Mitchell pours a Grasshopper for representatives of the state restaurant association and the milk promotion groups. From left to right are: Jan Harding, director, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services; Froso Touloumes, president, central chapter, Pennsylvania Restaurant Association; Princess Mitchell; Michael McGovern, executive vice president, Pennsylvania Restaurant Association; Kelli Giglio, Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association; Dave Kramer, Order-36, Mid-East United Dairy Industry Association; Randy Scroger, Atlantic Dairy Association/Dairy Council; and Elizabeth Dupuis, Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Program.

The Grasshopper, promoted as a non-alcoholic beverage, uses five cups of milk, eight scoops of vanilla or mint chocolate chip ice cream, two teaspoons of peppermint extract and five drops green food coloring, combined in a blender until smooth. The milk promotion groups took the dairy farmer's message to a restaurant trade show held last month in the Farm Show building in Harrisburg. Photo by Everett Newswanger

STATE COLLEGE (Centre

Co.) — "Save the Breeder" is the new battle cry of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association (PHA).

So says Bill Nichol, PHA's executive secretary. To raise the quality of living for dairymen by increasing their breeding stock sales is a main thrust of current PHA programs.

Since its inception in 1913, the mission of PHA has been to "foster and promote the Holstein dairy industry in Pennsylvania." For its 5,400 adult and 1,800 junior members, PHA has carried out this mission through sales (5 consignment, private treaty, export and herd sales), shows (2 state, 5 regional and 25 county shows), 22 Junior programs, judging schools, award programs, tours, barn meetings, workshops and other service activities.

Live animal export sales (primarily bred heifers) to 50 countries and to every continent grossed several million dollars for PHA. Hitting a peak of $4,800,000 in 1987, gross income from these sales dropped back to $3,850,000 in 1989.

According to Nichol, two factors account for the drop in exports. The export enhancement program, in which the federal government subsidized shipping costs to keep prices for genetically

Wayne Harpster and his wife Marjorie stand at the fence of their heifer pasture adjacent to their front lawn. Harpster, president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, is a study in successful dairying. The couple work together to maintain their enterprise Evergreen Farms. But the Harpsters have made more use of their land than just supporting a dairy herd and themselves — correspondent Judy Patton tells of a diversified operation and people.

Trucklot buying interest was light and spotty. Supplies of wings were in closest balance and clearances were generally good. Skinned boneless breasts were irregularly balanced but fully adequate overall. Whole breasts were fully adequate to ample and attracting increase-retail interest; however, the bulk of new sales were at lower levels. Legs and leg quarters were ample and discounting was commonplace to maintain buyer interest. thighs were at least adequate while drums were adequate.

National Egg Market

May 30, 1990

The market tone was usually fully steady to instances firm. Movement was moderate to good as pipelines were still being filled in most locations. Supplies were in close balance, especially on the heavier sizes. Additional offerings were irregularly available and in some instances difficult to locate. Breaker activity was usually on the light side as several were temporarily out of the market working existing inventories to maintain desired schedules.

New York And Philadelphia Frozen Egg Report

Friday, May 25, 1990

Prices were unchanged to higher. Traders were cautious as costs continued to rise and most adopted a wait and see position as they closely watched for further market developments. Several breakers chose to work abbreviated holiday schedules next week and were selective in any additional purchases of confidently held raw materials. Floor stocks were usually in good balance with current dealer needs.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

JUNE 4-10, 1990

June 6, 8, and 9, Ember Days.

June 6, 1944, D-Day the Allied troops begin landing on the beaches of Normandy
 June 8, Full Strawberry Moon June 9, 1943, Congress authorizes employer-withheld income tax payments with the Pay-As-You-Go Act June 10, 1652, America's first mint issues the pine tree shilling in defiance of British law Better ride an ass that carries us than a horse that throws us

Ask the Old Farmer: Do you know an easy way to remove the white scaly deposits inside teakettles without using dangerous chemicals? D.K., Ill

Try boiling a weak solution of cider vinegar in the teakettle for a few minutes. This should loosen the scale and make it easy to wash out. Very thick deposits may require more than one treatment.

Home Hints Keep lawnmower blades sharp so they cut rather than tear grass — especially important for new, young grass

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Cool weather for June (around 65°F — 3° below average) brings heavy rain in its wake before finally clearing and turning warmer

Greater New York-New Jersey: Sunny and pleasant until midweek, then scattered showers for the flowers, and turning cooler

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Off-and-on rain all week. First rain, heavy in the west, cool. Then clearing and warmer, more rain, and finally clearing Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Clearing and much cooler to start the week. Then rain, heavy in the west, seasonable, partly cloudy (partly not), clear and hot

You'll Want This Quality Assurance Program

The National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF) and the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) are to be commended for their efforts to implement a national milk and dairy beef quality assurance program. John Adams, director of milk safety and animal health, NMPF, and Dr. Bill Van Dresser, director government relations division, AVMA headed the joint committee that developed protocol and materials.

In farmer terms, the program supplies the guidelines and checklist so that milk producers and veterinarians can reduce potential animal drug residue violations and assure the quality milk and meat that leave the farm.

The checklist includes points under preventive health management, FDA approved drugs, farmer/veterinarian relationships, labels, proper storage and administration of drugs and treatments records. Proper on-farm testing capabilities are also covered.

The ultimate objective is to demonstrate to regulatory agencies, the public, processors and packers that the dairy industry is dedicated to producing safe and high quality milk and meat.

This program will involve extension educators, veterinarians, state and federal regulatory officials, milk co-ops, packers, processors, animal drug manufacturers and other animal industry organizations. The program is directed primarily toward the approximately 150,000 dairy producers and 5,000 veterinarians who work with them.

The on-farm check list, to be used jointly by both milk producers and veterinarians, will be posted in the milk house as documentary evidence that safe drug use procedures are in effect. Implementing the quality control procedures may also help avoid potential loss of market, legal action and regulatory action resulting from inadvertent violations.

If you are a dairy farmer, you'll want to get this program in operation on your farm this fall when it becomes available.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Be Aware Of Storm Safety

Spring is a time to savor -- and also a time to beware when Nature casts aside a gentle way and unleashes deadly forces. Though lightning, wind and floods frequently destroy life and property, you can do much to avoid being a victim of weather's fury.

When a thunderstorm approaches, avoid lone trees, small metal buildings, fences and high ground. Get out of the water if swimming or boating. Find refuge in a substantial building, motor vehicle or tractor cab. Don't ignore forecasts of severe weather because they are correct a majority of the time. It's also a good idea to safeguard your house and building with a properly installed, approved lightning protection system and inspect it annually.

Don't take chances, take safety.

To Properly Dispose Of Pesticide Containers

At this time of year, farmers and homeowners are faced with the problem of what to do with empty pesticide containers. According to Jeffrey Stoltzfus, Nutrient Management Agent, if they are disposed of incorrectly, the containers may be a hazard to children, pets, wildlife and groundwater. Leftover pesticides which are not being kept for future use should be emptied into the sprayer and sprayed on the field according to labeled rates. Dumping pesticides and rinse water "out behind the barn" increases the chances of a chemical leaching into the groundwater.

Empty pesticide containers should be rinsed three times with the rinse water being dumped back into the sprayer. Holes should then be punched into the container to prevent future use. Clean containers can then be buried or taken to an approved landfill.

Pesticides which are being kept for future use should be stored in the original container with the original label. Pesticide should be kept in a dry area out of reach of children and pets. Always read and follow label directions for use of and storage of pesticides.

To Prepare Grain Bins

We are approaching barley harvest season with wheat not far behind, so I would like to remind our grain producers that now is a good time to clean up your grain bins in preparation to harvest. First, clean out all the old grain, sweep down all the sidewalls and floors making sure to remove old grain lodged in the cracks.

Next, spray the floor and walk with a residual insecticide. Malathion and Methoxychlor are still very effective -- follow the label for directions. Finally, prevent birds and rodents from entering the bins. Repair holes with metal or other rat-proofing materials. Clean up all spilled grain around the bin to discourage the various pests from the area.

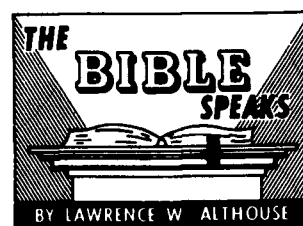

To Use Respirators

A great many different types of chemicals and pesticides are used on farms today. This includes mixing, handling and applying the various materials. We urge farmers to invest in respirators to meet safety measures under today's farming procedures. These are needed for handling and applying various spray materials, and when using solvents that give off their fumes.

In addition, farmers working in dusty places, in manure storage tanks, and in silos would wear one of the protective devices. Dusts, molds and fumes are hard on lungs and require protection to reduce injury. The canister type respirators are suggested because they cover the entire face. Don't expose yourself to permanent lung injury when protection is available. Contact your local Lung Association for more information on protecting your lungs.

The Penn State Cooperative Extension is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution.

WHAT'S THE GOOD OF BEING GOOD?
June 3, 1990

Background Scripture:

Psalms 1.

Devotional Reading:

Matthew 5:1-12.

"Good sermon on righteousness, Reverend," said the parishioner, "but what was the bottom line?" "I beg your pardon?" the perplexed pastor replied. "The bottom line" the man repeated, "how does morality pay off...for us?"

There are a lot of passages in the Bible that suggest that righteousness brings material rewards. "Blessed is the man who walks not in the counsel of the wicked..." promises the first Psalm (1:1). And what is the nature of this blessedness? "In all that he does he prospers," (1:3), answers the Psalmist.

If the "good" will "prosper," what of the "wicked"? Says the Psalmist: "The way of the wicked will perish" (1:6). This kind of thinking dominated much of the Old Testament. If a person prospered, it was assumed that it was because they were righteous. Conversely, if a person suffered, it was supposed that the cause was unrighteousness. Job's friends assumed that he had done something wrong to bring himself to such a state of ruin and suffering. And today it is not uncommon for someone to ask me, "What did I do to deserve this?" So, does morality pay off? If I manage to live a very good life, how will it affect my bank statement and income tax?

DO MORALS PAY?

Actually, morality often does pay off materially. Alexis de Tocqueville, touring the USA more than a century ago, observed: "I sought for the greatness and genius of America...Not until I went to the churches of America, and heard her pulpits aflame with righteousness, did I understand the secret of her genius and power. America is great because she is good, and if America ever ceases to be good, America will cease to be great."

Many people I have known have become prosperous because they have attempted to live by the golden rule and that in itself has attracted all kinds of wellbeing to them. We all like to deal with the honest, upright person. For the most part, we avoid merchants and professionals of dubious integrity (with the possible exception of a divorce lawyer!)

JUST A BONUS

Material gain, however, is not the bottom-line of righteousness. It is merely a bonus that is sometimes thrown in. For often, righteous people do not prosper. Sometimes—far too often, probably—crime does pay. But this is not anything new, for long before the coming of Christ people have wanted to know why the wicked prosper. The book of Job was written specifically to demonstrate that a righteous person may suffer every bit as much or more than the unrighteous person. And the theme of the four gospels is that the most righteous man ever suffered and died unjustly.

So the real pay-off to righteousness, the only one on which you can depend, is within. Morality is "right," not because someone says it is, but because in the long run it produces "good" in the person, in the society and the world. Morality pays off in the one place that really counts: in our own souls. Cicero said "Virtue is its own reward" and as Francois de La Rochefoucauld observed, "Virtue is to the soul what health is to the body." I've never known anyone who regretted that he or she had lived too righteously.

And that's the bottom line on what's the good of being good.

Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate: vegetable nutrition the way you want it

Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate fertilizer 15.5-0-0 has been earning vegetable grower loyalty for more than forty years. In the field! Under weather conditions that often fail to cooperate! At harvest, when talk time is over and product promises are measured by results! Growers have found that Calcium Nitrate comes through.

Use Calcium Nitrate on your next crop. You will be pleased by the growth, yield and quality you see. The kind of profitable results achieved by vegetable

Nitrate Nitrogen • Fast Response
Early Maturity • Non-Acid
Available Calcium • Precise Timing Controlled Growth • Water Soluble

growers across America, season after season, because of Calcium Nitrate's unique combination of nutrients:

Nitrate nitrogen for fast response. Better timing and control. Calcium Nitrate supplies nitrate, the non-acidifying nitrogen that's readily available for plant uptake. You'll see fast, uniform response with the precise feeding and timing you need for better growth and better crop management.

Earlier, more uniform maturity. Improved yield and quality.

Nitrate nitrogen gives the quick optimum response the crop needs and then "runs out." Elimination of residual nitrogen and salt problems promotes better yields, uniform maturity and harvest efficiency. One good thing leads to another when you fertilize with Calcium Nitrate.

Vital calcium: it helps your crop; helps your soil. Calcium Nitrate contains 19% water-soluble calcium. This vital nutrient, combined with nitrate nitrogen, provides crop benefits both above and below the ground. Young leaves, stalks, roots and fruit must have calcium for proper development. Adequate calcium in the fruit markedly improves harvest and shipping quality. This low-salt, non-acid source of nitrate and calcium is unmatched by any other nitrate fertilizer.

Available in bag or bulk. Apply Calcium Nitrate straight or ask your dealer to include it in your vegetable fertilizer. You'll be glad you did!

As with any fertilizer application, consult your extension office or other advisory service for recommended practice that meets local crop and soil conditions.

Chesapeake Bay Funding Program Open To Dauphin County

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.)—The Chesapeake Bay Program is becoming a familiar term to many local farmers.

Farmers in most parts of Dauphin County are now encouraged to apply for financial assistance for installing nutrient management and conservation practices, if these practices will help reduce serious risk of nutrient pollution to Dauphin County waterways and the Chesapeake Bay.

The maximum cost-share rates available are 80% of the costs for certain practices (manure storage systems, terraces, waterways, pasture improvement, etc.) not to exceed $30,000 per landowner.

Dauphin County's Chesapeake Bay Program Non-Point Source Pollution Financial Assistance Funding Program now includes the entire portion of Dauphin County north of Peters Mountain and the Swatara Creek Watershed, as well as the Conewago Creek Watershed. (The Swatara Creek Watershed includes all lands which drain into the Swatara, Beaver, and Manada creeks as well as their tributaries.)

To be eligible for the financial assistance funding program, landowners must meet the following conditions:

- Must be a landowner in the Dauphin County portions of the Upper Dauphin, Swatara Creek or Conewago Creek watersheds.

- Must have critical nutrient and/or soil erosion problem(s) on the farm in these watersheds.

- Must be a "cooperator" with the Dauphin County Conservation District.

- Must be willing to enter into a 1- to 2-year agreement designed to solve the critical nutrient and/or soil erosion problems on the farm.

Signing up for the financial assistance program does not guarantee approval in the program.

Only those landowners with serious nutrient and/or soil erosion problems on their farm may be approved. For this fiscal year funds allocated to Dauphin County's cost-sharing program amounted to $115,500.

While sign-up for the program is open continually, applicants who wish to be considered in the next round of funding must submit requests by June 29 to the Dauphin County Conservation District, at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center, 1451 Peters Mountain Road, Route 225, Dauphin. Staff is available from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday to assist with sign-up applications.

The ultimate goal of the program is to reduce the amount of nitrogen, phosphorus and sediment entering the Susquehanna River and eventually the Chesapeake Bay. Agricultural runoff has been identified as the major source of these nutrients and sediment. Two of the primary benefits of the Chesapeake Bay Program to the residents of Dauphin County will be improved stream quality and reduced risk of groundwater contamination.

For more information, please contact Paul Mauger, nutrient management specialist, at (717) 921-8100, or visit the office.

75th Farm Show Sees Big Changes

No Change In Schedule Planned For Upcoming Event

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff
EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — All participants and visitors to the 75th and future Pennsylvania Farm Shows will see a number of changes from the past.

Officials, seeking to increase public interest and enjoyment in the showcase event, met mid-April and have added some decoration changes, premium increases, restructured beef and poultry competitions and moved several displays to provide better public access.

The biggest change visitors and exhibitors will see is the relocation of the famous food booths run by Pennsylvania commodities organizations.

According to Charles Kline, Farm Show director, all commodities booths will be moved from the east end of the Main Building into the East Building.

For years the East Building has been home to the poultry exhibit and several commercial exhibitors.

The poultry exhibitors are to be relocated to a room off of the lower concourse of the large arena, and, instead of the large number of birds that have been normally on display throughout Farm Show week, only the top ranking birds will remain after judging. Kline said visitors can expect to see about 400 champions of breed and variety remain.

All commercial exhibits will be located in the Main Building.

To accommodate the Pennsylvania commodities food sales booths, the East Building is to be renovated for waste disposal and hookup to gas and water lines.

Also, decorations and booth design will carry a similar "country" theme.

"I asked all the commodity groups to rebuild their booths around a country theme, to add some freshness to the area," Kline said.

He explained that the area is going to be set up in a similar manner to food court setups in shopping malls.

Kline said that while the Farm Show food court won't be constructed to the degree of a mall court, "The food court is going to be nice, decorated and devoted exclusively to the promotion of Pennsylvania food products."

"There will be three times more space for food than we had before," Kline added.

Furthermore, in addition to the famous Farm Show baked potatoes, fries, mushrooms, milkshakes, soups, stews, and barbecue sandwiches, Kline said that for the first time, "the Pennsylvania Bakers Association will be participating and selling stickybuns."

Kline said the reason for making such drastic moves was because of a growing problem that was becoming intolerable.

"We had to relieve congestion," he said.

Farm Show Commission member Dennis Grumbine said that "for several years, the commercial exhibitors expressed their discontent in that end of the (Main Building) floor, trying to keep a clean and professional display."

"Along with it, a lot of the visiting public became disenchanted with not being able to get through the 'L'-shaped corridor to buy food," Grumbine said. "Through some of the surveys we took, an awful lot of people considered that

(the food booths) to be the highlight of their visit, to taste some of the good Pennsylvania food."

Therefore, Grumbine explained, the change of location and renovation was approved as the best possible solution to "make that food available to more people in a nicer atmosphere and enhance the exhibitor floor by not having the mass of waste paper and people there solely to purchase food."

The move has gone over well with all involved, Kline said. On Thursday he had held a second meeting with representatives of the commodities groups.

"They're very excited about it. It's a positive move the whole way around. Commercial exhibitors are excited because it will relieve congestion on the main floor."

Some other changes with the poultry competitions should improve the number and diversity of exhibitors. About 2,000 entries are expected.

Kline said there will be a prorated limit on the number of entries by any one poultry producer. In the past, potential exhibitors had to be turned away because one or two exhibitors has entered large numbers of birds and eliminated competition.

Furthermore, there will be a grand champion fowl and a $75 special premium awarded each to the best bantam, best large fowl and best waterfowl. Also, a fifth place premium is being added for each class, and an additional poultry judge has been added.

Grumbine said that there will also be two major changes in the beef cattle and hog group competitions. Starting with this coming Farm Show, "We're going to show market hogs by breeds and steers by breeds," he said.

According to Grumbine, the major breeds of the two meat species are already classified by pure-breeds and that will be followed, but an additional category will be held for crossbreed market animals.

Since the 1991 Farm Show, scheduled from Jan. 6 through Jan. 11, is the 75th anniversary of the event, Kline said there will be some one-time only items offered for sale through the Farm Show.

Of special interest is a Farm Show history book, to be available for purchase in both hardback and paperback.

Toy collectors will also have a chance at a limited number of special edition, commemorative Winross trucks, toy farm tractors and farm implements, and a commemorative Ertl Co. Truck bank, that Kline said he thinks is going to be a scale of a 1917 model Ford truck, the year the Farm Show was started.

And also to be finished in time for the special anniversary Farm Show is a new roof over the entire

OVER 100 HOUSES SOLD IN THE PAST FOUR YEARS IN THE NORTHEAST!

Chore-Time's ULTRAFLO® feeder for layers, pullets and breeders can free you from your chains

We have probably been too modest up to now about the merits of our new generation ULTRAFLO® cage feeder vs. the old style chain feeders some of our competitors are still trying to sell you. In fact, the only negative comments about our feeder come from our competition, not our customers. So we would like to point out the bare facts:

FEED SAVINGS: On-farm results show a feed savings of 1/3 lb. per 100 birds per day — over $10,000 per year savings on a 100,000-bird house. Year after year.

TROUBLE-FREE DESIGN: Our feeder has only two moving parts — the one-piece auger plus each drive wheel; their chain has more. Our corners are heavy 12 ga. zinc plated tubing for long life; their corners have a reputation for trouble and short life.

PROVEN DESIGN: Over 10 million birds are already on our feeder worldwide. Also, it was proven in 5 years of on-farm testing before introduction.

EASY ADAPTABILITY: Ours adapts easily to existing cage systems you may already have. Or choose from our wide selection of cage styles.

5-YEAR WARRANTY: Ours gives you a 5-year warranty on auger and trough. Theirs doesn't. In fact, their dealers derive a large percentage of their income from parts sales. Ours don't.

MICROPROCESSOR CONTROL: Our control lets you program feeding time to the second, to match the exact time of one circuit. Control number of feedings, time of each feeding — also 10-second "Stimulation Cycles" between feedings, to minimize separation, and improve your birds' feed intake

SIMPLE OPERATION: "Push-pull" Power Units with 1/3 or 1/2 HP motor are located in a cage, have hardened steel gears for trouble-free operation

HI-GRADING OF FEED: Our auger travels at 80 FPM so birds are limited from eating until it stops; birds will hi-grade feed from chain feeders, causing uneven nutrition.

REMIXING FEED: Our auger slowly revolves, remixing old and new feed; theirs leaves most old feed to get stale.

BILLED-OUT FEED: Our auger acts as a grid to prevent birds from raking, piling, and throwing out feed; neither chain or disk systems prevent feed waste

COST SAVINGS: Ours saves vast amounts of energy costs since it's easier to propel and runs only half as long as theirs

LOW MAINTENANCE: With our 5-year warranty on auger and 20 ga. trough (one competitor has only 22 ga.) — plus no corner wheel mechanisms to wear out — ours saves you maintenance costs.

Deadline Nears For Junior Holstein Judging School Registration

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — More details about the two Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association Judging Schools scheduled for this summer have been announced recently.

The two-day schools are open to all youth interested in learning about dairy cattle judging. One school is being held for those in the western part of the state, the other for eastern area youth.

Deadline for registration is June 25.

The intent of the schools is to cover the basics of animal evaluation and reason giving. Those participating have an opportunity to learn terminology, animal and class breakdowns and how to effectively give reasons.

The western school is being headquartered out of the Holiday Inn in Warren and the Warren County Holstein Club is acting as host. The dates are July 5 and July 6 from noon to noon. Terry Rawn, of Charlestown, W. Va.

The eastern school is to be held from noon to noon July 9 to July 10 out of the Quality Inn, in Harrisburg. The Lebanon County Holstein Club is acting as host and Paul Knight, of Airville, will be the official. Easter school attendees will visit the Ayrshire herd of Dale Maulfair, the Brown Swiss of Gary Mase, Guernseys of Robert Smith and Holstein herds of Dale Hosteter and John Bomgardner.

The cost of the school is $25 for those staying overnight, which includes school costs, hotel room and an evening meal.

For those commuting, the cost is $15, which covers the cost of the school and evening meal.

For the first time this year, a second family member can register and attend at a $5 discount.

For more information, call the Pennsylvania Holstein Association at (814) 234-0364.

To Increase 609 Tobacco Production In 1990.

We have increased our orders for your tobacco over the past several years and could have purchased 1 million pounds more had it been available in 1989. Surplus government stock has been depleted and US grown tobacco inventory is at its lowest level in years.

Our goal has been to establish a strong market for Pennsylvania 609 by personally visiting manufacturers overseas and here in the US. Our goal has been met!

The outlook is good for 1990 as more US grown tobacco is needed for cigarette production both in the US and overseas.

It is our desire to continue to work closely with each of you. We are daily continuing our efforts to build the 609 tobacco demand into a lasting market that will carry into the future. Our company prides itself on a relationship with the farmers based on honesty, integrity and loyalty. If we can be of service to you please feel free to call.

At the same time, domestic cattle prices rose, which made it easier for other countries to underbid U.S. sellers. Both the state and national Holstein associations are trying to get the export enhancement program back for dairy cattle in the 1990 Farm Bill.

In addition to the export enhancement program, PHA also took a stand in favor of a farmer-controlled milk supply management program. Its resolution to include such a program in the 1990 Farm Bill passed unanimously at the 1989 National Holstein Convention.

With the endorsement of PHA and all the other state associations, National Holstein Association Vice President Carl Butler presented a total of 11 points for consideration in the 1990 Farm Bill in testimony before the House Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy, and Poultry and the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry last February.

These points included milk price stabilization, reinstatement of an export enhancement program for live animals, an increase in minimum legal standards for fat, solids-not-fat and total solids content of milk, changes in CCC purchase pricing, a supply management program implemented by limited price support cuts, a multiple component pricing system to the producer in all Federal Marketing Orders, and establishment of a Dairy Producer Board.

Regarding state legislation, PHA is supporting passage of a bill which would establish harsher penalties for destruction of research facilities by animal rights advocates.

When asked what some of the additional benefits are of joining PHA and keeping registered Holsteins, Nichol replied, "The association does things for its members that individuals can't do for themselves." PHA can bring in buyers from other states and countries to bring higher prices for cattle. It can attract quality speakers to large meetings to keep members abreast of the latest developments in research, market trends and practical management techniques. It provides contacts to expose

Two people milk about 425 to 450 cows in this double 12 parlor. The herd manager is Grady Baney, a Penn State graduate. The herd is divided into four groups based on production levels.

Evergreen Farms offers three miles of fenced-off trout streams for catch-and-return fishing. Harpster has installed stream improvement devices and stocked the streams himself to augment the naturally reproducing population. The end result is a high quality and scenic fishery that attracts many high-powered businessmen from all over the country.

The dry cow barn houses the rest of the 500-head herd. A fulltime secretary keeps complete computer and hard copy records of daily individual milk production, weekly veterinarian checks, reproduction information, group and individual production averages, and registration information. About 85 to 95 percent of the herd is registered.

JUDITH PATTON
Centre Co. Correspondent

Judy Patton is the Centre County Correspondent for Lancaster Farming. Despite her own admission that she didn't always have a love, nor understanding of agriculture, that certainly can not be said of her today. "Born and raised in a Pittsburgh suburb, I thought food magically appeared in the supermarket until I met Bob Patton. He introduced me to dairy cows by making me show a Jersey in the Penn State Dairy Expo.

"Bob and I got married while we were undergraduates at Penn State with him majoring in dairy science and me in journalism. Our senior year he was my lab instructor in an animal science course (no, I did not get an A).

"My education in agriculture really began when we started dairy farming in 1969 while Bob was working on a masters degree in dairy nutrition at Penn State. We borrowed every penny to buy a 20-cow herd on a 120-acre farm.

"I worked my way up from milker washer and milk carrier (we shipped in cans and carried the milk into the milkhouse) to being able to milk 60 cows alone, drive tractor, feed calves — everything except clean gutters and more advanced field work than disking.

"Meanwhile, we had four children, so my journalism career was postponed until we quit farming and Bob went back to school to get a doctorate in dairy nutrition at Michigan State University. Other than working part time as a news editor for Penn State's College of Engineering and doing some free lance writing, I had virtually no experience to augment my bachelor's degree. But I became the editor of the Michigan-Indiana Holstein News, putting together a 60-page monthly magazine on a Macintosh computer desktop publishing system.

"Bob went to work for Monsanto a year ago, and the company relocated us to Pennsylvania. So we got to come back home to the hills and mountains of Centre County we missed so much. And I have gotten to see a lot of our old Penn State friends by covering events for Lancaster Farming, not to mention I showed a Brown Swiss in the year's Penn State Dairy Expo alumni contest, so I am enjoying my work!"

This covered bridge, completed last year with assistance from former President Jimmy Carter, is built in the old style, with pegs and pins instead of nails. Harpster plans to use it as the site for the next PHA board meeting.

breeders to new ideas and people. "Investing in registered Holsteins is like having an insurance policy," Nichol says. Even if a breeder does not actively merchandise cattle, there may come a time when he has to sell the herd. In a recent dispersal sale of a commercial herd, the registered cattle brought an average of $200 per head more than the grade cattle with the same production records.

When discussing the future of the Holstein Association, Nichol says he would like to see every state have a strong Holstein organization which would create more markets for Pennsylvania dairymen. He thinks having a registration fee rebate going to local Holstein clubs through the state association would stimulate more grassroots support and activity.

A PHA committee is currently conducting a financial study to find ways to increase income to cover membership services. Nichol and the other staff members - Ken Raney, membership service director, and Jett Harding, sales director - are pushing for an ever stronger organization, retaining current programs and expanding into new areas.

PHA From The Viewpoint Of

President Wayne Harpster

Stay one step ahead of the competition - that is Wayne Harpster's key to survival in dairy farming.

From the looks of the vast Evergreen Farms in Huntingdon County and the $1.25 million gross income from last year, this success formula has obviously worked for Harpster. He attributes much of his competitive edge to the Pennsylvania Holstein Association (PHA).

Elected president of PHA this year, Harpster credits registered Holstein programs for giving all dairymen easy access to top genetics. The registered Holstein breeders' dedication to breeding a better cow through detailed, carefully monitored, and truthful records has provided the data necessary for progressive genetic development, Harpster points out.

In his opinion, commercial dairymen, whether they have grade or registered cows, should appreciate what the Holstein Association has done to put the best breeding in the world at their fingertips. He would like to see more grade cow breeders join the state and national Holstein associations to keep the United States at the top in worldwide market competition.

Exports have given foreign countries good genetics instantly that took U.S. breeders years to develop, Harpster said. He suggests charging higher prices for exports and investing some of the profits back into improving breeding programs. For example, charging more for semen sold abroad allows for lower domestic semen prices, making it possible for more U.S. breeders to use the best bulls.

Although exports of live dairy cattle have declined recently, Harpster thinks it will pick up in the former Communist countries which are just opening up to trade with the U.S. Also, the embryo market will continue to grow.

Education is another important tool for success in the dairy business, in his opinion. He would like to see PHA establish an Education Committee to develop more informative programs. He feels PHA-sponsored publications should include practical farm management articles.

Harpster commends the PHA Junior programs for their educational value. At the college level, PHA has established a scholarship program and supports the activities of the Penn State Dairy Science Club and Dairy Judging Team. One way to expand the Junior program, he suggested, is at the local level, because teenagers are too busy with school and other activities to do more at the state level.

In addition to educating farmers and youth, PHA needs to help inform businessmen and legislators about the dairy industry, said Harpster. Because the economy benefits greatly from the "real" money farmers put into circulation, he feels businessmen involved with dairying should be PHA members to learn how they can best support dairymen.

"When I pay my employees," he said, "they go into town to buy shoes, groceries, and other goods and services. This money keeps local businesses going. The more dairy farmers prosper, the more the whole local economy prospers."

Harpster brought a local bank president out to Evergreen Farms to show him what dairy farming was about, so that he would set up a farm loan department at his bank. PHA should encourage dealers, bankers, and other businessmen who can help farmers to be members to stimulate this kind of interaction.

PHA should also combine with other dairy groups to have a united voice on political issues, Harpster said. Having a regional pricing system instead of one based on the Minnesota-Wisconsin prices is an example of an issue he would like to see the Holstein Association push for.

As PHA president, Harpster has two main goals he would like to see accomplished. The first is to increase the activity of the PHA committees. He feels strongly that the success of the organization lies in the grassroots support that committees generate for programs designed by the staff with direction from the board of directors. Because members are all very busy, it is not an easy goal to attain, but he has confidence in the ability of committee chairmen to carry out essential member services.

Increasing the membership role by 1,000 during his two-year tenure is Harpster's second goal. Convincing more dairymen with primarily grade Holsteins and business people to join is essential to reaching this goal. Making PHA a fun activity with more enjoyable social functions is another way he wants to attract members.

In general, Harpster is optimistic about the future of the Pennsylvania dairy industry. He predicts that Pennsylvania dairymen won't be able to produce enough milk to meet the increase in consumption from a higher state population. So even though urban expansion in eastern Pennsylvania will push farmers out of that area, dairy farms in the central and northwest sectors of the state should still thrive.

Dairy Farming: All in the Family

MARY LAEGER-HAGEMEISTER
Dauphin Co. Correspondent
GRATZ (Dauphin County) — It started in the early part of this century, at least four generations ago.

The Crissinger family, now in the Gratz community of Northern Dauphin County, can trace dairy farming in their family back as far as four generations, maybe farther! It is a heritage of which the entire family is proud and works to maintain.

Paul and Pearl Crissinger have milked all of their lives. Two of their five children share their enthusiasm as well, so much so that in 1981 a partnership was formed with them and their two sons, Leon and Ken. It was a way of passing the ownership from parents to the children.

"We had been farming together long before that," said Ken, "but we decided to make it a partnership." When asked if there had been any conflicts or regrets over the years, both Ken and Leon smiled and said, "Nothing major!"

Successful partnership

Part of what makes the partnership so successful is the divided responsibilities and the ability for each member to rely upon the others to do their jobs.

Leon is field manager and maintenance engineer, and Ken is herd manager. Paul and Pearl fill in where needed, as does a hired man. Ken's wife, Karen, a registered nurse, assists with getting the records and other work ready for the vet.

The children in Ken's family are too young to be helpful in the barn. But Leon's 14-year-old son is involved in the farm and also active in FFA.

Crissinger's dairy herd consists of all Holsteins, half being registered and half grade. "We breed 100 percent artificial insemination through Atlantic. That works best for us," said Ken.

In trying to prevent burnout and conflict, a schedule has been arranged, which gives everyone time off. Since milking 80 cows year-round takes two hours twice a

In addition to her correspondence responsibilities, Mary is the extension home economist in Dauphin County. day, it can really tie a farmer down. Therefore, Leon, Ken, and their hired man have arranged that they have every third weekend off. When they finish the evening milking at 6:00 p.m. on Friday, they are off until 4:00 p.m. Sunday. This allows for family time and mini-vacations.

Get to sleep

Not only do they get every third weekend off, they also get to sleep in two mornings a week. So instead of being at the barn by 4:30 a.m., they don't need to arrive until 8:00 a.m.

In addition to the three men responsible for the daily milkings, a neighbor, Paul Raker, helps out every Sunday morning to supplement for whomever is off that day. "Paul has been helping us for 8 or 9 years. We are very fortunate to have him," said Ken.

Another key to time off is to take it in the winter, when there isn't any field work. Paul and Pearl can take off whenever they want to, "but they don't," said Leon.

"Pearl comes out to feed the calves every day. She doesn't think anyone else will do it quit right. They're her babies," said Paul.

However, Paul has outside commitments. "I got bored with farming and wanted a challenge." Paul has been challenged in his role on the ambulance crew. "I really enjoy it!" he said.

Crissinger's farm consists of 350 acres, an average sized farm, with the partnership owning 220 of the acres. It provides feed and hay for the 275 head of cattle. Crops include corn, alfalfa, timothy hay, and oats used for feed, plus wheat as a cash crop.

In addition to providing the feed for the milk cows, the steers are fattened to 1,500 to 1,600 pounds, and then sold. Any extra heifers are bred and sold to local farmers. "We have no trouble getting ride of them," said Ken.

The dairy herd consists of all Holsteins, half being registered and half grade. "We breed 100 percent artificial insemination through Atlantic. That works best for us," said Ken.

"Right now milk production is really good. The tank is emptied every other day, taking out over 10,000 pounds. Cows are averaging 65 pounds of milk per day."

Dairy Distinction

"The first year they had the Dairy Farm Distinction Award, we applied and won," said Paul. He said, "There are lots of other good dairy farmers in the area, but they didn't apply." Since then, they won a second time.

In order to maintain that status, a road check is done once a year. If the farm doesn't fulfill the qualifications, the sign is taken down.

However, the sign still swings from the post along the road.

Tree Planting Honors Nurseryman

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Woodrow Dambach, retired founder of Lake Forest Gardens, Inc. in Fombell, was honored at a tree planting ceremony on Friday, April 27, 1990 to commemorate Arbor Day. Speakers at the ceremony included Herbert Nolte and Henry Meinert, the Pennsylvania Nurserymen's Association 1989 Nurseryman of The Year.

The speakers addressed Dambach's commitment to the horticulture industry since the inception of Lake Forest Gardens in 1927. Dambach specialized in the production of Christmas trees and originated the idea of shearing Scotch Pine to improve their appearance for Christmas tree sales. Lake Forest Gardens has since grown to a 500-acre wholesale and retail nursery producing Christmas trees, ornamental evergreens, and shade trees.

Dambach is a member of the Pennsylvania Nurserymen's Association and a lifetime member of the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association. Dambach and his wife, Eleanor, have two children. Alan Dambach is the current manager of Lake Forest Gardens and daughter Marilyn Ruppert resides in New York City.

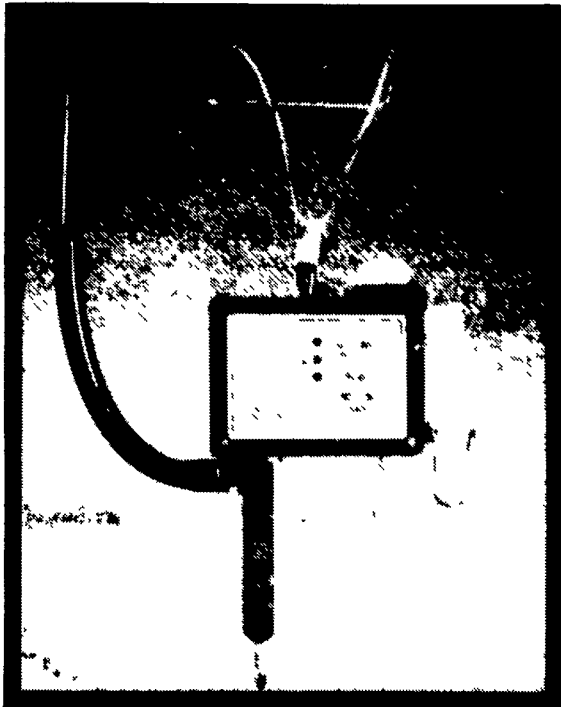

The Pennsylvania Nurserymen's Association is a professional, statewide trade association dedicated to serving the needs of Pennsylvania's nursery, garden center, grower, and landscape industries. For more information, write PNA, 1924 North Second Street, Harrisburg, PA 17102.

Parlor Stimopuls

THE GOAL IS TO INCREASE MILKING SPEED and maximize efficiencies for profitable dairying. The Westfalia Stimopuls is doing the most for the dairyman by utilizing Westfalia's leadership in milking technology as it applies to the cow.

BY STIMULATING EACH COW for the proper time before milking begins, you maximize the value of the hormone Oxytocin for the quickest milk letdown and gentle action on the cow's udder. Westfalia Stimopuls automatically performs this action the same every milking.

THE WESTFALIA STIMOPULS pulsation operates for an owner-selected period of seconds at 300 double strokes per minute. During this time, the vacuum in the pulsation chamber is reduced. This causes the liner to envelop the teat lightly and exert a vibrating stimulation on the teat tip. In this phase, the hormone Oxytocin enters the udder through the blood. At the same time the increased blood circulation helps relax the teat end muscles for better milkout.

WHY IS THIS IMPORTANT TO YOU? It helps maximize your dairy profits and provide the best udder health and quickest milking time.

For more information, contact your local Westfalia dealer or contact Westfalia at 800-323-6723, in Canada 800-361-6040.

Farm Rescue Skills Taught

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. — Local rescue squad members will have the chance to improve their farm rescue skills in June.

FARMEDIC training will be given June 6-9 by Cornell Cooperative Extension of Clinton County and the Clinton County office of emergency preparedness.

The FARMEDIC training is being co-sponsored by the Clinton County Farm Bureau, Northeast

Agribusiness Association, and NYSEG. Dr. Townsend Carpenter, Deputy Fire Coordinator/EMS; with help from Beth Spaugh of Cornell Cooperative Extension; Peru Fire Department volunteers and farmers Bruce and Anne Dimock; and Dragoon's Farm Equipment will present the course.

The FARMEDIC course familiarizes rescue personnel with farm structures, machinery, and chemicals so that they can perform timely rescues while avoiding further injury to an accident victim or to themselves. The course is a mixture of classroom videos and discussions at the Mooers Fire Station, a visit to the Larry Brooks farm to see in reality what has been discussed, and practice with farm machinery at Dragoon's Farm Equipment.

Sponsors are providing class fees, materials, and lunch for rescue squad volunteers. Class size is limited to 25, so pre-registration is requested. Please call Cornell Cooperative Extension of Clinton County, 561-7450 to register. The course will run Wednesday and Thursday evenings, June 6 and 7 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday, June 8 from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.; and Saturday, June 9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The farm community appreciates the time and effort rescue squad volunteers put in for our benefit.

School Puts Emphasis On Science In Classroom Ag

ANDY ANDREWS

ROBESONIA (Berks Co.) — Reading articles from trade scientific journals. Examining tissue culture and DNA fingerprints. Discussing the development of a bovine growth hormone. Sounds like something a college student would be doing, right? But students in the ag science curriculum at Conrad Weiser High School are doing exactly that. It's all part of the way high school agricultural classes are changing. For several years now, the shift in the schools has been away from traditional vocational Lorraine Gechter displays her project to show how hormones affect normal growth of pea plants. This Conrad Weiser high school project shows how two hormones — B-Nine and Gibberellic acid — are used to stem the development of budding flowers and to create plant elongation.

Ag science

The ag science department at Conrad Weiser, according to ag teacher Steve Miller, is "not just a little harder ag production science, but the difficult ag sciences, down to the point where the student is doing restriction mapping," he said.

Miller emphasized that, as in many other schools throughout the country, Conrad Weiser is studying "the cellular level as well as the whole animal level. That's what we're after."

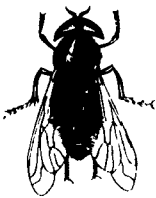

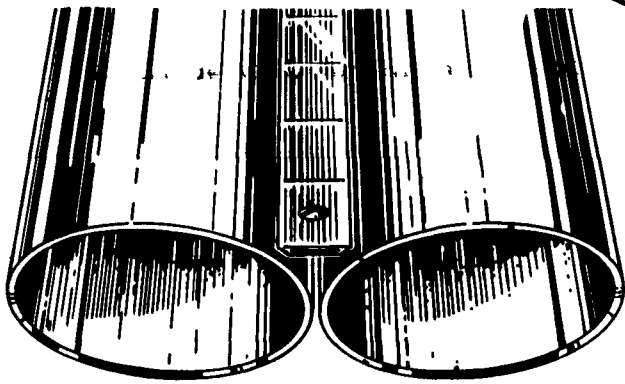

Many of the changes in the curriculum took place about seven years ago. According to Miller, schools wanted to recognize the growth of technology and the shift of more students into agricultural areas not related to crop production and farm mechanics, but on fertility, soil, plant and animal science, horticulture, and food science.

"Years ago, a typical student would have been a farm boy," said Miller. "He'd go into an S.O.E. (supervised occupational experience) with a dairy calf, grow another year older, and grow a crop. By the time he was a senior, he might have five cows, 4 or 5 calves, 10 acres of alfalfa or wheat, that kind of thing. These days, we have very few of that type of student."

Change curriculum

Conrad Weiser was one of the first schools in the area to change their curriculum to meet the needs of a changing student population and industry expectations.

"The schools didn't want to change," he said. "They stayed with production agriculture instruction too long. We felt we jumped at the right time. We made the switch to a more science-based curriculum."

That curriculum, according to Miller, more neatly fits the needs of the industry and of the student in light of the changing face of agriculture.

"We're not abandoning agriculture at all," Miller said. "But we're not sitting here teaching production ag, teaching kids how to grow 40 acres of wheat. We want them to know about how those 40 acres of wheat are grown — fertility and that kind of thing. They may end up going to college, to be an agronomist or a soil scientist."

Don McNutt, ag science teacher at Conrad Weiser, displays a topiary (plant sculpture) that students developed with the initials C.W. in the greenhouse at the school. The plant was "sculpted" from rough-milled spagnum moss, baby tears, creeping jenny, and begonia.

Conrad Weiser ag science teacher Steve Miller demonstrates set-up procedures for micropropagation — taking tissue from a Boston fern — and reproducing the plant in a test tube.

More in demand

Food scientists, ag salespeople, ag marketing, and other professionals are more in demand than ag production workers.

"The ag science professions are 10 to 20 percent short every year in the number of people that they can get ahold of," said Miller. "And it's going to increase."

Students at Conrad Weiser receive an introduction to the ag curriculum in eighth grade in an ag science and technology course. From there, they have an opportunity to sign up for ag science classes, and, later on, move into ag elective courses such as biotechnology or horticulture.

Don McNutt, an ag teacher at the school, emphasized the reasons for the change to the more science-oriented classes. An ag program guide describes the factors contributing to the changes, including decreasing student numbers and increasing cost; the need for more students to be exposed to agriculture; the need for additional science instruction; and other factors.

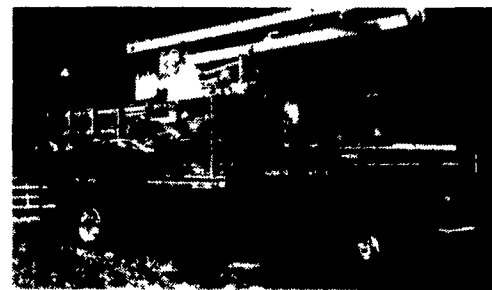

Scientific world

"The whole course is predicated around what's new in the scientific world, especially biotechnology in a broad sense," said McNutt.

Enrollment in the freshman ag science classes has risen from 6 about five years ago to 65. Of the 65, two sections, a total of 44 students, are college-bound.

"The proof of the pudding is if the students come back in 1990 and 1991," said McNutt. The eighth graders have come back, and "as far as we're concerned, they came back too well," he said. About 50 percent of next year's ninth graders, said McNutt, have elected to take an ag course.

Afraid of stigma

"I think that says they are no longer afraid of the stigma of being up here," said McNutt. McNutt said he'd be "tickled pink" if, within three years, out of 65 freshmen, 20 of them as seniors would be enrolled in ag science.

"Ag is no longer a place for lazy students," said Miller.

"We have a whole new round of technology coming down," he said. "It's no different and no less frightening than it was in the 1920s and 1930s. This new era in technology caused a change in agriculture to mechanization and growth in animal, soil, and plant science research. Ag students need to know about that and be ready to infuse that technology into the agricultural sciences."

complex and improved lighting in the large arena.

1992 Farm Show Will Open Saturday

Changes for future farm shows have already been made to an extent, according to Kline.

Traditionally, the Farm Show doors didn't open to the public until noon Sunday when the governor makes his address. That will not change for the 75th Farm Show, but in two years, the 1992 Farm Show will see a change in day for public visit. In two years visitors will be allowed in starting Saturday. But for year the show will run according to the traditional schedule.

According to Kline, although a change in schedule of an event two years away might seem like far ahead planning, "It is necessary because a lot of exhibitors have to have that much time to plan their schedules."

For the general public, however, he said he hoped it would not cause any confusion. The 1991 Farm Show will be open to the public as it was scheduled — from Sunday through Friday.

Fair Week For Fieldwork

The week was unseasonably cool. The precipitation was near normal, with rain coming mainly during the beginning and ending of the week. It allowed for about four days of field work across the Commonwealth.

Activities for the week included spring plowing; planting corn, oats, soybeans, potatoes and vegetables; cutting hay and haylage; repairing fence; hauling manure; spraying; spreading fertilizer and lime; maintaining machinery; spraying trees; and caring for livestock.

Soil Moisture

Across the state, topsoil moisture was rated surplus by 25 percent, 73 percent said adequate, and two percent reported levels short. In the northern region, 38 percent rated it surplus, 59 percent adequate and three percent short. In the central region, 19 percent of our respondents rated soil moisture as surplus, 81 percent rated it as adequate, and none of our respondents rated it short. In the southern region, 14 percent of our respondents rated soil moisture as surplus, 81 percent rated it as adequate, and five percent rated it as short.

Plowing

Eighty-nine percent of the spring plowing was completed by week's end. Last year at this time, 84 percent was complete and the five-year average for this date is 92 percent. Spring plowing was 82 percent complete in the northern region, while plowing in the central and southern regions was 92 and 95 percent completed, respectively.

Corn

By the end of the week, 64 percent of the state's corn was planted. Last year at this time, 34 percent was planted. The five-year average is 69 percent. Planting was 53 percent completed in the northern region, 67 percent completed in the central region, and 80 percent completed in the southern region.

Soybeans

The state's soybean planting was 22 percent completed by the end of the week. As of this date last year, 12 percent was planted, and the five-year average is 34 percent.

Oats

Ninety-five percent of the oats in the Commonwealth had been planted by the week's end. Last year's figure was 92 percent, and the five-year average is 98 percent. The oat crop across the state was rated by our respondents as 22 percent excellent, 55 percent good, 20 percent fair, and three percent poor.

Potatoes

According to our reporters, 74 percent of Pennsylvania's potatoes had been planted. Last year 63 percent were planted and the five-year average is 83 percent.

Wheat And Barley

Across the state, wheat was reported as 21 percent pre-boot, 40 percent boot and 39 percent heading by week's end. Last year's wheat as 39 percent pre-boot, 40 percent boot and 21 percent headed at this time. The wheat crop was rated 16 percent excellent, 59 percent good, 22 percent fair and three percent poor by our respondents. Pennsylvania barley was 17 percent pre-boot, 18 percent boot and 65 percent heading. At this time last year, the state's barley was 28 percent pre-boot, 15 percent boot, and 57 percent heading.

Fruit

The Commonwealth's peaches, by the end of the week, were all in the full bloom or past stage. At this time last year, 93 percent were full bloom or past. All of Pennsylvania's cherries were also in full bloom or past. Last year at this time, 90 percent were full bloom or past. Apples were four percent pink and 96 percent full bloom. Apples, at this time last year, were five percent pre-pink, 15 percent pink and 80 percent full bloom or past.

Hay And Pasture

Statewide, alfalfa hay stands were reported as 38 percent good, 57 percent fair, and five percent poor. Clover-timothy stands were rated good by 53 percent, fair by 46 percent, and poor by one percent of the respondents. Statewide, 13 percent of alfalfa had been cut for hay. Quality of hay was rated as good by 20 percent, fair by 65 percent and poor by 15 percent of our respondents. Twenty percent of the respondents rated the amount of feed being obtained from pastures by week's end as above average, and 77 percent rated it as average, and three percent indicated below average feed value.

Foraging Around

FERTILITY REQUIREMENTS FOR HIGH ALFALFA YIELD

High yields of alfalfa, 8 tons or more per acre, in the east are no longer a myth. They're a reality - proven by 15 years of experience in our Pennsylvania Alfalfa Growers Program, as well as by dozens of other top growers on thousands of acres. Data from the growers program also clearly show that producers with high yields generally have lower unit costs and higher net returns per acre compared with low yield producers.

But high yielding, persistent and profitable alfalfa stands don't just happen. They're the result of putting a lot of production know-how to work. And after the two difficult growing seasons of 1988 and 1989, with all of the additional stress on alfalfa, a sound fertility program this year is certainly an important link in your alfalfa production chain.

START WITH LIME

To begin with a sound alfalfa fertility program must include lime. Alfalfa has a sweet tooth. It struggles in "sour" or acid soil and, other things being favorable, thrives in a "sweet" soil. It may grow at a lower PH, but for many reasons, it yields best when the PH is 6.7 to 7.0, and based on many years of research, best results come from correcting your PH problem well in advance of establishing the stand.

A LOOK AT

FERTILIZER NUTRIENTS

So much for lime. Just accept the fact it is important.

Let's turn our attention to several of the important plant nutrients required to grow a good alfalfa crop.

It's well known that those 7 to 8 ton alfalfa yields remove lots of plant nutrients. How much? A look at the nutrient uptake at several yield levels as summarized from several years' data in the Pennsylvania Alfalfa Growers Program provides some clues:

It's obvious that the uptake of nitrogen (N) and Potash (K20) is the greatest of all nutrients. Of course, alfalfa is a legume and is among the most efficient fixers of N from the air. Thus, except under adverse growing conditions, N rarely limits alfalfa production.

Potash (K20), however, which is taken up in even larger amounts, must come from the soil. Thus, if soil fertility and 7 to 8 ton alfalfa yields are to be maintained, these heavy demands for potash (some 65 pounds removed per ton) must be anticipated and incorporated into the soil fertility program on your farm.

This need is supported by data from a recent University of Maryland study conducted by Forage Specialist Les Vough. "Maximum net returns per acre for the three potash application rates used were obtained at 430 pounds K20 per acre per year," Vough found.

Phosphate (P205) is also very important to profitable alfalfa production. Even though uptake is only about one-fifth as much as for N and K20 (about 14 pounds of P205 removed per ton) you must provide for phosphate needs in your alfalfa fertility program. And, since phosphorus moves slowly in the soil, it's important to have plowed under a part of the needs when establishing the seeding.

Alfalfa also takes up calcium (Ca), magnesium (Mg), and sulfur (S) in the substantial amounts which in the harvested forage are more than doubled as top yields are achieved. Sufficient quantities of Ca & Mg have often been indirectly maintained through a good liming program. In the past, sulfur has been added to many soils when ordinary superphosphate was applied. In general this source of sulfur may no longer be significant. Thus, sulfur status is one you should watch, especially on coarse-textured, low organic matter soils or those that do not receive manure.

The uptake of the micronutrient boron (B) looks, and is, small compared with the so called major nutrients. But boron is important and needs to be applied annually to your alfalfa crop in order to

I started on the Fertrell Feeding Program just to prove it wouldn't work.

Kore J. Peachey, Milroy, PA

"That's right. But I soon had to change my mind.

You know, at first, people would tell me that if it worked, everybody would be using it. I think the time will come when they will.

For the past two years we've been on the Fertrell Feeding Program, and during that time we've earned Pennsylvania's 'Dairy of Distinction' Award, boosted our profit over feed costs to over $1900 per cow, and had one cow produce a 365-day record 29,000 lbs. of milk with 1,248 lbs.

in fat. We've seen less stress in the cows and we've also noticed less udder edema. Even the quality of our hay is better with Fertrell. The protein levels are higher than they were, even during the drought.

All I can say is, the Fertrell Program is the best I've tried."

Farm Credit Promotes Loan Processor

YORK (York Co.)—Connie S. Negley has been promoted to the position of loan processor in the Chambersburg office of York Farm Credit, according to Duane G. Bosler, vice president.

Negley, a native of Cumberland County, was employed by York Farm Credit in 1989 as a junior loan processor. She is a graduate of Big Spring High School.

York Farm Credit presently provides more than $116 million in long and short term loans to borrowers in south central Pennsylvania.

York Farm Credit is affiliated with the Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore, part of the nationwide Farm Credit system, the nation's leading agricultural lending institution.

achieve maximum production. In the Maryland study, for example, an annual top-dressing of boron increased alfalfa yields by about .5 tons per acre.

Let's put this all in perspective in terms of a fertility program for top alfalfa production.

To begin with top producers in the alfalfa growers' program used soil tests as their guide to developing a sound long range fertility program. And soil tests from many of the fields in the program indicate a high level of fertility at the time the alfalfa seeding was made. Furthermore, most top producers, mainly dairymen, used lots of cow manure in the corn phas of their corn - alfalfa rotation, assuring high levels of potash in the soil.

Results from the program, together with several research studies, indicate that for top yields and long lived stands (based on nutrient removal) you should apply up to 100 pounds of phosphate and 400 pounds of potash per acre annually. That's more than is generally recommended for yield levels of 5 to 6 tons per acre. There is evidence to suggest at these rates split applications of the potash, after first and last cutting, results in more efficient use of this nutrient.

Boron at the rate of 2 to 3 pounds per acre should also be applied on an annual basis.

Based on cost of production records from the alfalfa growers' program, fertilizer represents nearly 20% of the annual cost of growing an acre of alfalfa. But there's also plenty of evidence to suggest you can expect a $2 - $3 return for each dollar invested in a sound fertility program.

Extension
Dairy
Agent

BY GLENN A. SHIRK
Extension Agent - Dairy
Forage Quality

The goal and challenge for many farmers is to harvest high quality forages for their dairy herds.

Quality is affected by many things. One of the most important is stage of maturity at time of harvest. A good compromise between quality, yield and stand persistence is to cut alfalfa in the bud to early bloom stage of maturity and grasses in the boot to early head stage.

Respiration Losses

Plant cells remain active and continue to respire until the moisture level of the crop drops to about 40%. The longer it takes the crop to dry down to 40% the greater the respiration losses. To reduce this dry down time watch the long range weather forecasts and cut hay at the beginning of a good drying period. Cut early in the morning so the crop has ample time to dry down before nightfall. This should help reduce respiration losses from continuing throughout the night and into the next day. Also condition the hay and let it lie in a wide swath for more rapid drying.

Another option is to apply chemical drying agents at time of cutting. They can reduce drying time by about one day. However, be aware that these drying agents are not effective on grasses or during poor drying conditions. Also, the chemically dried hay is more subject to leaching and it will reabsorb more moisture on rainy days than untreated hay.

Leaf Loss And Leaching

Most of the hay's nutrients are contained in its leaves. To reduce leaf shattering, hay should be raked into fluffy windrows when the moisture is about 25-40%.

The ideal time for baling hay is very small. When the crop is below 20% moisture, leaf shattering increases considerably. Above 22% there is risk of mold growth, heat damage to nutrients, and perhaps spontaneous combustion.

The use of hay preservatives enables you to start baling sooner while the moisture is still around 25%. This may give you the time you need to get the baling done before the hay becomes too dry or before the weather changes. If the hay does become too dry it might be beneficial to delay baling until the hay picks up some moisture during the evening hours.

Sometimes it is difficult to get a sufficient break in weather for making hay. Therefore, be ready to take full advantage of these precious few days when they arrive. The use of hay preservatives can help you get that much needed jump on the weather.

Ensiling And Fermentation Losses

Ensiling the crop as haylage can help you beat the weather, reduce field losses and harvest the crop at optimum maturity for best feed value. In doing so, you add a new category of losses related to fermentation.

During the heat of fermentation feed energy is being burned up. When feeds become moldy, valuable feed nutrients are also being consumed by mold organisms.

Therefore, when ensiling a crop, the goal is to prevent excessive heating, getting the silage, through the heating phase as quickly as possible and dropping the pH to a level of about 4.0 for good preservation.

For this to happen we need anaerobic conditions (good packing and the exclusion of oxygen), the presence of enough lactic acid producing bacteria and a readily available supply of soluble carbohydrates for the bacteria to ferment and convert to lactic acid.

The right bacteria and sufficient amounts of soluble carbohydrates may not always be present on the ensiled crop for a number of reasons. Many bacteria may be killed when hay lies in the swath and is exposed to hot sunshine and dry conditions.

The more we turn hay the more risk there is of picking up large populations of foreign soil organisms. These organisms could overwhelm the "good bugs" and adversely affect fermentation. The same thing could happen when the crop is affected by excessive slime and disease conditions.

June Dairy Promotion "Mooves" Milk

SYRACUSE, NY —

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) will help retailers boost summer milk sales through a special June Dairy Month promotion entitled "Get Mooovin' With Milk." The promotion will include television and radio advertising as well as dairy case displays.

The promotion will kick-off with three weeks of television advertising beginning in early June. The ads use special filming techniques to show cows engaged in a variety of summer activities, such as volleyball and surfing. The ad has received some of the highest research scores ever for capturing consumer attention.

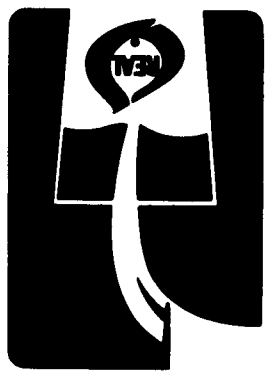

Through this promotion, ADADC hopes to ride the current wave of popularity for milk with consumers. Milk sales have been gradually increasing over the past few years; Americans currently consume 26 gallons per person per year.

On the retail side, ADADC is encouraging area retailers to get involved with the promotion through super-market dairy case displays. These displays will include flags, banners and mobiles which will attract shoppers attention in the dairy aisle.

To enhance retailer participation, ADADC has developed an Ad Manager contest, encouraging the use of milk artwork in retail ads. All retailers will also be provided with artwork for side panels for their private label milk.

The June milk promotion will be supplemented with an ice cream promotion scheduled for July Ice Cream Month. For further information on dairy promotion, contact ADADC at (315) 472-9143.

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council conducts dairy marketing programs on behalf of dairy farmers from New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania.

ing live cultures of bacteria can help supply the organisms needed for a good fermentation.

Hay crop forages are higher in protein and lower in energy than grain crops. They may not contain enough soluble carbohydrates to support a good fermentation. The problem is magnified when soluble carbohydrate levels are reduced to even lower levels by leaching. These levels can be fortified by adding grain or an enzyme preservative to the crop at time of ensiling. High protein levels compound the problem because they buffer the acids and delay the drop in pH.

Enzyme preservatives help to breakdown the structural components of plant cells, thereby releasing soluble carbohydrates for the bacteria to ferment. But, the right bacteria must be present to get the job done. That's why some preservatives contain enzymes plus bacteria and other organisms.

Recent research suggests that enzymatic preservatives offer a bonus value. As they breakdown the structural components of the plant they also make the feed more digestible, thereby improving dry matter intakes and milk production. Choosing a good preservative and using it properly is important. Follow label instructions for best results. There are differences between hay preservatives and silage preservatives. Therefore, be sure to choose one that is effective at the moisture levels of the crop you are harvesting.

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, June 2, 1990-A39

We've already discussed bacterial and enzymatic preservatives. These are the ones that are generally more effective with silages, where your goal is to promote a good fermentation.

The organic acid type preservatives are generally more suitable for use on hay, where the goal is to prevent fermentation.

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BOSWELL (Somerset Co.) — Dairy farmer Mark Miller of Boswell, RD1, in Somerset County is about as eager to discuss his farming accomplishments as a novice skydiver is to free-jump from an airplane three miles above an ocean.

Voted the Pennsylvania Outstanding Young Farm Couple in 1985, Mark and his wife, Martha, take the honor in their stride.

In 1975, when they were 20 and 21 years old, Mark and Clarence, his brother, bought the farm their father had purchased in 1961. Included were 30 head of Holstein cattle, not even half the amount the fellows thought they wanted. They bought 50 more head of cattle, "because the price was right," at the time.

Quantity was the overriding consideration rather than quality. In jest Mark says, "We just went out and bought junk." He says it to tease Martha who is an avid buyer at local auctions.

Whether the idea was good sense or not might be debatable, but it has apparently worked for the Millers.

About that same time, newlyweds, Mark and Martha moved into the farm house. Martha says she loves living on a farm but adds a qualifier of sorts by stating, "I'm glad I'm not a farmer. I like to see the cows in a pasture."

Martha's family, once neighbors of Mark's family, had moved to Ohio just before her birth. They returned one summer for a visit and called upon the Miller family. At his invitation, pretty, teen-aged Martha accompanied Mark for a ride on his motorcycle. They were stranded when the bike appeared to be out of fuel.

"Mark turned off the motor," Martha immediately challenges, giving him a sidelong glance.

"It ran out of gas," he grins.

They walked nearly a mile to reach Mark's home, which was ample time for the seeds of a budding romance to sprout. Mark continues to credit his mother, saying it was she who devised the scheme.

"It was a letter courtship," he says. He was doing volunteer service in an Omaha, Nebraska hospital at the time. Finally Martha's father let her go there for a while to teach Bible School.

Martha, who spends virtually no time doing farm work, is the person who will quote the facts and figures. Occasionally, Mark adds a rider to her comments. Personal publicity is something with which they are not comfortable.

As with most families, the family kitchen is the hub of action for the Mark Miller family of Boswell, RD1, Somerset county.

Their four children are Ben, 14; Kirstin, 11; Julie, 8; and Alexia, 6.

Showing little of his dad's conversational reticence, young Ben talks eagerly about his show animals, freely admitting to his passion for being in a show ring. So far he has four years of experience in that area.

Ben had to address the Somerset County Holstein Association, of which the Miller's are members, at its annual spring banquet this year. It was the expected responsibility of Ben, since he'd been voted the most valuable player on his Dairy Bowl Team during the Penn State Junior Holstein Convention.

The family declares that Ben had the banquet crowd laughing during his address. "I only said what happened," he replies innocently, but his eyes sparkle with betraying mischief.

With his sister, Kirstin, Ben belongs to the Super-Milkers 4-H Club. He is her coach as they both prepare to enter 4-H projects in the Somerset County Fair next August. Mark and Martha are half of the club's advising team.

Doing handcrafts is a strong talent of Martha. She particularly enjoys painting and will use any material paintable for her ideas, even the barn slats. One such item is prominently displayed in her kitchen above a doorway. It reads, "Let All That You Do Be Done In Love." Letters in dark blue paint outlined in red are complimented by the dainty white and yellow daisies she has woven around the motto with her paintbrush.

At the mention of her mother's sewing ability, little Alexia, whom they call Lexi, slides off the bench she has been occupying with sister Julie, and disappears. In a flash, she returns with a beautiful new dress that Martha has constructed for Julie. Lexi's broad smile indicates how proud she is that her mother made the dress.

When everybody went outside, Lexi's favorite mode of transportation was to be carried in her daddy's arms.

The children attend Johnstown Christian School where Martha is a regular volunteer.

Mark wants a milking parlor. He and Clarence generally get the morning and evening milking completed in two hours, but the 80 cows are in regular stalls.

The animals are computer fed. This requires herding the pastured cows back to the barn at noon for their regulated feeding schedule. A number on each cow tells the computer how many pounds of feed she needs.

Having a modern dairy opera-

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

BY JOYCE BATTCHER

Broccoli is tops in nutrition, color and appeal, especially when it's microwaved.

Microwaving means broccoli is cooked quickly with a small amount of water. This, in turn, means that valuable nutrients are retained, color is brightened, and flavor enhanced.

Broccoli is one of the best vegetables when it comes to nutrients. It's high in fiber and low in calories, fat and sodium. A cup contains over 1½ times the Recommended Daily Allowance of Vitamin C and almost half the RDA for Vitamin A. Broccoli also contains large amounts of calcium, potassium, and iron, along with some B vitamins and other minerals.

Besides all of that, recent findings show that eating broccoli may reduce risk of certain kinds of cancer. (While not as "perfect" as broccoli in all nutrients, eating other cruciferous -- cabbage-type -- vegetables also may help prevent some kinds of cancer. Others in the same family are: Brussel sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, collards, kale, kohlrabi, mustard greens, rutabagas, bok choy, turnips and turnip greens.)

Besides retaining all the good nutrients, microwaving keeps broccoli's vibrant green color and fresh flavor. In fact, a minute or two of microwaving just to barely warm broccoli pieces (see Italian Broccoli Salad) brightens the color and allows the broccoli to take on the dressing's flavor.

Broccoli microwaves best when covered tightly. Use plastic wrap or a tight-fitting lid. Arrange spears with stem ends toward outside edge of dish with the more tender flowerettes to the center. Stir broccoli pieces halfway through cooking. Let broccoli stand three to five minutes after cooking, still tightly covered, to finish tenderizing.

If broccoli is large or stems are especially tough, you may want to peel the stems before cooking.

Broccoli will not only tenderize better, but it will cook a minute or so faster.

Dressed-Up Broccoli With Cheese is broccoli spears dressed up with a light cheese sauce and cooked crumbled bacon. Serve it as a vegetable. Or serve over rice or pasta as a main dish.

Quick Broccoli Soup is not only super quick, it's super simple to make. Substitute frozen broccoli and instant minced onion to speed preparation time even more.

Italian Broccoli Salad

½ cup olive or vegetable oil
¼ cup cider or herb vinegar
1½ teaspoons Italian seasoning
½ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon black pepper
4 cups cut broccoli (stems and flowerettes)
2 tablespoons water
1 large carrot, thinly sliced

1 cup thickly sliced mushrooms
1 medium green pepper, thickly sliced

1 small onion, thinly sliced
½ cup sunflower nuts

Make dressing by stirring together oil, vinegar and seasonings; set aside. Place broccoli and water in a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover with plastic wrap or lid. Microwave (High) 1 minute. Stir. If broccoli hasn't turned bright green, re-cover and microwave another 45 to 60 seconds. Do not cook. Let stand, covered, 3 minutes. Stir in dressing and remaining ingredients. Serve immediately as a warm salad or chill and serve cold. Makes about 8 servings.

Each serving: 202 calories, 5g protein, 18g fat, 9g carbohydrate, 18mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.

Dressed-Up Broccoli With Cheese

1-1½ pounds broccoli
½ teaspoon dried basil
¼ cup water
1 cup low-fat milk
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon instant minced onion

½ teaspoon dried basil
½ -¾ cup shredded part-skim Mozzarella or Swiss cheese
Salt and pepper (optional)
4 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled

Cut off and discard about an inch of broccoli's tough stem ends. Cut into spears. Arrange broccoli in a microwave-safe 10x6-inch dish, with stem ends to outside edge of dish. Sprinkle with basil and add water. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 5 to 7 minutes or until stems are tender when pierced with a fork. Let stand, covered, while making sauce.

Stir together milk and cornstarch until smooth in a microwave-safe 1-quart measure; stir in onion. Microwave (High) 4 to 5 minutes or until boiling and thick. Stir in cheese and let stand until cheese melts. Season to taste.

Drain broccoli; pour sauce atop and sprinkle with crumbled bacon. Makes 4 vegetable servings or 2 large main-dish servings.

Each serving -- ¼ of recipe: 159 calories, 13g protein, 9g fat, 13g carbohydrate, 180mg sodium, 16mg cholesterol.

Quick Broccoli Soup

2-2½ cups coarsely chopped broccoli

1 tablespoon chopped onion
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
¼ cup water

1 can (10½ ounces) reduced-sodium condensed cream of mushroom soup

½ -¾ soup-can of low-fat milk
¼ cup diced cooked ham, turkey or chicken

Dash pepper

Place broccoli, onion, thyme and water in a microwave-safe

1½ - to 2-quart casserole; cover with lid or plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 3 to 4 minutes or until broccoli is tender. Do not drain. Stir in soup, milk, ham and pepper. Re-cover and microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes or until hot. Makes 3 servings.

Each serving: 190 calories, 13g protein, 10g fat, 17g carbohydrate, 1,020 mg sodium, 18mg cholesterol.

With frozen broccoli: With a 10-ounce package of chopped broccoli, add no water, but microwave as above, cooking until tender. With loose-pack broccoli pieces, measure 2 to 2½ cups, and continue as above. You may want to cut some pieces smaller before cooking.

Hint: Regular cream of mushroom soup makes a very salty-tasting soup when made with ham, but is OK when made with roasted turkey or cooked chicken. Questions for Joyce?

tion was once very important to Mark, until the family underwent some faith challenging experiences during a year of severe testing.

A rare bacteria attacked Kirstin. Paralysis from the neck down occurred quickly, holding her a captive for several months. Another time all three girls were seriously ill, two with rheumatic fever and one with a concussion. So on that occasion the three sisters were patients together in a Johnstown hospital.

"We bought a room at the hospital," says Mark. On the two occasions when hope was virtually lost, miraculous recovery came. Medical experts were astonished, including those from a Pittsburgh hospital where Kirstin had been treated for her paralysis caused by the bacteria.

Martha says those experiences caused the family to refocus its priorities. They were drawn together knowing that the end result was all in the hands of God. Since then they have tried to keep all of life's considerations in proper perspective.

Slowly, the farm house is being remodeled. The new kitchen is finished. Large, gleaming, and efficient, it immediately invites with its homey atmosphere. The adult and child-sized hickory rocking chairs, side by side, near the corner windows, overlook the lawn, barn, and paved country road. All manner of baskets and blue porcelain cookware are suspended from the ceiling rafters. Odd jars and crocks scattered around the place attest to Martha's weakness for buying at auctions. They effectively complement the knotty oak cabinets and predominantly blue color scheme that Martha has chosen for her kitchen. Nearby, a large, brick hearth, built diagonally, promises to emit a cozy warmth on chilly Laurel Highland days.

Pre-teen Kirstin says she enjoys books and reading. She is also serious about her studies. Julie is delighted that her daddy bought a new piano for their home. Now she can take piano lessons.

Growing mid-morning hunger pangs are obviously afflicting Ben's stomach. He heads for the refrigerator to raid the food supply.

Mark says he does the artificial breeding for the farm, but not the mating. Their neighbor, Ryan Weimer, 23, now a college student studying agricultural science, has always loved animals. Mark says the young man practically lived on their farm while he was growing up. Weimer has studied the subject and Mark believes he knows the needs of cows like the back of his hand. He does the mating for the Millers.

Handler of milk for the Miller dairy is the Maryland/Virginia Milk Producers Co-op, headquartered in Reston, Va. The DHIA rolling herd average is 19,800 pounds. There are also 70 young replacement cattle on their farm. In addition to their 115 acres, 235 more are rented from the neighbors.

Nationwide Pledges $50,000 For Ag Education

BALTIMORE, MD — The Maryland Agricultural Education (MAEF) has received $25,000 from the Nationwide Foundation. This gift, which represents the first payment on the Nationwide Foundation's pledge of $50,000, will be used to support MAEF's programs.

The Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation was established in 1989 to coordinate public and private support for improved agricultural education programs in Maryland's schools and increased public awareness of the importance of agriculture to the state of Maryland. "We deeply appreciate this vote of confidence from Nationwide," commented MAEF President Vaughn Bradley.

The Nationwide Foundation, headquartered in Columbus, OH, makes charitable donations on behalf of the Nationwide Insurance Company.

ANSWER — Linda Delbaugh, Liverpool, wanted a recipe using several meats. Thanks to May Ozimek, Flemington, N.J., for sending a recipe.

Hunter's Stew (Blgos)

6 pounds diced, cooked meat (beef, ham, lamb, sausage, veal, pork, venison, rabbit, duck, goose or pheasant)

5 ounces diced salt pork

2 large onions, cut up

2 large leeks, washed and sliced

2 tablespoons flour

1 pound fresh mushrooms

1 to 2 cups water or bouillon broth

6 pounds sauerkraut

2 teaspoons salt

1 teaspoon pepper

2 teaspoons sugar

1 cup Madeira Wine

Fry salt pork until golden, but not crisp in a covered 8 quart kettle. Add onion and leeks. Stir fry 3 minutes. Stir in flour. Add mushrooms, simmer 5 minutes.

Drain and rinse sauerkraut. Add to kettle along with cooked meat, salt and pepper and sugar. Cover; cook over medium-low heat 1½ hours. Stir in wine, add more salt and pepper to taste. Simmer 15 minutes. Do not boil. Serves 12 to 16.

If meat should be prepared especially for this stew, each kind should be braised separately. Put meat into a dutch oven with 1 carrot, 1 stalk celery, 1 onion, 1 parsnip, 1 clove garlic, 1 sprig parsley, 5 peppercorns, 1 cup water, and 1 cup of wine. Simmer, covered until meat is tender.

PA Girl Wins National Recipe Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A Beaver County girl captured the grand prize in the first annual Turkey Lovers' Recipe Contest.

The recipe and essays submitted by 13-year-old Shannon Manz of Ellwood City were selected from 292 entries in a contest sponsored by the National Turkey Federation.

Shannon won a two-day, expense-paid trip to Washington, D.C. to receive her $1,000 prize. The presentation will be held in conjunction with the national campaign, "June is Turkey Lover's Month." It is scheduled for June 27 at 11:00 a.m. in the National Press Club.

In addition, Shannon's home economics department at Riverside Middle School receives a new microwave oven for classroom use. Round Hill Foods, Inc., an Adams County turkey processing company, posted a $500 bonus for a Pennsylvania winner.

Recipes were judged for taste, appearance, appeal and simplicity. Two written essays were also required, one describing the recipe's nutritional quality and the second describing the proper food handling techniques during preparation. Six professional home economists served as judges for the contest, open to young chefs nationwide, aged 12 to 18.

"My turkey breakfast pizza includes all the foods you would usually have for breakfast in one great easy recipe," Shannon wrote in one of her essays. "Turkey sausage is a very good breakfast alternative because it is low in calories and cholesterol."

Copies of the winning recipes are available by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to: Turkey Lovers' Recipes, National Turkey Federation, 11319 Sunset Hills Road, Reston, VA 22090.

Following is Shannon's grand prize recipe:

TURKEY BREAKFAST PIZZA

1 pound turkey breakfast sausage
1 8-oz. package refrigerated crescent rolls

1 cup frozen hash brown potatoes, defrosted

1 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese

5 medium eggs, beaten

¼ cup milk

¼ teaspoon salt

¼ teaspoon pepper

2 Tbs. grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F.

In a medium-sized skillet over medium heat, saute sausage 6 minutes or until no longer pink. Unroll crescent rolls and arrange them in a 12-inch round pizza pan with points toward center. Press rolls over bottom and up the sides of pan to form pizza crust, sealing perforations. Top crust with turkey sausage, potatoes and cheddar cheese.

In a small bowl combine eggs, milk, salt and pepper. Very slowly, pour egg mixture over turkey and potato mixture. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese over top.

Bake for 25 minutes. Serves 8.

For double-cheesy burgers, added shredded cheese to ground beef before shaping. As a rule, you can add about 1/2 cup (2 ounces) shredded cheese, such as Cheddar or Swiss, to 1 pound of ground beef. After cooking, top with a slice of another variety of cheese.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Though it was more years ago than I care to admit, the memory of that first cow acquisition remains vivid in my memory.

It was on a Sunday afternoon, along Route 30, some miles west of Gettysburg. Selection was skimpy and minus those preferred outstanding cow-type characteristics. Still, it was the beginning of a herd we would live with, day in and day out, over the ensuing quarter-century plus.

We weren't even married yet the day the Farmer presented me with that first trio of Holsteins from the little roadside gift shop.

That's right. Gift shop. Unlike today, cow-related objects were then scarce as hens' teeth. So when we spotted the diminutive ceramic bull, cow and calf, we purchased the unusual find that would grow into sort of an obsession — cow collecting. It's a hobby shared by oodles of other dairy farm wives, and more recently, a societal trademark of the back-to-basics, good-old-days, long-for-simpler things rebellion against the pressure and stress of modern life.

This current popularity of cow merchandise has eased the search, to the extreme of having small catalogs available handling exclusive cow items. And exclusive they are, some so pricey you can buy the real thing for less.

Like those at the barn, some of our house-cows have a history, a "pedigree" of sorts which makes them unique. Each "pedigree" is a memory of family, friends or occasion which thoughtfully contributed to our household herd.

A hands-down favorite of visiting kids is the black and white ceramic cowbell which dangles from the light over the kitchen table.

The bell is shaped like a cow head and the clapper its bright pink tongue peeking from the muzzle. Holiday gift of several years ago, the cowhead bell never fails to get comments from our guests.

Keeping company are several other cows hanging around the kitchen. One graces another, more classic, ceramic bell, and another, a wind chime, dangles four ceramic milk cans beneath. Five assorted cow potholders share display space with one of a pig, a concession to the youngest when he was going through his pigmania stage a few years back.

Other cows of shiny ceramics abound, on cups, mugs, trivets, a couple of cream-sugar-salt-pepper-sets and two lovely, though quite different, resting-cow butter dishes. In both cases, the reclining cow lifts off to reveal place for a quarter-pound stick of butter beneath. (Meanwhile, we spread our real butter from fake-crystal acrylic, durable enough to withstand the bangs and bumps of daily use that would shatter my prized collectibles.)

A steel cow coin bank collects dust above the kitchen cabinets and a wooden hand-carving of the five major breeds, with eyes so real-looking they almost move, keeps vigil over the living room.

Two tiny wooden carved cows are mementos from visits to a carving shop in Switzerland many years ago and to a local carvers' show of a few years back. A weather-vane-style wooden cow on the wall was designed and painted by a special friend.

Embroidery hoops frame stenciled cows and cross-stitched cows from other creative friends. Some of the cows are as soft as a new calf, like the plushy cow hand puppet in perpetual sheep on the sofa back, which at first glance looks like a snoozing cat.

Handy for a nap (a nap?) are cow pillows and cows marching across a woven coverlet, still another prized gift. A pincushion cow, cow windsock and apron adorned with cows come from shepherd friends who in return are "sheep stuff" recipients.

And on and on, T-shirts and sweatshirts, bumperstickers and beach bags, stamp pads and stickers, note cards, hats, jewelry, even a soft soap dispenser graced by, what else, a black and white cow.

Not to forget my favorite orange-colored stick 'em notes with little cow figures frantically rushing around a disheveled office and the terse description "udder chaos."

Kinda' sums up our lifestyle, not just during June Dairy Month, but year round: chaotic, but with a consistent theme.

Dear Golden Pride/Rawleigh:

In 1950, I was in a car wreck and got a fractured pelvis. In 1955, it started to bother me and the doctor put me on pain pills. I took four pain pills a day so I could get my work done. In 1978, I had my first hip operation. From that time on, I was on crutches or cane. Then in 1981, I had to have another operation on the same hip...During this operation, they about lost me on the operating table. Since it has come loose again, they say I need another operation...the doctors told me to put it off as long as I can since I had so much trouble last time.

In July 1989, I hurt my back and the doctor said he couldn't do anything for me and since then, the pain has never let up. The last of July 1989, I started taking Golden Pride (products) and I got relief. Four days after taking Golden Pride's Formulas #1 and #8, the pain has gone, I no longer need need my crutches and cane. After taking pain pills for 35 years, I don't have to take them anymore, I can go out and work all day without any pain in my back and leg. I have so much energy now, which I didn't before, and I work outside till dark. The only reason I go to bed is it's bedtime, but I'm not tired.

Now, I'm taking the Gold Pack, I plan to live longer and without pain, and I plan to take it the rest of my life.

Children Make Pudding At Pittsburgh Festival

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pudding-making and dairy games highlighted the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's booth at the fifth annual Pittsburgh Children's Festival on May 12 and 13. The festival, held on the north side of Pittsburgh during the second week of May, is presented by the Performing Arts For Children Series, Inc. and Pittsburgh Citiparks.

The dairy booth was part of the hands-on activities located in the West Park area of the festival. Visitors made their own chocolate pudding and received information about nutrition and the dairy industry.

"This festival offered the dairy industry a unique opportunity to talk to children and their parents," said Betsy Dupuis, PDPP promotions' specialist. "Parents were particularly interested in our nutrition activities and our information about the dairy industry. Everyone enjoyed the pudding-making and parents appreciated a simple but healthy snack idea for their children."

Area dairy princesses assisted with coordination of the pudding-making and the various dairy games which included, nutritious snack contests, cow drawing contests, and the "Bossey Toss" game. Contest participants received various items including a "Happiness is a Cow" coloring book, a "Follow the Milk Route" guide, bookmarks and rulers.

Other activities held during the festival involve performing arts including dance, music, puppetry, acrobatics, and theatre. The festival has an international flair with performers from the USSR, Finland, South Africa, and Canada.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program was reorganized by state law in 1987 to give dairy farmers direct control of product marketing. The program is voluntarily supported by more than 4,000 dairy farmers statewide.

Avoid Food Poisoning

Food poisoning is the result of a variety of microorganisms and bacterial toxins. The most common producer of food toxins is "staph."

These germs are commonly found on people's skin and are harmless on food unless they are allowed to multiply by warmth and a favorable culture medium. In the refrigerated or cooked food, the bacterium lie dormant, but when food is permitted to stay at room temperature for longer than two hours, some of the germs cannot be destroyed, even by cooking.

The taste, odor or looks of the food will seldom change because of the presence of these germs. Food scientists say that the average homemaker poisons her family at least twice a year!

To avoid food poisoning, keep cooked food hot until it is served. Don't think it is necessary to let food cool to room temperature before refrigerating it. Refrigerate foods in shallow containers to speed the cooling process.

Foods most likely to be affected by the bacterium are perishables like potato salad, fruit salads with whipped cream, milk, puddings and custards, white sauces, sandwich spreads, and meat and fish sandwiches.

The problem can be compounded if a careless food handler is allowed to prepare the food. Unclean hands or utensils will only intensify the problem. Make sure anyone or anything that comes in contact with your food is clean. Cooking or refrigeration will not guarantee safe food if the food handler is improperly preparing the food.

Dry Cleaning Fusibles

As you clear your closets of winter clothes and take those items that need dry cleaning to the cleaners, please take note of the following information:

Research has shown that tailored clothing made with a fusible interfacing may delaminate during dry cleaning if the moisture content of the solvent is not controlled. Similarly, garments may delaminate when steam is blown through them. To deter delamination some manufacturers are now labeling their tailored clothing "Professionally Dry-Clean, Low Moisture, Utility Press." Those of you who have tailored your own garments with fusible interfacing should request this same dry cleaning process.

Farm Women Rally Salutes 'America's First Farmer'

Franklin Co. Correspondent

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Nearly one thousand Society of Farm Women members from across Pennsylvania gathered May 23 for their annual Spring Rally. The Rally, which had an Indian theme, was a day-long affair, held in the Student Union Building of Dickinson College. The Cumberland and Perry County Farm Women Societies hosted the event.

This rally marked the 25th year a spring gathering was held. According to Margaret Smith, chairman of this year's Spring Rally Committee, the first rally was held April 21, 1966, in Dillsburg, with 693 women in attendance. Martee Mentzer of Carlisle, who was state president of the time and who was in attendance at this year's rally, "wanted to have something in the spring so members could meet and fellowship, especially those who couldn't attend the state meeting in January," Smith said.

Those who had helped to organize the first rally were recognized, as were those who had attended all 25 rallies. All the state officers and state directors were present, along with 12 county presidents.

Many of the women were dressed as Indians to incorporate the theme, "America's First Farmer — The Indian." According to Smith, this theme was chosen because the Cumberland-Perry County area is well-known for its Indian history. The theme was further carried out in the table decorations, which included teepees and crocheted Indian figures. The devotional period included an Indian Version of Psalm 23 and A Prayer of Chief Yellow Lark.

Harold Dellinger, an Indian historian from York, spoke on the Indian tribes which populated this area of Pennsylvania. Dressed as a Mohawk Indian, Dellinger illustrated his talk with many authentic Indian artifacts.

"The history books were not written by Indians," Dellinger said in introducing his program. He debunked many of the myths about Indians that movies and television shows have perpetuated.

"Indians were in tune with nature; they were smart enough to build cities, but they didn't want to," he said.

He also told the audience that if it had not been for the Indian women, the men would not have survived. "Women did most of the work," he said, "but they were not slaves." He recently asked an Indian woman why the women did so much of the labor. "The givers of life wanted to do the work," she replied, "and the men couldn't get it right, anyway."

Women continue to wield power in the tribes. "The clan mother has a lot of power," Dellinger said. "She can throw a chief out of office. This has nothing to do with women's liberation. Indian women have had free choice, as do all members of a tribe, since the start of the Iroquois nation in the year 500."

Dellinger demonstrated a blowgun, which he said is the oldest weapon in America. Darts made of thistle-down will go one inch into a tree trunk. Indians used the weapons to hunt animals for food.

"Indian people are just like you," Dellinger concluded. "They live in a house and drive a car or a pick-up truck. They want to be treated as human beings."

The Spring Rally committee planned the lunch to include such Indian foods as turkey and corn.

Afternoon speaker was Linda F. Smith, executive director of the Cumberland County Historical Society. She spoke about the Carlisle Indian School, which was founded in 1879 to educate Indian children. Occupying the abandoned buildings of the Army War College, the Indian School trained approximately 7,000 children from 70 tribes in the 39 years of its existence. Many of the present War College buildings were built by Indian students.

The school stressed industrial training for its students, Smith said. At one point, the students were so adept at shoemaking, farming, sewing, tinsmithing and wagon making that the school was able to supply the needs of many of the Western reservations and some other Indian schools.

Jim Thorpe, the school's most famous student, captained the football team in 1911-12 and brought international fame to his alma mater when he won two gold medals in the Stockholm Olympics.

Smith said that most graduates of the school returned to the reservations to live and work, while some were assimilated into white society.

"Two Nuts and a Bolt," a musical comedy group from Greencastle, provided the afternoon entertainment.

Chairman Margaret Smith was pleased with the way the Spring Rally turned out. "It was a big success," she said. "Everything went as scheduled, and we had a wonderful attendance. We've had lots of favorable comments."

TAKING TIME

Extension Home Economist

Perhaps this weekend will be an exception. Normally I spend Saturday, and unfortunately sometimes I spend Sunday, trying to catch up on all the things I didn't do during the week. Those things that HAVE to be done — putting away the clean laundry, sending the birthday card, weeding the small garden patch that has become overgrown with weeds after last week's rain, and vacuuming.

If I keep up this pace for very long, my body and my family tell me it's time to take a break. So when I talk about making the weekends count I don't mean cramming them full of activities that exhaust a person. I mean PLANNING hours to relax, touch base with your kids, and play.

Yes, adults can play. If we did that more often perhaps we'd have fewer ulcers. We all need to do some work, but don't let those "should's" steal precious time away from people.

A quick aside: Work can be fun. A morning in the pick-your-own patch, car washes, and folding laundry, when approached positively, can be fun. Cleaning out a closet can turn into a dress-up party for kids. I imagine some of your old skirts would bring a few chuckles to your teenager — then again, she may want to wear one to school on Tuesday.

Sometimes the best times are those inexpensive afternoons that happen almost spontaneously. But even the spur-of-the-moment walk to the park must be suggested by some brave soul (particularly if the rest of the family is comfortably parked in front of the television). Some farm families may say parking in front of the TV for a few hours is a luxury. Long work days rob families of time together.

If it's only the kids watching TV while you're scurrying around, limit the time the set is on. Don't use it as a babysitter. Carefully select the shows you will watch during the weekend. Maybe you all could sit around the table after supper on Friday night and have each person pick one show.

It's okay to insist on SOME family time — even with teenagers. You may want to set a reasonable limit — several hours together Sunday evening or early Saturday afternoon.

Create opportunities for hearty laughter. Have you ever played "Huff and Puff?" Clear a table or other flat surface. Place a ping pong ball in the center, and the family members sit around the edge. Start "huffing," and see if you can blow the ball over the side. You can do a similar activity with drinking straws and cotton balls. In the few minutes while you're waiting for the hot dogs to cook, play "Freeze." Place an unfolded paper napkin on each person's head. Try to walk around without allowing it to fall. Sorry to say, this is usually easier for kids to do than it is for grown-ups.

Pretend you have no electricity in your home for the evening. What would you do?

Remember to plan occasional "down-time" with other adults. For parents who stay home with children all week this is particularly important. Word games like Categories and Balderdash generate lots of laughter. You can invite neighbors over for an evening of fun with these or other board games. Cards are an old stand-by. If you're not a "games" person, suggest a potluck, backyard supper with another family. Hold it outside so you won't have to fuss with the cleaning that never quite gets done. Don't invite more than six people over at one time. It's too much work!

Even with your own family, simplify meals — serve them outside on the grass, spread a blanket on the family room floor or set up food buffet style in the kitchen.

Don't neglect your husband or wife! Allow time for you to be alone together — even if it's twenty

SCOTLAND (Franklin Co.) — Michele Mackey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Mackey, Edenville, recently became the 1990 Franklin County Apple Queen. Crowning took place at a meeting of the Franklin County ty minutes at the end of the day to snuggle on the couch and talk about the upcoming week's schedule.

Whatever you do, relax. Taking time to slow down helps your body recuperate from the stresses of the past week. DO NOT try to act on all these ideas each weekend. The point is to avoid working yourself into a frenzy doing things — even fun things. The weekends truly count when you take time to relax with family or friends, to listen to concerns, and to laugh together.

Miss Mackey is a junior at the James Buchanan High School, Mercersburg. She helps her parents in the operation of Mackey's Orchard at 9529 Circle Drive, Chambersburg.

As 1990 Franklin County Apple Queen, she will be responsible for the promotion of Franklin County apples and apple products at various events. Requests for her appearances should be made by contacting: Betty Kriner, Bingham's Orchard, 9823 Lincoln Way West, St. Thomas, PA 17252. (717-369-2218).

Ida's Notebook

Since my husband has retired from farming and milking cows morning and evening, he has kept himself busy with many tasks. He cut down many large trees along a fence row and has had cherry and walnut boards sawed. He built a picnic table for our backyard and immediately got an order from our youngest daughter for one for her yard. The second table was built in much shorter time than the first one.

And, I think he is trying to compete with me by putting in a second big garden. He has planted rows of potatoes, sweet corn and hull peas. We should have plenty to share with our son and his wife.

I've been cleaning off my windowsills and planting some houseplants in the garden. The edge of my garden, nearest the yard, contains a variety of flowers. But I fear for their survival as there is a nest of five kittens on the back porch. They are likely to play in the garden and break off my special flowers this summer.

Recently I joined a small group of people interested in touring the sites of the four original Landis brothers' homes in Lancaster County. These men were Benjamin born 1730, Abraham born 1739, Jacob born 1740 and Henry born 1744. Two of their homes have been restored and the other two have been destroyed in the name of progress. One site has become an Industrial Park and the other will be developed for houses.

It always bothers me to see an old farm house torn down so that a modern building can take its place. It seems to me that somewhere there would be someone willing to restore a house that has character and is not just a copy of the neighbor's house.

Milk-Flying High In Sullivan County.

DUSHORE (Sullivan Co.)—The 1990 Sullivan County June Dairy Month pageant committee, using the theme "Milk - Flying High in the '90's," has been hard at work on activities for the promotion of milk.

The promotion began in early May with the annual cow coloring contest for children sponsored with the aid of the county newspaper. Also in May, the Sullivan County Chamber of Commerce began the distribution of place-mats, which have an outline of the county, a list of dairy month activities, related dairy photographs and a calendar of major county events, to area restaurants.

Saturday, June 9, the annual Twilight Meeting will be held at the Robert Silverstrim's farm, Coveytown, at 7:45 p.m. Activities planned for the evening include the introduction of the future dairy princess and dairy maids, a program presented by the 4-H clubs, a cow judging contest sponsored by Sire Power, talks by farm personnel, music, and dairy food snacks. Paul Nichols of the Dairy Council will be Master of Ceremony.

Saturday, June 16, at 7:15 p.m. the Sullivan County June Dairy Princess Parade is held on Main Street, Dushore.

The parade will include the dairy princess candidate and dairy maids, guest princesses and queens from adjutant counties, floats built by businesses, youth groups, service organizations and individuals, the Sullivan County High School band and the Sullivan County Mystery Costume Wearer marching around the town.

After the crowning of the dairy princess, a huge ice cream sundae will be built to be shared by the spectators. While the sundae is being built, a goat milking contest will be held.

The evening climax will be the fireworks display sponsored by the Dushore Area Business Association, followed by a "Block Party Dance" sponsored by the Dushore Fire Company with music by the Gypsies.

Nutrition Kits

WESTMORELAND, N.Y. — The New York Beef Industry Council participated in the recent nationwide distribution of free nutrition kits to preschools with educational programs. Over twelve hundred kits have been distributed in New York State and over 30,000 kits have been distributed nationwide.

The kit, developed by the Education Department of the National Live Stock and Meat Board on behalf of the Beef Board, contains five colorful 14" x 22" posters showing fantasy creatures called The Munchsters involved in various food activities. The Munchsters introduce young children to good eating habits and encourage them to try new foods. The reverse side of each poster has a complete lesson plan, language activities involving food, recipes and cooking activities. The comprehensive teacher's guide includes a checklist for successful preschool cooking activities and suggestions for involving parents in food related activities.

Local preschools that have not already received a copy of the kit, can obtain The Munchsters Talk About Food free of charge by contacting The New York Beef Industry Council at 1-800-292-6922 or by writing to P.O. Box 250, Westmoreland, NY 13490.

Dome will help eliminate ammonia build-up. Your calves will be healthier and they'll grow faster. Your heifers will be part of your money-making milking herd sooner. And with three different dome styles to choose from, you can select the one that works best for you-- Poly Dome, Poly Square or Mini Dome.

Raising calves is no easy chore! But dairymen everywhere have discovered the benefits of raising their calves in Poly Dome Calf Nurseries. In fact, Poly Dome is the first choice of dairy farmers throughout the United States and Canada. After comparing Poly Dome Calf Nurseries with modified wooden hutches, the University of Minnesota-Morris found that Poly Dome calves were healthier and grew faster than calves kept in wooden huts. And Poly Dome is now being tested at several universities across the country with similar results.

According to an article from Vermont Technical College, this rotatable air vent distinguishes Poly Dome from other huts on the market

GLORIFIED RICE

1 cup rice (cooked)
1 cup sugar
1 small can pineapple (undrained)

2 envelopes Dream Whip
Sept. 1 - cover rice with water then cook off all the water, then add milk, just enough to cover rice good. You may need to add more milk until rice is cooked. Don't rinse the rice off - this is the secret to good rice.

Sept. 2 - Add sugar and pineapple, also the juice. Mix well and let set until the next day.

Sept. 3 - Mix Dream Whip as it says on the box then add to rice and mix well. Chill about two hours before serving time. You can top it with maraschino cherries if desired.

I use Carlonia rice, the reason for this it doesn't stick together when cooked or get gummy. I get it at the Giant store.

My name is Vickie Biehl. I never miss the women's section in the Lancaster Farming. I really enjoy the recipes and have tried a lot of them. I am always on the prowl for new ideas for my family. My husband operates a dairy farm in Kutztown with his parents. I have a 10-year-old son, Bradley. He really enjoys helping his dad on the farm. I also have a daughter, Kelly Lynn, 8. Her favorite pastime is riding her bike. We hope everyone has a safe and enjoyable summer!

We live on a 3-acre plot with a small barn for our horse. We grow about 2 acres of produce to sell. My husband also catches chickens at night. During the day, we operate a small bike shop. We sell new and used Bridgestone bikes and we repair bikes.

We have two girls, one is 2 years old and the other is 9 months old.

I piece quilt tops in my sparetime and I also like to bake.

ATTENTION CORN GROWERS

GET MAXIMUM YIELDS.

The Penn State Soil Nitrogen Quicktest is a rapid soil nitrate analysis designed to provide better information for making N fertilizer recommendations for corn. This test was developed at Penn State University.

Soil samples should be taken only from fields that have received less than 40 pounds of N as fertilizer prior to sampling this year for the soil test.

THE TEST IS BEST SUITED FOR THOSE FIELDS WHERE SOME RESIDUAL N AVAILABILITY IS SUSPECTED BECAUSE OF PREVIOUS MANURE APPLICATIONS, FORAGE LEGUME CROPS, OR HEAVY N FERTILIZER APPLICATIONS.

Sampling should be done during the first two weeks of June or at least one week before sidedressing is planned.

Twenty-four hour turnaround time. Results and recommendations phoned to sender. Copy of results then returned by mail.

Sample kits and price list available. Phone or write.

FORAGE BLEND

Route 2, Hampton, IA 50441

What it is...
Milage is a unique blend of specially selected milo and soybean varieties that compliment one another to maximize forage yield, protein content and palatability.

What it does...
Milage is a versatile forage crop that offers many advantages:
HIGH YIELDS. Yields as high as 18 tons (50% moisture) can be obtained with high management techniques. Yields of 8 to 12 ton are easily achieved on soils with good water holding capacity and proper nutritional balance
HIGH PROTEIN. Under the most ideal conditions, protein content can be as high as 18%. Generally, though, protein will most likely range between 12 and 16%
TDN. Milage will consistently provide TDN levels of 60-65%
LOWER COST. Compared to corn silage, Milage is a more economical crop to produce. No herbicide cost, no insecticide cost, much lower fertilizer costs and no cultivation add up to big savings on crop expenses

5 - 24 Ft. Models Now In Stock

28 Foot Length Shown

1 - 28 Ft. & 2 - 32 Ft. Models Now In Stock

Optional deck over the neck is 7 1/2 'x8'

The FLIP-UP BEAVERTAIL raises and lowers in seconds -- slide out ramps are stored under the beavertail. The Hillsboro Flatbed features a full 96" deck width which is more value than the competition.

The Hillsboro Flatbed is available in two styles; the 20' and 24' trailer with standard neck, and the 28', 30' and 32' trailer with heavy duty neck.

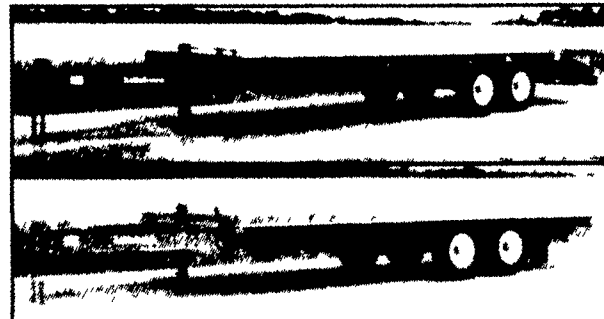

VERSATILE — RUGGED — RELIABLE and REASONABLY PRICED!

The Hillsboro Flatbed Trailer with flip-up beavertail can be the one trailer that means lower cost for you. Here's why!!

VERSATILITY! That's what makes a Hillsboro trailer such a good investment. With the beavertail down it's an excellent trailer for moving wheeled equipment. Flip the beavertail up and it adds an extra four feet of deck space for hauling hay and other bulky loads.

HERE'S WHAT HILLSBORO QUALITY MEANS - All Hillsboro trailers are manufactured in precise jigs and fixtures which assures excellent alignment of axles, a better pulling trailer, a level and square trailer.

HILLSBORO WORKMANSHIP INCLUDES-Exceptional weld quality, material that is chemically cleaned, two coats of high quality paint, material strength engineered into the best flat-bed value

CONSTRUCTED FOR YEARS OF MAINTENANCE-FREE SERVICE.

You'll get more out of an Eby aluminum grain body. Lightweight and rugged aluminum provides rigid, fuel-efficient support to fill your grain hauling needs.

Eby packs years of experience, workmanship and performance into every aluminum body it manufactures. And special Eby options let you customize your body to your individual operation. Available in standard lengths, each unit is designed to provide you with an investment in durable performance and practical economy.

Look over these outstanding features.

• Less weight. Eby aluminum bodies weigh up to 30% less than comparable steel and wood construction.

• Less maintenance. Aluminum construction won't rust or rot - never needs painting

• Long-life durability. Heavy-duty structural components and hollow-tube frame combine with aluminum floor and sides to stand up to years of hard work.

Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpertough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpertough does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

This 24' Ruffneck from M. H. Eby is an investment in quality

Your cows deserve the best

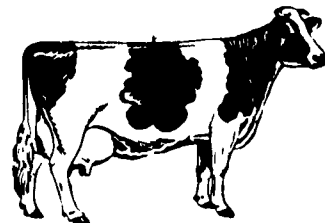

A new aluminum trailer, like this one from E.M. Eby, Inc., looks bright and clean when it comes from the factory. The surprising thing is it stays bright and clean for years — with very little maintenance.

Aluminum offers another big advantage over conventional wood and steel trailer construction. It's lighter — as much as 35% lighter.

Eby trailers are designed strong and built tough. Each trailer is custom made to your specifications.

Proof of durability for Eby trailers is their resale value. At five years old, many sell for as much as 90% of their original price.

Please call or write for more information and the name of the dealer nearest you.

Mid East UDIA Launches Dairy Month Campaign

COLUMBUS, OH — June is National Dairy Month, and the advertising and promotion program of Mid East United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA) will launch an extensive publicity campaign to heighten the awareness of the dairy industry, specifically real dairy products.

A diverse, fact-filled press kit will reach more than 300 newspaper editors, food editors and television and radio stations throughout Ohio, western Pennsylvania and parts of West Virginia and northern Kentucky. In addition, the kits will be sent to home economists, cooperative extension services, dairy processors and other industry organizations.

The June Dairy Month media campaign will focus on three essential dairy aspects - food, nutrition, industry - with articles, public service announcements, photographs and clip art.

Jenny plocher, consumer affairs specialist for Mid East UDIA, notes that this year's media kit will offer health-conscious consumers with good-tasting, versatile and nutritious dairy recipes and serving ideas. Other features will include dairy industry milestones, trivia, product trends and more.

The media kit will also focus on ice cream and frozen novelties, just in time for National Ice Cream Month - July.

Mid East UDIA is the dairy farmer-funded and directed advertising and promotion program serving Ohio, western Pennsylvania and parts of West Virginia and northern Kentucky. In a coordinated effort with 25 nationwide member organizations and affiliated Dairy Council Units of the United Dairy Industry Association, Mid East conducts unified programming through advertising, retail merchandising, food-service development, nutritious education, food publicity and communications.

Anyone interested in receiving a June Dairy Month press kit may contact Mid East UDIA, (614) 890-1800 or toll-free, 1-800-292-MILK.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES AND OPTIONS

Simple hydraulics allows one valve to operate the lift and stabilizer cylinders. Center plumbing means less hose length and easier coupling.

The basic box is heavy-duty steel welded seams, and reinforced for even more strength.
 Standard offset hitch adjusts in 5-inch steps to lengths from 6'3" to 7'11". To allow for different row crop spacings, you can offset either right or left 5, 7 1/2, 10 or 12 1/2 inches.

Rub rails offer more protection to vehicles when approaching, during dumping cycle, and when departing.

Stabilizer cylinders hydraulically lock on to axle to hold wagon rigid during dump cycle.

Galvanized roof features vent insert for straight-through air flow.

The model 700 dump wagon is designed for years of trouble free service. The hydraulic system with a cable assist is designed to unload large loads of up to 20,000 lbs. quickly and efficiently even if the load is not distributed evenly.

Make your operation safer • Use year round
 • Variety of crops • All field conditions
 • Operate in wet and muddy

Case International 1660 Axial-Flow Combines In Stock

When it comes to harvesting crops, this big crop-saver can save more grain than other combines in its size class. It has the muscle to "get in and get out" fast to make the most of each day of good harvesting weather. It consistently turns out cleaner grain so you can get top market price. Put a 1660 to work and take advantage of these field-proven features:

- Axial-Flow Design: Uses a single rotor with fewer moving parts and fewer problems than conventional combines using the cylinder-and-concave design. Its more gentle threshing action means less cracked grain and top price for every bushel.

- Human-Engineered Cab: Provides day-long comfort for increased operator productivity.
- 180 hp Turbocharged Diesel and 3-Speed Hydrostatic Transmission: Plenty of power to handle soft soils and hilly terrain.
- 1015 Pickup Header: Available in 11- and 13-foot widths. Hydraulic variable speed drive lets you match crop pickup to ground speed for smooth delivery with minimum shattering.
- 1010 Rigid and 1020 Flexible Cutterbar: Direct Cut Headers also available in several widths from 15 to 30 feet depending on model.
- 1000 Series Corn Heads in four to eight row sizes.

LESS FUEL PER ACRE. . . WITH A CASE IH xpe AXIAL FLOW COMBINE

For Over 10 Years the Words AXIAL FLOW have meant two things: BETTER GRAIN & MORE OF IT. But now, you can add something else to that list: EXTRA POWER and ECONOMY

AXIAL FLOW combines are now powered by the CASE IH NCE engines. These all new "state of the art" engines are designed with more torque reserve and even better fuel efficiency. And that spells more acres and more bushels of grain from every gallon of fuel.

There is a model to match your needs...	MODEL	ENGINE

clods and firming the soil for better contact between the seeds and soil. Small stones are pressed down and air pockets are eliminated so moisture can be drawn up from below by capillary action. The loose surface mulch retards evaporation and conserves moisture

The NEW P10 Series features a transport concept wherein the frame rotates over the wheels which considerably reduces drawbar hitch weight. Working width is 10' to 16' on these machines.
Other single gang pulverizers, with transport options are available in working widths from 9'6" up to 20'

Dear Valued Customer,

A.B.C. Groff, Inc., has been in the farm equipment business since 1890. With your partnership, we have built a successful enterprise despite the ups and downs of the economy. Now we want to celebrate this milestone in a special way. We have chosen Friday, the 8th and Saturday the 9th of June 1990 for that purpose. There will be an official kick off at 12:00 noon on Friday the 8th.

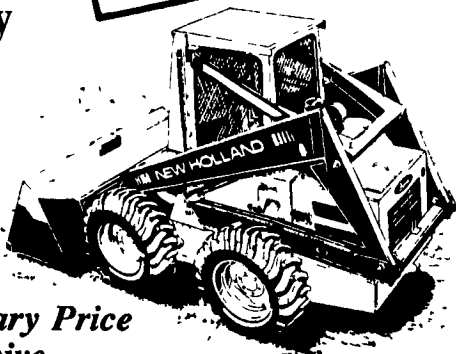

Live music and food will be served both days from 11:00 AM till 2:00 PM. There will be equipment and part specials from Thursday the 7th of June, 1990 till Saturday the 9th. In addition, there will be door prizes and other activities.

I want to extend a warm welcome to you and your family to participate in these festivities and help us make it a success.

Sincerely yours,
Robert E. Martin

BOOST PASTURE YIELDS for MORE PROFIT!

New techniques in pasture management are lowering feeding costs for hundreds of leading farmers and ranchers.

A single pass aerates pastures, scatters droppings, helps control parasites, increases grass quantity and quality. Adjustable penetration. Flexes to cover every inch of the ground. Unique tine design allows operation at twice the speed of other harrows cutting labor costs by up to 50%.

MORE USES:

- Pulls behind broadcaster to cover small grains and grass seeds.
 - Incorporates herbicides into top 2-3" of soil for maximum herbicide effectiveness.
 - Prepares finer seedbeds in open soil or in turf without disturbing existing growth.
- 4 to 24 ft widths. No maintenance. Easy to store. Thousands in use.

MOVE MOUNTAINS WITHOUT MOVING A FOOT.

Case Uni-Loader® skid steers not only out dig, out lift, out carry and out load most others — they also take a big load off your feet. That's because speed, direction and all loader functions are controlled by two hand levers. You can maneuver easier and work faster. There are other advantages too: self-leveling loaders, simple external chain-tension adjustment, separate hydraulic and chain/sprocket oil systems reduce maintenance and downtime. Let your hands do the working with a Case Uni-Loader skid steer — the easy way to get a handle on tough chores

GET THE EXTRA EDGE

Put a Vicon three-bladed disc mower conditioner through wet, heavy, tangled crops. Then compare the difference

With almost double the number of cuts per minute over two-bladed disc competitors, and six times the cuts per minute over sicklebar systems, it's easy to understand the clean, fast, NO PLUG performance of Vicon KM disc mower conditioners.

Add the extra suction created by Vicon's unique triangular discs, the full swivel hitch that lets you cut square corners on the move, and gentle, full width conditioning, and you're looking at a high capacity machine that puts productivity in a whole new dimension. Four models cut from 7' to 10'6" widths.

Vicon's got the edge. The extra edge.

CORN JUICE!

Have you inspected your silo door system lately?

Failure to perform routine regular maintenance may cause a fall resulting in serious injury or death to you and your employees.

The highly corrosive environment present in a silo chute will result over time in the deterioration of steel, metal and concrete.

A proper safety inspection must include the following:

- Wood doors for rot and damage
- Bolts and bolt heads for corrosion and tightness
- Door steps for corrosion and damage
- Latches for corrosion and damage
- Cast-iron hinge eyes for tightness and corrosion
- Concrete door frames for deterioration and physical damage (Doors must seat properly in door frames for latch systems to work effectively.)

ATTENTION FARMERS Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?

FOR FAST BLOWING USE THE NEW 1200 MULTI-FLO SPREADER!

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Swine Management News

DR. RICHARD BARCZEWSKI
Extension County Agricultural Agent
University of Delaware

Over the last few years, we've all become more aware of the impact our actions have on the environment. Recently, we celebrated the 20th anniversary of Earth Day. Perhaps some feel this celebration does not directly involve them. As a matter of fact, some may even question the importance of setting aside a day to celebrate Earth. For me, however, this day signifies an important change in the public's attitudes about our environment.

Farmers have always been stewards of the Earth. To assume, as some critics have, that farmers are part of the problem is ridiculous. This doesn't mean there isn't room for improvement, but the farming community does have a genuine concern for the environment.

As individuals, we can play a part in changing our actions which adversely affect our environment. We need to be even more aware of ways we, as individuals and as a concerned society, can reserve and conserve our natural resources.

We must also minimize the pollution we generate. We have to reduce the amount of trash we produce. Homeowners need to use fertilizers, pesticides, and household chemicals with care and dispose of waste automobile oil, paint, solvents, and other chemicals properly.

It may be harder for hog farmers to see where they can make a difference, but I like to cover a few areas I know we can improve. First we have to make a better effort to manage our manure resources. Hog manure has valuable nutrients in it that can be used to produce agricultural crops. In order to properly use these resources, manures should be tested to determine the quantity of nutrients it contains. Then manure can be applied at proper rates.

If we don't store and use these manures in the right way, excess nitrogen can leach through the soil and into the groundwater where it can contaminate our drinking water. Another possible problem with improperly applied manure is through surface water runoff. If this occurs, the nutrients in the manures can contaminate surface waters and result in algae blooms in lakes and ponds, which threatens aquatic life balances.

Water conservation requires our diligence as well. Leaky hog water bowls or nipples can cost you plenty. While it's hard to put a price on your well water, consider this. It takes electricity to pump that water up the well and into the hog house. That electricity comes from a generating plant which may use fossil fuels in the process. If so, a leaky waterer costs us not only the fossil fuel used to generate the electricity, but it also has a negative impact on the air quality, since the burning of fossil fuels pollutes our air.

Feed is a renewable resource that we rarely think of as a contaminant, but feed also contains nitrogen and should be conserved. It doesn't take much time to adjust your feeders to minimize feed waste. By avoiding waste, you also conserve your inputs in producing the grain that goes into the feed.

It may seem as though I'm making a big deal out of a little water and feed loss, but every individual action adds up. If we ignore these small problems, the total impact of our actions gets really big in a hurry. It's unfortunate that we've let some things in the environment deteriorate.

My father tells me stories about fishing and crabbing in the Delaware River, north of Wilmington, when he was a boy. Since that time, the Delaware River has gone down in quality and come back. Concern about the quality of the Chesapeake Bay is real, and a group of people is working for its cleanup.

We can no longer ignore the impact our actions have on the environment. I'm trying to do a better job around my own home, always keeping the environment in mind. You, too, need to keep the environment in mind when working around your farm and home.

Environmentalism is no longer a far-out, radical idea. The concern is real and the consequences, if we don't do anything, too awful to think about. The time has come for each and every one of us to take seriously our responsibility to the Earth around us. Our individual actions add up. Let's make our actions work for us and our planet.

Angus Re-Elects Considine

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Members of the Maryland Angus Association met in Hagerstown, MD, for their annual meeting and re-elected Judith Considine, Middletown, MD, as president for the coming year.

Other officers re-elected include Dr. Lee Leak, Dickerson, vice president, and Sam Riggs, Olney, treasurer. Ned Sayre, Churchville, completes the officer team as the new secretary.

Members voted in the following directors to a three-year term on the board: Dan Davis, New Windsor; Emmett Full, Mt. Airy; Darrell Johnson, Mt. Airy; Bob Kegal, Union Bridge; and Sherri Smith, West Friendship.

The Maryland Junior Angus Association also met and elected new leaders. Troy Eyler, Thurmont, will serve as president; Heather Hamm, Clarksburg, vice president; Angie Johnson, Mt. Airy, secretary; Tim Clark, Mt. Airy, treasurer; and Chris Mullinix, Woodbine, as historian.

There were several awards presented to Maryland Angus members during the annual meeting. The 1989 Maryland Angus Family Award was presented to the David Brauning Family, Finksburg. Dr. Lee Leak received the 1989 Maryland Angus Breeder Award.

Heather Hamm will reign as the 1990 Maryland Angus Queen and Angie Johnson will serve as princess.

The state's annual field day will be held at McGill Creek Farm, Earleville, on July 14.

Proteins Could Lead To Cattle Vaccine

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A malaria-like disease of cattle worldwide could be thwarted if a vaccine can be made from proteins discovered by U.S. Department of Agriculture and university researchers.

Their laboratory studies have identified several of the proteins of Babesia as promising candidates for making a vaccine, said Willard L. Goff of USDA's Agricultural Research Service. Babesia is a powerful protozoan microbe that causes cattle tick fever.

Even though there hasn't been a major outbreak of cattle tick fever in the continental U.S. since the 1940s, it remains a threat. No vaccine or drug for the disease (bovine babesiosis) is approved for use on livestock in this country, according to Goff.

But with further work, one or more of the proteins "might prove the ideal basis for a new vaccine to protect American cattle and herds overseas from the disease," said Goff, a microbiologist in Pullman, Washington.

He and ARS colleagues there and co-investigators at Washington State University, Pullman and the University of Florida, Gainesville, are cooperating in the studies.

Lamb Carcass Evaluation Set

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.)—The 1990 Lamb Carcass Evaluation will be held June 19 and 21, 1990. This event is sponsored by the Wool Pool, Delaware Valley College, and Penn State Extension.

Whether you are a newcomer to the sheep business or a seasoned veteran, you can learn a great deal by putting a lamb in this evaluation. Lambs will be evaluated "on foot" on Tuesday, June 19 and then slaughtered and their carcasses will be evaluated on Thursday, June 21. You will be given the opportunity to judge all lambs on foot, and then compare your placings to how the lambs fair "on the rail."

On Foot will be held on Tuesday, June 19, 6:30 p.m. at the Delaware Valley College Livestock Farm. On Rail will be Thursday, June 21 at 7:00 p.m. at Gehman's Meats in Morwood.

Lamb evaluation rules include:

- There is a limit of three entries per farm.
- We will need at least 15 lambs entered to hold this event. A maximum of 25 lambs will be accepted.
- Ewe, ram, and wether lambs will be accepted.
- Minimum weight of lambs will be 80 pounds.
- There will be three classes: light, medium and heavyweight. Classes will be established at weigh-in.
- Lambs will be judged on foot and then slaughtered and evaluated for back fat thickness, loin eye area, overall carcass quality, and other important carcass and growth traits. You will receive a computer printout of all lambs' carcass data.
- Slaughter charge is $10 per lamb.
- Each exhibitor will have the option of (1) taking the whole carcass home or (2) having it processed at Gehman's at a cost of $.35/pound of carcass.
- Ribbons will be awarded in each class; a plaque will be awarded to the champion carcass.

A vaccine used in other countries contains a live but weak form of Babesia that has caused some injected animals to contract the disease. But injecting cattle with a protein-based vaccine "would boost protection," said Terry F. McElwain at Washington State University. "We want a vaccine that stimulates cattle antibodies not only to block the protozoan from entering red blood cells, but also to kill the microorganism."

Normally, the Babesia protozoan doesn't make enough proteins for scientists to study. But the Washington State University researchers cloned several genes into helpful bacteria that "act like tiny factories, churning out enough protein for us to study," Goff said.

Goff said the research findings also may help physicians studying malaria because of similarities between the two diseases.

Ticks can harbor the Babesia protozoan and transmit it when they bite cattle. Symptoms include loss of appetite, with a costly lack of weight gain and, in dairy cattle, a drop in milk production. "Babesiosis is not always fatal," he said, "but adult cattle are more likely to die from it than younger animals."

Babesia-carrying ticks in Mexico or the Caribbean increase risk of infestation on the U.S. mainland, where the disease could cost the cattle industry as much as $500 million a year, Goff said.

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service closely monitors shipment of cattle across the U.S.-Mexico border to prevent tick invasions. Ranchers in a buffer zone north of the border routinely immerse their herds in a tick-killing chemical.

Goff said the researchers also are working on two types of new biochemical probes that veterinarians or ranchers might use one day to diagnose the disease. One probe, called a monoclonal antibody, seeks and binds to specific Babesia proteins inside samples of cattle blood or tick tissue. Another probe finds the protozoan's genetic material, or DNA, in tick or cattle specimens.

"Either probe," said Goff, "might someday replace today's techniques, which don't work well enough if the tick or cow has only a very low-level infection."

Cattle are susceptible to four species of Babesia. Other species infect cats, dogs, horses, sheep, and other mammals including, rarely, humans.

STAND UP AND BE COUNTED

Robert Rugaber
Department of Poultry Science

Poultry and other livestock producers need to stand up and declare their dedication to animal welfare.

It is a matter of record that many of America's poultry and livestock farmers are world leaders when it comes to promoting the comfort of their animals. They are, for the most part, the epitome of an animal welfareist.

Scientific research and just good common sense have taught us that chickens that are sick, malnourished, uncomfortable, or otherwise abused are just not profitable. So it stands to reason that the successful poultry producer is often one who pays the greatest attention to the birds' welfare.

Today's poultry industry is now the most scientific in animal agriculture. Modern "hen houses" are designed to meet the bird's every need. No more freezing in winter and roasting during the summer. No longer do chickens stand in their own droppings.

The environment of the modern, well managed, cage layer house is carefully monitored 24 hours per day. Dust, heat, and stale air are removed and fresh air is brought in so that the birds are comfortable year-round. Carefully balanced feed rations are kept before hens at all times and fresh water is always available.

In the "good old days," chickens wandered around the barnyard scratching for grain that had passed previously through the digestive system of another animal. Pullets and meat birds were grown on free range — they had to be, because we didn't know how to care for them any other way. Were the birds happier? Well, up to half of them were lost to predators such as hawks, owls, foxes, skunks, raccoons, stray dogs, or even the house cat.

Being snatched unceremoniously off one's perch in the dark, then torn apart while still alive doesn't really sound like fun. Then there were the lice, mites, and intestinal worms.

At that time, poultry medicine was in its infancy. Marek's, a cancer-type disease of chickens, and coccidiosis, a killer of young birds, raged out of control. Livability was low. Since then, research, improved management methods, new medication, and a vaccination for Marek's have brought these conditions under control.

I don't want to be liberated back to living in a cave and I doubt that the chicken does either.

Hens housed in cages are a favorite target of the radical animal welfareist. But let's take a look at the real situation. Properly managed layers appear to be happy creatures. Just step into their house and listen to them "sing." It's almost deafening! Laying hens in cages will attain a peak production of well over 90 percent and hold high levels for many months — certainly better than hens handled in the manner some would have us return to.

Does this sound cruel? Today's chicken has a diet far superior to most of the world's human population. She almost never goes hungry or thirsty; hen housing is state of the art; and she is protected from parasites, disease, and her enemies. Livability is high, there is little air pollution, and she is among her friends.

Animal Rights And You

The USDA receives more mail concerning the care of animals than almost any other topic. Much of this mail is from people concerned that modern farming practices result in animals being mistreated.

The animal rights/animal welfare movement cannot be ignored. Legislators told a recent meeting of an agricultural professional society and farm group representatives that animal rights was among the top two or three topics they received mail on.

What many dismissed as a radical minority a few years ago is turning into a very well supported and financed organization that is attracting a lot of attention in Washington. These groups play on society's good feelings toward pets and use distortions, half truths, fear, and the general ignorance of the public to sell their message.

What do we know about this issue? It's not going to go away. People are concerned and want to feel that animals are cared for humanely. Most people, including our legislators, don't know how farm animals are kept.

Congress will act based on the interest shown by constituents mail. Some of the driving force behind this movement is aimed at stopping, the use of animals for food, clothing, education, and even development of medicine and health procedures.

Why should you care? Do you depend on animals or people who raise animals for your livelihood? Do you include animal products in your diet? Do you take advantage of modern medicines and surgical procedures?

What can you do? Keep your legislators informed as to how you feel about the care and use of animals. Help your legislators and their staffs become acquainted with animal agriculture in Pennsylvania. Become familiar with the many issues that are included under the umbrella of animal rights or animal welfare (state and national farm organizations can provide information.) Participate in activities that help nonfarm people understand how animals are cared for on farms in your area. Help people remember that farmers have always been concerned with the welfare of animals and put in many long hard days (and nights) caring for them. Educate publishers, reporters, food editors, pet columnists, and wildlife reporters. Be available to help them interpret stories from non-agricultural people about animal agriculture.

If your letter is not among the ones received by Congress and the USDA, your viewpoint won't be heard or counted. Can you afford to be too tired or too busy to enter into this discussion? Below find the addresses of your state and national congressman and senators and the USDA. Write today!

Sheep Reference Book

The American Sheep Industry Association publishes a book titled "Sheep Production Handbook." Even though it has a slant towards large, western sheep production, it is still an excellent reference for beginners and experts alike.

The book can be obtained by writing to the American Sheep Industry Association, 6911 South Yosemite Street, Englewood, CO 80112. The cost is $40.

Acute Selenium Poisoning In Sheep

In a report from "Veterinary News", nearly 10 percent of ewes in a flock of 181 became ill 4 to 8 hours following injections of Bo-Se. Clinical signs included bloat, teeth grinding, abdominal pain, marked depression, difficult breathing, and froth from mouth. Eight abortions and three deaths occurred 20 to 24 hours following injections. Analysis of blood sera from affected ewes revealed abnormally elevated Se levels.

These ewes have had access to commercial protein blocks medi-

Ivomec Drench

Introduced As Alternative

IVOMEC is now available as an oral drench formulation for use in sheep. It was previously available only as an injectable formulation for cattle and swine.

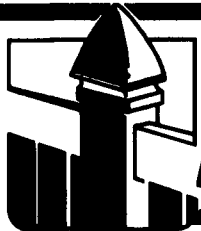

The approved product is a clear liquid, ready for use in conventional drenching equipment. The product controls a broad spectrum of parasites, including gastrointestinal roundworms, lungworms, and nasal bots, and is available from MSD AGVET, a division of Merck & Co., Inc.

A nationwide survey of sheep producers showed their number one concern is the control of gastrointestinal parasites.

Deere's Net Income Up

MOLINE, IL — Deere & Company reported record second quarter 1990 net income of $144.0 million or $1.90 per share, an increase of 10 percent over net income of $130.5 million or $1.74 per share in 1989's second quarter. The second quarter of Deere & Company's fiscal year ended April 30.

Worldwide net sales and revenues increased 11 percent to $2.120 billion in the second quarter of 1990 from $1.915 billion in the same quarter last year. Net sales and revenues include net sales to dealers of farm and industrial equipment, which were $1.852 billion in the current quarter, an increase of 11 percent over sales of $1.671 billion in the second quarter of 1989. Net sales and revenues also include revenues from the company's credit, insurance and health care operations, which totaled $237 million in the second quarter this year, compared with last year's $219 million.

For the first six months of 1990, worldwide net income totaled $222.5 million or $2.94 per share, a 24 percent increase over net income of $178.9 million or $2.39 per share in the first half of 1989.

Worldwide net sales and revenues for the first six months of 1990 increased 14 percent to $3.760 billion, compared with $3.287 billion in the first half of 1989. Net sales of farm and industrial equipment increased 15 percent during the first half of 1990 to $3.228 billion, compared with $2.812 billion during the same period of 1989. The company's financial services revenues grew to $474 million this year, compared with $428 million in the first half of 1989.

Production tonnage increased eight percent in the first six months this year, but was relatively unchanged in the second quarter.

In a joint statement, Robert A. Hanson, and Hans W. Becherer, president and chief executive officer said, "North American retail sales of John Deere agricultural equipment remained strong in the second quarter of 1990, continuing the trend we have been experiencing. Domestic retail sales of our lawn and grounds care products were also higher during the second quarter and first half of 1990."

Despite lower construction activity in some areas, retail sales of John Deere industrial equipment in North America were higher this year, compared with the second quarter and first half of 1989, according to the company. Overseas retail demand for our farm and industrial equipment was also higher during each of the first two quarters of 1990.

The company's worldwide equipment operations, which exclude the financial services subsidiaries, had net income of $113.2 million in the second quarter this year, up 12 percent from $101.4 million in the same period of 1989. For the first six months of 1990, these operations earned $156.1 million, an increase of 35 percent over net income of $115.7 million in the first half of 1989.

According to the company, the second quarter and year-to-date improvements are attributable to the company's North American operations, resulting primarily from increased sales, higher production volumes, and improved operating efficiency. Additionally, the six month results last year were adversely affected by the manufacturing start-up of new combines and large tractors.

Net income of the company's credit, insurance, and health care subsidiaries totaled $29.1 million in the second quarter this year, compared with $25.7 million in the same period in 1989. For the first six months of 1990, net income of these subsidiaries was $63.5 million, compared with $56.8 million last year. The improved earnings, which occurred in the company's credit operations, resulted mainly from a larger volume of receivables acquired and financed this year, and from gains on sales of retail notes to other financial institutions during the first six months of 1990.

North American agricultural conditions continue to be favorable, and our outlook for retail sales of John Deere agricultural equipment remains positive, according to Hanson and Becherer.

Toys, Past And Present

"The Toy and the Real McCoy... John Deere Toys and the Real Products They Replicate" is a new book which features past and present John Deere toys. The book will be available July 9 from John Deere dealers within the U.S. for $14.95.

MOLINE, IL — "THE TOY AND THE REAL McCoy... John Deere Toys and the Real Products They Replicate," a new book which features past and present John Deere toys, is being published by Deere & Company. In this book, the toys are used to trace the development, growth, and diversification of the John Deere Product line since the turn of the century.

For more than 45 years, the Ertl Company of Dyersville, Iowa has manufactured the scale-model toys through an agreement with John Deere.

Ralph Hughes, Deere's director of advertising, said the book is written for the thousands of people — both youngsters and adults — who collect scale-model John Deere toys. It features not only farm-product toys, but also toys patterned after John Deere construction and grounds-care equipment.

"Each time a new John Deere toy is introduced by Ertl, collectors ask for more information about the real John Deere product after which the toy was patterned," Hughes said. "The toy carton lists some information. But this book will give the collectors a lot more specifications and performance facts."

The 6 x 9-inch book will be available at John Deere dealers within the U.S. and from the Ertl Company, Hwy 136 & 20, Dyersville, IA 52040 on July 1, 1990. Suggested retail price is $14.95.

Bolt-Together Construction

Because of its bolt together construction the ST 100 can be assembled in cramped spaces impossible with larger units or with single piece units. For instance a disassembled ST 100 will easily clear through a standard 28" x 68" doorway. You assemble the ST 100 on whatever site you choose. Two people can usually complete the assembly in about half a day. You need no special tools, no special training, no special procedures. Thanks to such special features as bolt together construction and swingaway chain case, you can perform regular maintenance, make any repairs with a minimum of effort.

Farm Equipment Supplier Celebrates 100 Years

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — New markets and new products have kept A.B.C. Groff, Inc., growing despite the ups and downs of the industry.

Being in the retail farm equipment business for 100 years, this company has been through it all. The challenge it faced with surviving the down turn of the agricultural industry in the 1980s was no exception.

Although many dealers did not survive the 1980s, A.B.C. Groff not only survived, but thrived. "While many dealers have given up on the ag equipment business, we have not. In fact, we have actually expanded ours and have made an even stronger commitment to agriculture," said Robert Martin, A.B.C. Groff, Inc. president and general manager.

A large part of the stronger commitment was the recent addition of Ford and Versatile tractor lines. The company now handles two major tractor and equipment lines — John Deere and Ford New Holland.

A.B.C. Groff has also expanded into new markets with the addition of new products. Hardi sprayers; Nibex precision vegetable seeders; Kuhn hay, tillage and fertilizer equipment; Aer-Way aerators and chain harrows; and Hoelscher specialized hay handling equipment are just a few of the newcomers to the expanding product line.

The company also builds a specialized 2-row corn planter called the "Versa-Frame," which is designed primarily for the sweet corn grower.

Recent years have also found the company expanding into the construction equipment business. Increased sales of skid-steer loaders and tractor loader backhoes have been another boost to the company success.

While increasing sales of construction equipment, Groff is also pursuing business with the government. "We have put special emphasis on federal government sales," said Thomas Verghese, Groff's controller. "That includes commercial mowers, loaders, and backhoes," he added. Dealing with the government involves long lead times and strict equipment specifications. "It is a totally different business," Verghese said. The company also has a thriving lawn and garden business, along with hardware and animal health care departments.

A.B.C. Groff, Inc., located at 110 S. Railroad Ave., was purchased in 1978 by Robert E. Martin, his father Earl F. Martin, and brother-in-law Jay Carpenter. Robert Martin, 39, is president and general manager; Jay Carpenter 38, is secretary; and Earl Martin, a long-time employee and major stockholder of the company, is now retired.

The company today employs about 30 full-time employees and 15 part-timers.

Robert Martin pointed out the employees are one of the major ingredients of the company success. "One of the challenges is to keep quality people around," he said. Key people in sales are Mike Shotzberger, Ford New Holland sales; Bill Beck, John Deere sales; Jay Carpenter, lawn and garden sales; and Dwight McFadden, government sales.

Sales, however, have not been the only area of concentration for the Groff organization. "We are constantly improving our parts and service departments," said Martin.

"We realize how important quality service and parts are to our customers and we take pride in providing it."

He pointed out that a large percentage of Groff's business comes from repeat customers. The number of technicians in the service area has doubled over the last few years. Technicians are schooled year-round by the Tech-Com Ford New Holland Service Training program and Pathfinder John Deere Service Training program. Key people in the service area are Gary Shotzberger, service manager and Walter Newcomer, assistant service manager.

The company operates two complete parts departments to supply parts for the many lines of equipment they carry. Russell McDowell is parts manager for the John Deere area and Nelson Horning manages the Ford New Holland area. The company today stocks more parts than ever before and it was noted that percentage of orders filled over the counter has been increasing. The parts departments are also connected to the latest computer parts search systems with both John Deere and Ford New Holland.

Robert Groff has recently come back to the John Deere parts, area benefiting it with his 21 years of experience.

Location is also a key ingredient in the success of A.B.C. Groff's business. "We are next to the New Holland sales barn, which attracts a lot of farmers from the Northeast. Being in New Holland also helps because it is the headquarters of Ford New Holland," Martin said.

Groff is one of the largest John Deere and Ford New Holland dealers in the Northeast. It also has one of the largest skid loader shops in southeastern Pennsylvania, according to Martin. "One question we are often asked is 'What does A.B.C. stand for,' in the company name," said Martin. One hundred years ago Abraham Bare Groff started selling fertilizers and farm equipment to neighbors and friends. He used a barn as a warehouse for equipment. The original building was constructed in 1893 and a new building went up at the present location in 1903, with additions made in 1928 and 1950.

During the early years the business was known as "A.B. Groff," after its founder. "In those days" said Robert Martin, "most of the selling was with a handshake."

Some of the products that the company handled in the early years included McCormick Deering, Dellinger, Caterpillar, New Idea, and Quaker feed seeds. The company contracted with New Holland Grassland Machinery in 1903 and the first contract with John Deere Tractors was signed in 1915, making A.B.C. Groff the oldest New Holland and John Deere dealer in the area.

Later, when Abraham's son Charles took over the business, the "C" was added, making the company name "A.B.C. Groff" as it is today. Charles operated the business until 1963, when the company was incorporated and half of the stock was sold to its employees. In 1967, the employees purchased the remainder of the stock and then purchased additional real estate, according to Martin.

Now, entering what many consider to be the agricultural equipment industry's best year, and certainly a banner year for A.B.C. Groff, the company is celebrating its 100th year with a big gala. Friday, June 8 at 12 noon will be a ribbon-cutting, attended by local and state dignitaries. Festivities on June 8 and 9 will include, among other activities, parts and machinery specials and giveaways.

Use The Nitrogen Soil Test

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The nitrogen soil test for corn is a test that was developed at Penn State to better manage corn nitrogen resources to save fertilizer dollars, and to reduce possible groundwater contamination by nitrates.

The Cumberland County extension office will be offering this test to any Cumberland County farmer who is interested. The cost will be $2.00 per sample. Soil probes are available at the office. The best time to test is when your corn is between 10 inches - 20 inches tall, or 1-2 weeks before sidedressing. The approximate dates are May 20-June 15, depending when your corn was planted.

Fields that should be tested include.

- Only corn fields.
- Fields with a history of manure application or legume production.
- Fields that have had less than 50 lbs. of chemical fertilizer at planting.

Lean Beef At Grocery

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Consumers who eat leaner beef must be happy because there is a lot more of it on grocery shelves, said a marketing analyst with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"Much of the increase has happened since USDA replaced the 60-year-old 'USDA Good' label with the new 'USDA Select' quality grade standard two years ago," according to Dr. Jimmy Wise of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

Since USDA responded to consumer and industry group petitions for the name change in November 1987, the amount of officially graded leaner beef has increased by more than 700 percent.

"Consumers told us they wanted a more positive description of leaner meat available in grocery stores, and they got it," said Wise.

Nutrition-conscious consumers who wanted the name change maintained that the "Good" label misled buyers into thinking meat was mediocre. When the "Good" grade was first established in the 1920s, it described the amount of fat or marbling in a cut of meat. Today, less fat is considered by nutritionists to be more healthy, and leaner meat is better for you than just plain "Good," consumers told USDA.

Wise said the name change was important because it was a cooperative effort to change standards and was supported by consumer, health, and industry groups as well as the federal government. In June 1986, the consumer group Public Voice for Food and Health Policy petitioned USDA to change the standard name from "Good" to "Select." The change was supported by 12 other consumer-health organizations, including the American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association, the Center for Science in the Public Interest, and the Consumer Protection Federation of America.

In response, USDA published a proposal to rename the "Good" grade. The proposal also was supported widely by the beef cattle and packing industries, including the American Meat Institute, the National Cattlemen's Association, and the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"Select came about because of welcome coalition between industry and consumers," said Wise. "Select is selling, and that wouldn't be happening if people weren't happy with it. Industry is responding by providing more leaner beef for grading, and more retailers are beginning to carry the product."

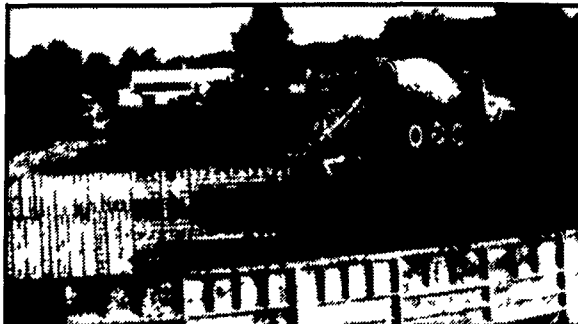

In the three months prior to the official name change, only 49,714 pounds, or 1.7 percent of all graded beef, was graded "Good." By the final quarter of 1989, the "Select" label accounted for 433,413 pounds, or 14.3 percent of all graded beef, according to statistics kept by the Agricultural Marketing Service.

A NEWSLETTER FOR THE MEMBERS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA DAIRY HERD IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

Lancaster Farming, Pages D10-D16

Second Annual Corporation Meeting Held In March

A very successful second annual meeting of the corporation was held on March 1 and 2, 1990 at the Days Inn in State College, PA. This year, 75 delegates from 38 counties attended the meeting which ran from noon Thursday to noon Friday and was highlighted by a banquet on Thursday night.

The focal point of this year's meeting, which was open to all members of the association, was a talk given by Mr. Michael Quesnell, a board member of National DHIA and a dairyman from Idaho. Mike's humorous and well-received address dealt with National DHIA's and DHIA Services' attempts to respond to new member needs as a result of changes in dairy production technology and changing consumer demands. He also pointed out the importance of organizational structure in accomplishing the association's mission and avoiding liability for directors, staff and members.

Following President Clyde Robison's opening remarks, William K. Jackson of Fayette Co., Chairman of the Planning Committee, described the detailed planning sessions that the association completed in 1989 with the aid of an independent consultant. Bill described 11 separate areas of concern that the board identified as needing attention. Of highest priority was the completion of reorganizing the association, followed by increasing the market share for production records services in the state.

A report by the Chairman of the Policy Committee, Richard Hoppes of Berks Co., was followed by the board Treasurer, Gary Truckenmiller of Northumberland Co., who reported that the association had a net loss for the fiscal year ended September 30, 1989 of about $22,000 which represents one-half cent per cow per month for the year. The major cause of the overage was the extended and unplanned purchase of sample vials before the vial recycling operation was in full operation.

Two new additions to the program occurred on Thursday afternoon. Sandy Hank, a DHIA supervisor from Iowa and Sam Chafin, DHIA Manager from Virginia presented a training session to the majority of the delegates present on how to recruit DHIA members.

Their very humorous presentation was enjoyed by all. Concurrently, an orientation for 25 new local directors and committee members was conducted to acquaint them with a variety of subjects regarding DHIA operations. They were also introduced to the primary staff who gave short explanations of their duties and departments' operations.

At the banquet on Thursday night, Clyde Robison, the outgoing president of PA DHIA from Washington County, PA was recognized for 26 years of continuous service to PA DHIA as a board member and three term President of the Board. Clyde was presented with an engraved desk set by William Itle, Vice President of the Board.

On Friday morning, there were six small group sessions dealing with production management subjects, followed by a panel discussion on how DHIA might help members adapt to using BST. The panel was composed of Dr. C. William Heald, Professor of Dairy Science at PSU, Dr. Robert W. Cloninger, a veterinary practitioner in Centre and Clinton Counties, Mr. Thomas Craig, a DHIA member and participant in a BST trial from Centre County, Dr. Al Norman, Superintendent of Records for the American Jersey Cattle Club and Dr. Colin J. Peel, Manager of Product Development for Monsanto Co.

The program ended with a choice of tours of the DHIA Service Center, which was attended by about 35 people, or Breezy Farm, a 180 cow operation in Pennsylvania Furnace, Centre County, PA which was attended by about 30 people.

The third Annual Meeting of the Corporation is scheduled for March 6 and 7, 1991 and is open to all members of the association.

Board Action Summary

The following actions were taken by the PA DHIA Board at its meetings of October 2-3, 1989; January 3-4, 1990; March 2, 1990; and April 4, 1990, all held in State College.

DHIA Column Expanded This Week To Include Semi-Annual Newsletter

Since November of last year, Lancaster Farming has been running a weekly Pennsylvania DHIA column titled "FOCUS." The column contains a variety of subjects of interest to the dairy community such as articles on herd management, statistical summaries from herds tested the previous week, and market values for dairy feeds. The weekly column was started because the association and Lancaster Farming share the goal to reach dairy producers with information that will help them manage more effectively and be more informed about changes that are designed to improve DHIA services. This arrangement includes subscriptions to Lancaster Farm-

1. An agreement to provide a regular weekly management column called "Focus" in section A of Lancaster Farming was approved.

2. A policy covering require-ing for all direct members of the Pennsylvania DHIA.

The original "FOCUS" title came from the award-winning Pennsylvania DHIA newsletter. And this week, the weekly column becomes the four-page semi-annual newsletter for all Pennsylvania DHIA members.

We hope you will find both this newsletter and the weekly column useful in your dairy business. And we welcome your suggestions for improvements. Feel free to send them to Robert Ormsby, Training Coordinator, The DHIA Service Center, Orchard Rd., University Park, PA 16802, or call Bob at 1-800-344-8378 ments for sanitation of testing equipment prior to milking was approved.

3. Approved hiring Geoffrey Barr as an information specialist in southeastern Pennsylvania for a year.

4. Approved the mergers of the following local associations with PA DHIA: Bucks Co., Union Co., Mercer Co., Wyoming Co., Jefferson Co., Northampton Co., Clarion Co., and Lackawanna Co.

5. Policies were approved governing Advance Notice of Intent to Test and Rolling Herd Averages.

6. Approval was granted for Stump Acres to be returned to official status following suspension for rule violation.

7. An operating budget of $3,401,000 was approved for 1990.

8. A credit line was established with Co. Bank (formerly The Bank of Cooperatives).

9. Herd rankings basis was changed from fat to protein production.

10. $30,000 was committed to start up a forage analysis laboratory in State College.

11. A new memorandum of understanding with Penn State was adopted, giving the association additional freedom of decision making.

12. Regarding the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives, the board decided to sponsor a member couple to attend the young leaders' training in July, 1990, to support and participate in Ag Horizons II training for vo ag teachers and county agents also in July, and to support the PAFC annual meeting in State College in October, 1990.

13. A new records program, #DHI-03-LER, was approved for addition to the association's other programs. (This program is the result of the successful Labor Efficient Records Pilot and will be completed later this year).

14. Approved a pilot evaluation of an electronic transporter for cattle identification.

15. Designated the University Park Campus as the permanent location of the PA DHIA offices.

16. Adopted new policies regarding field services for quarantined herds and reinstatement of official status after a suspension of official privileges.

17. Revised the PA DHIA recognition program for 1990 by adjusting fat and protein categories upward by 50 pounds and adding a resette for herds with fat averages of 1,000 pounds or more.

Corporate Goals Set For 1990

In response to increasing demands for services by members and potential members, the Pennsylvania DHIA board adopted an aggressive set of corporate goals for 1990 at its meeting last January. Of highest priority is continuing the progress being made to complete reorganization of the DHIA system in the state by October 1, 1992. (See the article on reorganization elsewhere in this issue).

Running a very close second in priority, however, is the objective to expand DHIA's share of the dairy production records market. In order to do that, the association is pressing ahead with promotion efforts in all five management regions through the personal efforts of region managers, senior supervisors and supervisors. So far, those efforts have resulted in a net increase of 57 new herds on test statewide this year through the end of April.

Of equal importance are the association's efforts to develop and implement new services that meet members' needs for more effective management information. These include introductions this year of the DHIA Nutrition System, Staph. aureus testing, customized paper and electronic reports, consulting services using PA DHIA's on-line electronic system known as ARIS, and a Heifer Management system. All these are designed as optional services. Additional services in development are Forage Analysis and the Labor Efficient Records Program.

For the longer term, efforts have been started to design a DHIA computer system for use on the farm. If successful, this project could result in a personal computer-based system located on the farm that accommodates many different types of software for many different purposes, including herd management records. Ideally, this system would interface to milking system software and allow the uploading of production data to the PA DHIA processing center for use in USDA cow indexing and bull proving.

These are exciting new possibilities for members and the opportunity to develop and introduce them is exciting to the staff. Let's hope these efforts will be effective in keeping Pennsylvania DHIA members successful in an increasingly competitive market.

Young Cooperative Leaders Wanted

Each summer the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives conducts a training program for young cooperative leaders. This year's course, to be held at Toftrees Conference Center in State College on July 9-11, 1990, will focus on the purpose of cooperatives and why they are valuable organizations for farmers.

The PA DHIA Board recognizes the value of such information and, like many of its sister organizations in Pennsylvania, has committed to sponsor a young cooperative leader couple, or individual to this year's conference. If you are a DHIA member under 35 years old and are interested in learning more about cooperative leadership, or if you know someone with those qualifications, please contact Dick Barth, general manager at 1-800-344-8378 and let him know.

Please remember that the future of your association will be shaped by volunteer leadership. Your nomination of a volunteer leader to attend the Young Leaders Conference this year will help assure that your association is guided by knowledgeable and effective leadership in the future. Please help.

Reorganization Catching On

Following the state board's decision last summer to reorganize the association into a single, statewide direct member organization by October 1, 1992, eight counties have voted to merge with the state association and begin operating as county units of Pennsylvania DHIA.

The counties in order of merger are Bucks, Union, Jefferson, Mercer, Wyoming, Northampton, Clarion, and Lackawanna. These mergers, along with Elk, Cameron and Clearfield Counties that preceded them, bring the total to eleven local associations that have voluntarily dissolved to create local units with local advisory committees to replace their separate local associations and local boards of directors.

Twenty-five other county associations have begun discussions with state staff and board members to work out agreements that will eventually lead to a proposal to their members to dissolve their local associations. In order to do that and merge with the state association, local association members must vote to dissolve the local association and become direct members of PA DHIA. Under state statutes, unincorporated associations cannot dissolve without a majority vote of all members.

Reorganization involves developing a separate merger agreement for each local association. That usually takes from 3-6 meetings with local boards and members to answer questions and determine the procedures for transferring assets to state association ownership. That's a hefty additional workload for your staff over the next 28 months, so cooperation by all those involved is important to a smooth transition and maintaining high quality of services.

Contrary to rumors you may have heard, the state association does not take over all assets on hand when a local association merges. All merger agreements so far developed have specified that it is each local association's responsibility to decide how to disperse cash balances on hand when the merger occurs. Some boards have decided to return the balance to local members immediately, while others have decided to have the state association hold the balance in a cash reserve to be used for local unit banquets at the end of the year.

Likewise, outstanding debts are the responsibility of local associations and must be resolved before merger can be completed. That situation has not occurred in any of the mergers to date.

The start of the process of reorganization is an exciting time for everyone connected with DHIA in Pennsylvania. The streamlined association that will result from these efforts is designed to lead to improved services for members and a professional image and career opportunities for DHIA supervisors. If you have questions about any aspect of reorganization, please contact Dick Barth, general manager, Herman Espy, director of field services, or Jim Garrity, director of finance and personnel at 1-800-344-8378.

Why Forage Analysis?

A little over a year ago members were sent a questionnaire on forage analysis services and were asked if they thought DHIA should attempt to provide such services. We expected a few hundred would be returned out of the 6,000 sent out, so we were astounded when nearly 1,000 were returned.

Also surprising was what they said: 69% of the responses said that if the right services were offered at competitive prices, they would use DHIA's services all or some of the time. Moreover, members reported that 80% of all samples they have analyzed are tested by near infrared (NIR) procedure, not by wet chemistry analysis, and the volume of samples they test that way totals about 6,000 per year.

The results of this survey, in conjunction with the nutrition system that is now being introduced, was what prompted the PA DHIA Board to begin looking for a suitable way to provide forage analysis services for members. The search for the most logical way of providing them has been long, involved and controversial and final answers are still up in the air.

Some have asked us why we would attempt to provide this service when there are so many private labs and feed companies in this business already. The short answer is because many members have asked us to. They want a high quality, unbiased testing service at competitive rates with good turnaround time. That's what we're striving to have available later this year, Lord willing.

Thanks to all of you who answered the survey. Your direct input on this question has been most important.

Wagner Cases Being Resolved

In our last member newsletter it was reported that the Federal District Court in Pittsburgh had dismissed Bernard Wagner's antitrust claim against the association. At that time we were expecting to go to trial in the near future on racketeering counter charges that the association filed against Wagner in 1987. However, the federal judge in the case subsequently ruled that the association's expenditures for legal fees and other out-of-pocket expenses did not constitute damages under the law, and in the absence of legal damages there was no need for a trial. The judge then dismissed the association's charges against Wagner.

In more recent developments, the Commonwealth Court ruled on an appeal of a decision in Centre County Court that found the association had not followed due process when Wagner's official privileges were suspended for five years and the official status of his records was canceled. The three judge panel found that the association had indeed given Wagner due process and his suspension and records cancellation were legal.

This development brings to an end another string of legal challenges that Mr. Wagner originated against the association and substantiates that Pennsylvania DHIA has the right and the ability to enforce its rules and bylaws. One case in Centre County, a counter claim against Wagner for fraud, remains to be resolved. We will keep you informed of developments in this case as they occur.

Delegates' District Meetings Held

Five district DHI association meetings were held last February and March. A total of 121 member delegates attended the meetings to hear state directors and management staff report on the status of DHIA business and provide feedback about the direction of the association.

The subjects for discussion included an update on the progress toward providing nutrition and forage analysis services, testing milk samples for the presence of Staph. aureus mastitis, and a new labor efficient records program; a review of PA DHIA goals and the association's budget for 1990; service statistics for 1989; the purpose of and progress toward reorganization; and plans for upgrading the training program for DHIA supervisors.

District association officers were elected for 1990-1991 and the next meeting dates and locations were set as follows:

Weis Hosts Growers

SUNBURY, (Northumberland Co.) — Boyd Wolff, secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, joined with officials of Weis Markets at a dinner meeting held recently at the Country Cupboard Restaurant in Lewisburg, Pennsylvania.

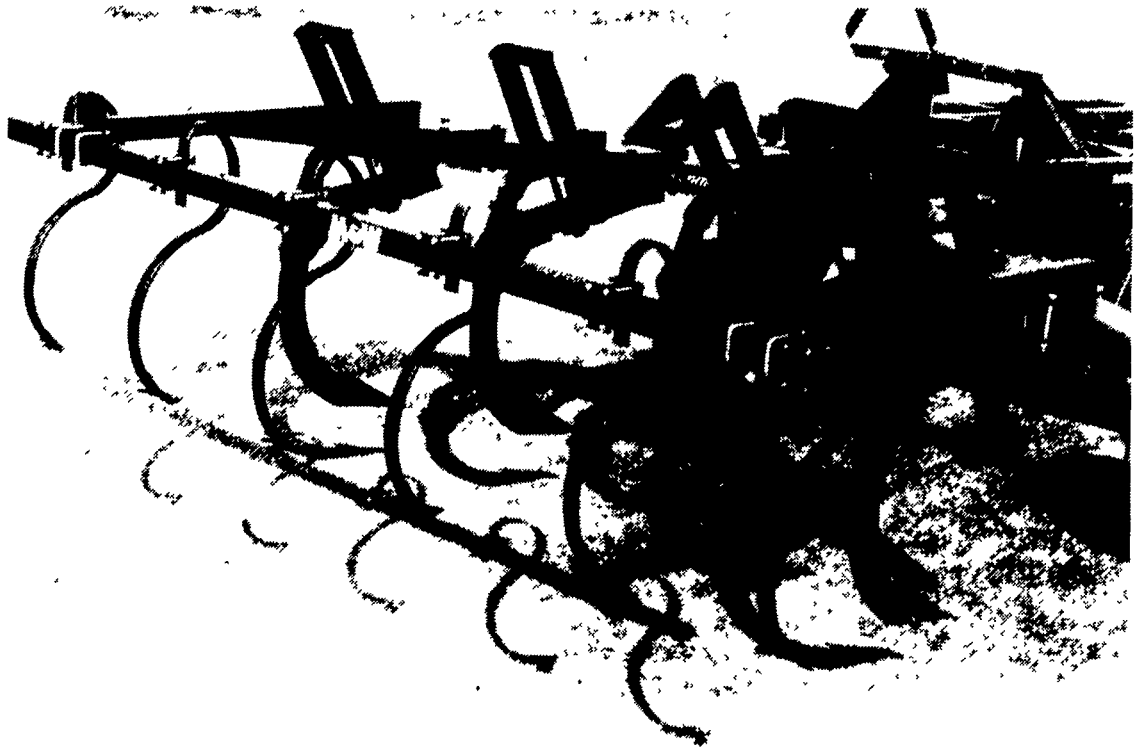

The meeting, attended by more than 100 Pennsylvania growers, is hosted annually by Weis Markets. Its purpose is to explore ways to strengthen and enhance Pennsylvania's agricultural base as well as provide an arena for discussion of major trends and issues affecting agriculture.

Over the years, the Weis Grower Distributor Group, comprised of growers, industry leaders, legislators and representatives of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, have worked together, contributing ideas that have acted as a catalyst in determining the future course and direction of local agriculture.

This unique relationship, which was pioneered by Sigfried Weis, president of Weis Markets, has helped shape the direction of programs that have improved the production and marketing of Pennsylvania's agricultural products.

George J. Michalak, vice president, perishables, served as master of ceremonies for the evening. He reminded the guests that a meaningful contribution has been made in the communities served by Weis Markets, resulting in an economic benefit to the growers, the rural community, and to the commonwealth. In 1989, more than $64 million was paid to growers by Weis Markets.

House Ag Approves Wool Act

DENVER, Colo.— The U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture unanimously approved renewal of the Wool Act on Wednesday, May 23. This 36-year-old program assures the United States of a domestic supply of wool and mohair.

The committee adopted an amendment offered by Congressman Harold Volkmer (D-MO) that would place a payment limitation of $250,000 that a producer could receive under the program on sales of wool and mohair. Under the current law, the Wool Act does not contain a payment limit.

Congressman Charles Stenholm (D-TX), who chaired the subcommittee which recommended a five-year extension of the program, reluctantly accepted the payment limitation amendment. Stenholm said, "I go along with this amendment as it makes the Wool Act comparable to other commodity programs that have a payment limitation. I'm concerned about the future of the wool and mohair program, and hope that this removes any opposition which may arise on the House floor." House floor action is anticipated during July.

Pierce Miller, chairman of the Legislative Action Council of the American Sheep Industry Association, said, "We also reluctantly accepted the cap on payments despite the fact that our program is funded by tariffs on imported wool and woolen goods. Our program has come under increased scrutiny from urban members of Congress because we have no payment limitation."

During discussion, House Agriculture Committee Chairman Charles E. (Kika) de la Garza (D-TX), along with several other committee members, expressed their support for the wool and mohair program, noting the program has helped maintain a viable domestic sheep and angora goat industry and is not funded by taxpayer dollars. Wool tariffs have brought in $4.6 billion more than has been paid out to domestic producers over the history of the program, according to Congressman Stenholm.

Miller said, "We feel confident about the renewal of the Wool Act because its proven history of helping the sheep and goat industry.

Virginia Beef Expo Held

DALEVILLE, VA — The First Annual VA Beef Exposition was held last month at the Rockingham County Fairgrounds in Harrisonburg, Virginia. Attendance at this inaugural event was estimated between 6,000 - 7,000.

Eight sales were held during the two-day event, featuring these breeds: Angus, Charolais, Limousin, Polled Hereford, Red Angus, Salers, Shorthorn, and Simmental. The sales featured primarily bred females and cow-calf pairs. Consignments to the sales were received from 14 states, primarily in the mid-Atlantic region.

The top-selling lot was a Polled Hereford cow-calf pair consigned by Big T Ranch of Jeromesville, Ohio. The cow and her heifer calf sold for $7,000 to Lucky "M" Farms of Mount Lookout, West Virginia. Three other lots sold for $5,000, including two Simmental heifers and an Angus cow-calf pair.

Exactly 304 lots were sold for an overall average of $1,855. Individual breed averages were as follows: Angus - $1,835 average, Charolais - $1,985 average, Limousin - $1,985 average, Polled Hereford - $2,372 average, Red Angus - $1,435 average, Salers - $1,817 average, Shorthorn - $1,010 average, and Simmental - $1,902 average.

Cattle were purchased by buyers from 15 different states. Virginia Beef Expo sales grossed more than $560,000, making it the largest multi-breed sale ever held in Virginia.

Research Evaluates Replant Feasibility

NEWARK, DE — Dr. Bruce Vasilas, University of Delaware associate professor of plant and soil sciences, and Dr. Richard Taylor, extension agronomist, are involved in a five-year research project at the university's Agricultural Experiment Station in Georgetown. The researchers are investigating the feasibility of replanting soybeans as opposed to leaving a poor stand.

Stands were planted in 1988 and 1989 and will be again in 1991. Already the first two years' results have been consistent. They have also been in line with similar work that Vasilas conducted when he was on the faculty at the University of Illinois.

"Many people think that replanting a stand is economical," Vasilas said. "But the evidence just does not support that belief."

Vasilas maintains that based on his research, it probably does not pay to replant even a poor stand. A second planting cannot make up the yield that is lost because of the lateness of planting.

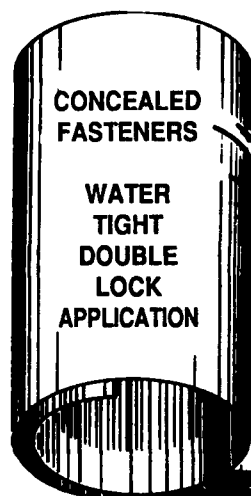

Using soybean cultivars commonly grown in the Delmarva region, the researchers generated data for both single-crop and double-crop soybeans. The experimental plots were planted at 140,000 plants per acre. They uniformly thinned one group to 25, 50, and 75 percent of the original stand. The second group was thinned with 2- to 4-foot gaps at 25, 50, and 75 percent of the original stand.

Vasilas noted that 1989's heavy rains had an effect on the data. In the single-crop soybeans, reducing the stands actually increased yields because the unthinned plants became leggy as a result of crowding. These plants were more subject to lodging, which reduced yields.

"Even in the most severe treatment — reducing the stand by 75 percent — it doesn't seem to pay to replant," Vasilas said. "In some cases the replanted stand may yield a few more bushels per acre. But when the costs of extra seed, pesticides, and use of machinery are added up, replanting doesn't seem worth it. And finally, there's no guarantee that replanting will yield a uniform stand."

Vasilas says that, in rare cases, replanting may be necessary. He suggests that farmers unsure about a specific replanting scenario should contact their county extension agents.

Approves Income Support

ST. LOUIS, MO — The American Soybean Association (ASA) said the soybean program approved by the House Committee on Agriculture will provide income support and planting flexibility for U.S. soybean farmers. As part of the 1990 Farm Bill, the program must be approved by the U.S. House of Representatives.

"We are pleased that the House Ag Committee leadership recognizes the need to combine increased income support with more flexibility so that farmers can respond to market signals," said Marlyn Jorgensen, ASA president. "Congress has developed keen awareness of the problems U.S. soybean farmers face. We wish the income support level was higher, but the Committee had to stay within budget restrictions."

The Committee's package provides a soybean marketing loan that protects U.S. farmer income at a rate 75 cents to one dollar a bushel higher than current law. And, the marketing loan will help discourage foreign soybean production while giving U.S. farmers protection during times of low soybean prices.

The House Committee's package creates a soybean marketing loan with a loan rate at $5.25 a bushel in 1991 and 1992. In 1993-1995, USDA can change the rate depending on the surplus of soybeans. If soybean stocks remain below 20 percent of use (95 percent of the time they do), the rate must be increased 5 percent to $5.51. If stocks exceed 20 percent of use but are below 25 percent, the loan rate stays at $5.25. If stocks exceed 25 percent of use, USDA may reduce the rate up to 5 percent. However, in 1993, the loan rate cannot exceed $5.40 a bushel.

The Committee's flexibility package calculates "whole farm" flexibility based on program crop acres plus historical acreage planted to oilseeds. Under this plan, farmers may plant soybeans on up to 25 percent of their combined program crop base acres and historical oilseed acres or they may plant a program crop on program acres. This is more flexibility than the current 0-25 program, but falls short of true meaningful flexibility because the soybean loan rate does not make soybeans fully equitable with program crops target prices.

"U.S. soybean farmers have seen their share of the world market in soybeans decline dramatically in the last 10 years as a result of inequitable government support programs and rigid government programs that favor planting of program crops," said Jorgensen. "The House Agriculture Committee has taken an important step forward in helping us stop this decline."

FARM MANAGEMENT

Easy Way To Pin Down Family Living Expenses

PATRICIA L. POWLEY
Financial and Consumer Issues

Did you just recently finish your tax return and wish that you had done things differently in recording farm and family living expenses? A few simple changes in your existing bill-paying and recordkeeping system can help you sort withdrawals from the business for living expenses from those related to farm income and expenses.

For example, you may wish to open two checking accounts. Use one to pay all farm expenses. Use the other to pay living expenses. There will likely be minimum balance consideration and costs per transaction to evaluate. Each family must decide if the cost is worth it.

Deposit all farm income into the farm accounts. Don't hold back any cash for pocket money. To fund family living expenses, write checks to yourself on the farm account and deposit them in the family living accounts. Pay living expenses from the family accounts, and write checks on it to get pocket cash.

Following this procedure, your living expense withdrawals for the year will be:

- Beginning-of-the-year family living account balance.
- Plus beginning-of-the-year pocket cash.
- Plus checks written on the business account and deposited to the family living accounts.
- Minus year-end family living checking account balance.
- Minus year-end pocket cash.

• Equals withdrawals from the business for the living expense.

Following this simple procedure will give you a solid family living expense number to use in your overall cash flow. But you will have to remember to include the beginning-of-the-year and year-end family living checking account balances under current assets on your balance sheets.

Unfortunately, you will still have some bills that cover both farm expenses and living expenses. Two clear samples are utilities and auto expenses. You probably won't write two checks to pay these bills. One solution is to pay them from the farm account and record the totals in your farm record book.

At the end of the year, you will have to separate the farm share of each total for tax purposes. What's left over is the living expense share for the year.

Watch This Pitfall

Other dual expenses can't be handled so neatly. Let's say you go to a local farm supply store and buy a $10 fan belt for your skid steer loader and a $3 tire for your son's bicycle. You won't likely write separate checks for each purchase.

Suppose you pay cash for both items, but forget to include the $10 belt in machinery repairs. You've lost a $10 business deduction, which will up your tax bite.

Suppose you pay cash, or write a check on the family living accounts. You also include the $10 fan belt under machinery repairs. Under the above plan, $10 will turn up in both living expenses and farm expenses in your overall cash flow.

The best solution may be to write a $13 check on the farm account. Then include the $10 fan belt under machinery repairs in your farm account record book. Use another column in the record book for family living expenses paid with checks written on the farm account and include the $3 tire in that column.

Using this approach, total living expense will be:

- Withdrawals calculated by flow of cash through the family living checking account.
- Plus personal share of auto and utility expenses.
- Plus the personal bills paid with business checks as detailed in your farm record book.

If you'd like further information and some simple forms to help you track your spending, write to me at 1451 Peters Mountain Road, Dauphin, PA 17018.

New Alfalfa Seedlings

Some 1990 spring-seeded fields got off to a slow start, with the cold weather, some freezes, etc. But, for the most part, fields are coming along quite well now. The weeds are growing well, too.

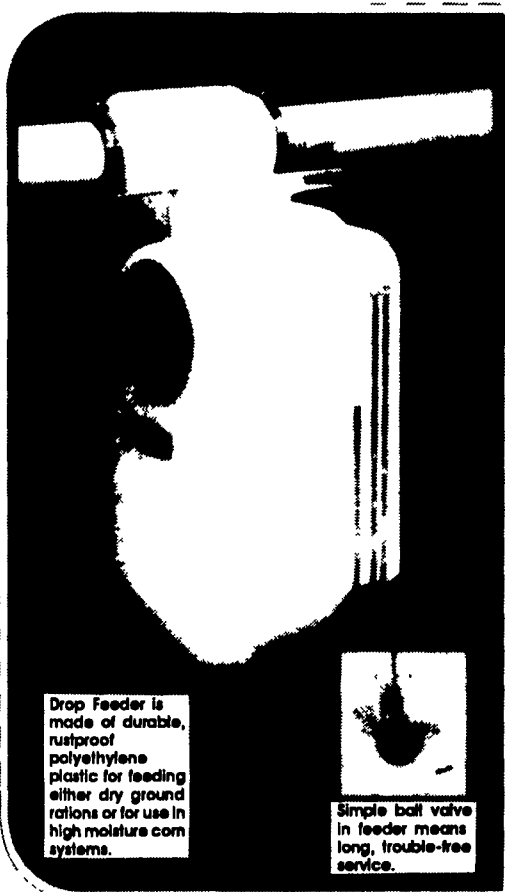

The majority of these straight alfalfa or alfalfa-grass fields (seeded by themselves) needed a 2,4-DB weed spray -- last week, or earlier. If you haven't looked at yours recently, and if you haven't sprayed -- check NOW.

The alfalfa should have at least two trifoliate leaves before you apply 2,4-DB. The seedling weeds should be no more than four inches high. (Some are by now.) While this pigweed, lambsquarter, etc. may look quite innocent now, it can indeed hurt a new field badly -- in the quality of the first-cutting forage; in the density of the stand; by causing you to lose a cutting this year; and by reducing vigor needed for overwintering.

Spraying with two quarts 2,4-DB per acre may still be feasible in some fields, even though the weeds may be over four inches tall. Consider increasing the rate to three quarts per acre if the weeds are "big and bad."

Waste To Feed Experiments To Start

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A fermentation process that recycles agricultural and food processing wastes into a dietary supplement for animals will be the first project of the newly opened Penn State Bioprocessing Resource Center Pilot Plant.

Bio-Proteus Corp., of Reading, has signed an agreement with the bioprocessing center for this work.

"The billions of tons of protein materials being generated annually is our next waste disposal crisis," said Dr. Donald Snyder, president of Bio-Proteus.

More than 1 million tons of poultry wastes are buried or incinerated annually on the Delmarva Peninsula, bordering the Chesapeake Bay. This practice may soon be prohibited by state and federal regulatory agencies, according to Snyder.

Bio-Proteus has applied for a patent for its fermentation process, which uses a marine yeast that converts protein bearing waste materials into a slurry of water-soluble, high-quality predigested proteins. The process destroys all pathogens, so that when the slurry is dried, it is ideal for use as a dietary supplement for animals.

"The modern facilities and highly qualified professional staff of the institute and the Bioprocessing Resource Center Pilot Plant are uniquely qualified to assist in this project," said Dr. Jean E. Brenchley, director of Penn State's Biotechnology Institute.

The pilot plant is equipped for fermentation, cell culture and separation and purification process development.

Penn State's Bioprocessing Resource Center's Pilot Plant was developed to help Pennsylvania's small- to medium-sized biotechnology companies prove their product before committing resources to full-size processing plants.

Bio-Proteus plans to establish a facility on the peninsula that uses its proprietary process to recycle poultry waste into animal feed ingredients.

The problem of biological waste disposal is not confined to Delmarva, Snyder said. Each day, 600 tons of fish wastes are dumped at sea, clogging waterways near Kodiak Island, Alaska. The Netherlands produces 100 million tons of poultry manure a year, about twice what the land can naturally absorb.

Converting waste proteins into usable feed will not only eliminate a tremendous waste disposal problem, but will conserve the fast-dwindling protein biomass at the same time, Snyder said.

Snyder said he sees a bright future for his company.

"Businesses that are attending to our environmental consciousness are rightfully gaining the attention of the financial community," Snyder said. Bio-Proteus recently received a financing commitment from Zero State Capital II, a venture capital group in State College, with affiliates in Maryland and Massachusetts.

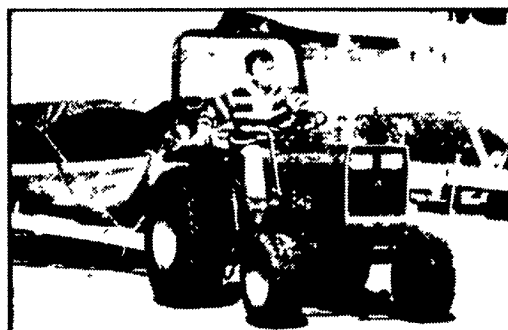

Penn State's pilot plant is part of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce Industrial Resource Center program. Nine resource centers around the state help regional companies with business problems. The bioprocessing resource center serves the entire state where there are an estimated 60 to 100 small- to medium-sized biotechnology companies.

He Started To Farm The Day He Was Born

Jane and Jim Eshelman with Duke on the porch of their home near New Enterprise.

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

NEW ENTERPRISE (Bedford Co.) — On the day Jim Eshelman was born in 1944, his father signed the final papers for the farm on which Jim and his family now reside.

Jim, his wife, Jane, and their three daughters all help with the nearly 187 tillable acre farm located just outside of New Enterprise in Morrison's Cove.

"We are one of those families that would easily qualify for a century award," Jim explains. Part of this farm used to belong to my grandmother, Electa Furry Eshelman. It's well over 100 years old. But, we have never had the time to research it."

Smiling now as he remembers the techniques of farming when he was growing up, Jim admits that he never thought it would be possible to see the many strides forward farming has made. "I remember the first time my dad and I saw a computer," he says. "We were at a forerunner to Ag Progress Days and we laughed. We didn't think it would ever help with farming in our lifetime."

Today, Jim's wife, Jane, keeps the farm records on a computer. The cows are computer-fed and Jim keeps track of breeding and cows coming fresh with a computer. "You never know how important a computer is until it breaks down," laughs this modernized farmer.

The Eshelman barn also contains a time clock. "When I was growing up, my dad always paid me to help on the farm when he could," Jim recalls. "I wanted to do the same for my daughters." Jamie, 21; Janine, 20, and Janesa, 15, help on the farm. The two older girls have other jobs, but know how to milk and are available when needed. Janesa is still in high school.

Jim's cousin, Tom, is a full time hired hand on the farm and his dad, now in his 70s, enjoys helping when he can. There is also a high school student who helps with the milking during the week.

The 110 Holsteins are milked with an automatic take-off milking system.

"It saves time," Jim explains. "And, it's not too mechanized to be a problem."

Time is something that is always needed in the Eshelman house-

Why Compromise? Choose Superiority.

With five Case IH Mower Conditioners to choose from, there's no need to compromise. Now you can select the model that meets your hay harvesting needs exactly.

Every model cuts clean and fast. Continuously engaged rolling action is aggressive when the crop calls for it, yet gentle when you want to save valuable protein-rich leaves. Adjustable full-length rolls on the 8320 and 8330 leave loose fluffy swaths or windrows.

Unique "uniform motion" crank linkage and counter-balanced flywheel make for a smoother-running conditioner with less peak start and stop loads.

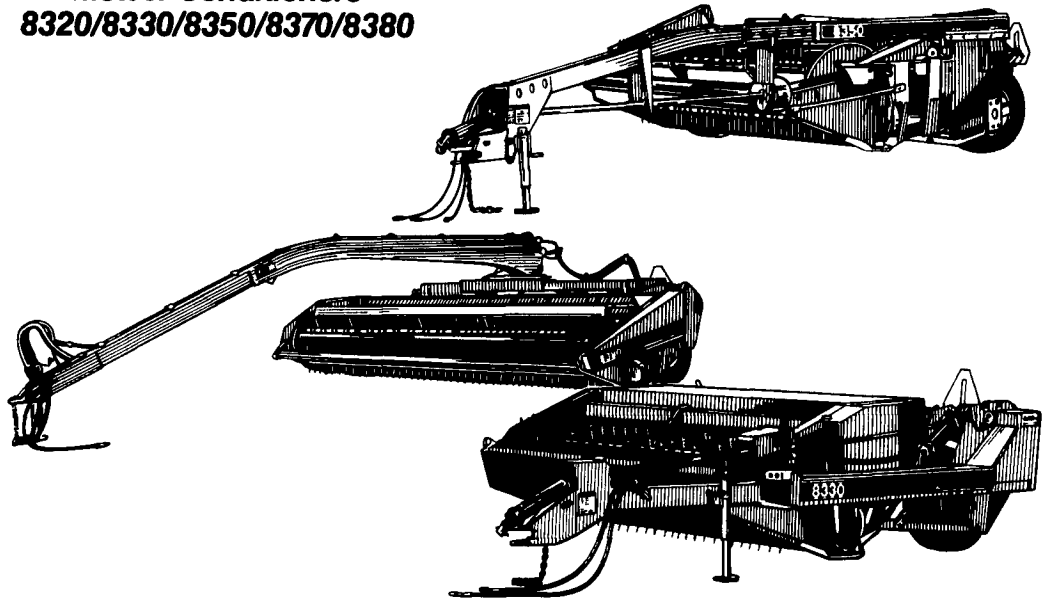

Also on the larger models:

- Half-swaybar sickle drive operates at a fast 1700 rpm
- 12-foot cuts produce fast-drying 9-foot swaths for increased productivity
- Wheel assemblies counterbalanced for outstanding vertical/radial flotation
- In-seat hydraulic control of tongue from field to road position

On the 8370 and 8380:

- Center-mounted pivot hitch allows for easy right/left side positioning of header so you can cut from one side of the field
- Hydrostatic header drives eliminate the PTO shaft
- Wide 14- and 16-foot cuts respectively
- Two-sickle system on 8380 cuts at 1800 spm for superior productivity

Set Capon Conference

UNIONTOWN (Fayette Co.) — Fayette County Cooperative Extension will host the 1990 Pennsylvania Capon Conference scheduled for Wednesday, June 27 at the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Penn State University's Capon Production Program, known nationwide for its leadership in the industry, continues to help producers improve their management, processing, and marketing skills. Capon production is an attractive enterprise for the part-time farmer, 4-H and FFA member, as well as the commercial poultry farmer.

This year's program, which is open to all interested, will include such topics as "The Prevention of Health Disorders in Cockerels Prior to Caponizing," "Success with A Commercial Capon Enterprise," "Organizing a 4-H Capon Program," "Getting Your Birds Off to a Fast Start," "Conducting Capon Research in the Field," "Processing Equipment," "Selecting Caponizing Tools," and a 4-H Capon Club members panel. During the final hour of the seminar, there will be an optional "hands-on" caponizing clinic.

To register for this event send your check or money order in the amount of $11.00 per adult and $8.00 per person under 18 years of age to Capon Conference, c/o Wm. F. Gallagher, Fayette County Extension Office, Ground Floor, County Building, Uniontown, PA 15401. Make checks payable to 4-H Operating Account- Fayette County.

hold. Despite his heavy farm load, Jim is president of the DHIA. He is president of the Bedford County Crop Management Association and is a member of the Bedford County Conservation District Board where he serves as chairman. He is also a member of the State Crop Management Board.

An active family man, Jim is also president of the Northern Bedford County Band Parents. The entire family hopes to be a part of the band trip to Disney World in June. "The only problem," Jane says somewhat sadly, "is what we are going to do with Duke."

Duke is a lovable black Labrador retriever who thinks he is a member of the family. "We have someone to feed him, but no one to take him on his daily six-mile walk," Jane says.

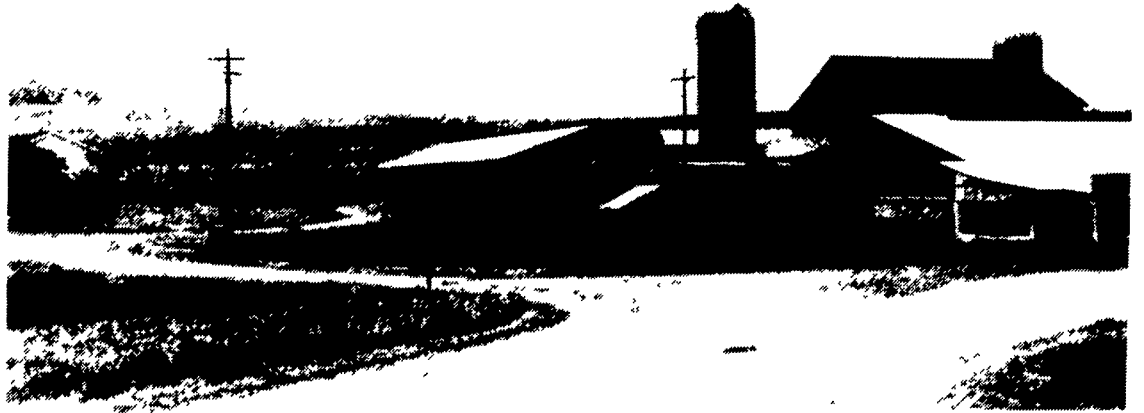

Jim says he can never remember wanting to do anything except farm. "Oh, I started out at Penn State in pre-vet," Jim says, "But I soon decided that just wasn't for me."

In 1966 he graduated with a degree in dairy science.

An optimist by nature, Jim says he feels farming has gotten better in the last few years and anticipates it getting even better. "Milk prices have been good lately," he says. "It helps."

He says that if he has a choice between the drought experienced in 1988 and the wet weather of 1989, he prefers the drought. "We had much better crops."

He expects that farming will continue to get better for some time. "We've learned what the public wants. We are producing lowfat dairy products these days." He says he read recently that 2/10 of one percent is the only excess we have in butterfat.

The 170 acre Eshelman farm.

Never one for "all work," Jim says he and his daughters all enjoy Sunday afternoon hockey games. "I don't play," Jane adds, "But I sure like to watch."

Jim has organized many youth and adult soccer games. "We started playing in the front yard," he says. "Then, it kept growing and before long we had to move to the Northern Bedford athletic field."

BY ROBERT E. LEIBY and DAVID L. DUNBAR
Cooperative Extension Office

We've had good growing weather this spring and many farmers have taken advantage of that fact. A lot of corn has been already planted. This timely planting will help to set a high yield potential for many fields. Now it is up to the grower to maintain that yield potential by minimizing the problems and pests that are encountered by the crop. Check your fields during the first few weeks after emergence. By finding problems early, producers can often come up with less expensive and more effective solutions. Growers may also learn some things that can help them adjust their program for later planted corn or next year's corn.

What should you be looking for now? Start with population. Mark out several 1/1000 acre row lengths and count the plants. What percent of the seeds you planted actually emerged? We normally figure about an 85 percent or so emergence rate for calculating seeding rates but under your conditions this may not be accurate. The only way you'll know is to check it out in several places. Another thing to look for is uniformity — skips or frequent doubles can indicate a planter or seed size problem that you should try to correct in the future. If the population is not what you desired, then it's time to diagnose the problem. Look for patterns or dig up part of the row where seedlings are missing. Here are some things you may find:

- No seeds — planter malfunction or they may have been eaten by crows or other birds.

- Seedlings dug up or chewed off — mice, chipmunks, birds, or woodchucks.

- Kernels hollowed out or eaten — seedcorn maggots or wireworms. Use at least a seedbox insecticide treatment if replanting is necessary.

- Kernels rotted — usually only occurs with cool, wet conditions for an extended period of time.

- Kernels not sprouted, skips in the row, and/or stunted seedlings — can be caused by fertilizer placed too close to the seed, either starter or anhydrous ammonia.

- Kernels sprouted, shoots twisted, or leaves opened underground — these can result from a cracked seed coat, planting too deep, or a soil crust. A crust can be broken with a harrow, cultipacker, or rotary hoe if rain is not in the forecast.

Another thing to look for now is the effectiveness of your weed control program. Escape weed seedlings are small now and sometimes hard to see, but most are easy to control if properly identified. Try to diagnose the reason for lack of control. Common problems encountered include triazine resistance, low soil pH, the wrong herbicide program for the weeds present in the field, poor calibration or application, or excessive rainfall following application.

Also begin to start to look out for slugs and cutworms. Slug damage will appear as shredded lower leaves on seedling plants. Cutworms can cut plants off at or below ground level. Be especially wary in scouting for cutworms on trashy fields or those that had heavy chickweed or other green weeds growing on them before planting. If more than three percent of the plants have been cut off and the cutworms are less than 1.5 inches long, a control treatment is recommended.

Most problems are relatively simple to overcome if caught early in the season. The important thing right now is to take some time and visit those fields and make sure everything is going as planned.

Farm Show Schedule Changed For 1992

Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff announced a change in dates for the 76th Pennsylvania Farm Show in 1992.

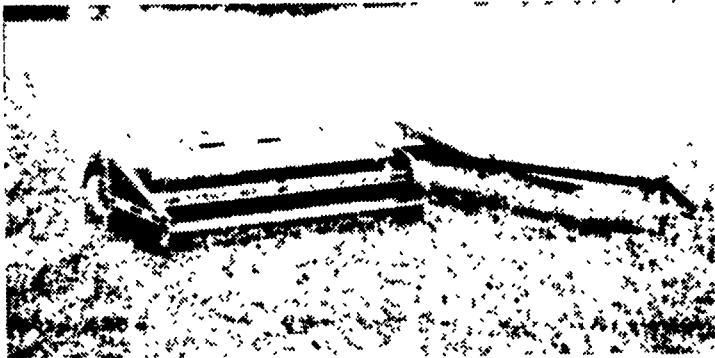

The show will open on Saturday, January 11 and run through Thursday, January 16. In the past, the show has opened on Sunday and run through Friday.

The change was approved by the Farm Products Show Commission, chaired by Wolff.

There are many benefits to be gained by opening the show on Saturday. More families will be able to attend. The move also will permit more 4-H and FFA members to compete in the state event without missing school.

That means shorter drying time with less leaf damage. See your Gehl dealer today on how the 2140, with a 7 ft. cutting width, and the 2170 with a 9 ft. 3 in. cutting width, will fit into your haymaking operation.

109 Inches of Quality Conditioning

A Gehl center-pivot, swing frame mower conditioner gives you high capacity cutting and conditioning with outstanding maneuverability. Two models are available; the 2240 with 12'3" cutting width, and the 2270 with 14'3" cutting width. Both models feature wide, 109-inch rubber conditioning rolls with intermittent tread design to deliver thorough, uniform conditioning. These machines pivot at the center of the frame for easy header positioning, reducing cutting time and lowering fuel costs. And total hydraulic drive means smooth operation and low maintenance. Check Corn Fields

Field And Forage Crops Insect Update

Alfalfa weevil activities are increasing around the state. Eleven percent of fields scouted by the crop management technician in Mercer County were above threshold levels. In the central region of the state, 80 to 100 percent of the fields had weevils present, but no control was required. In the southern area of the state, some fields have exceeded economic levels. Over the next two weeks, weevil activity should increase around the state as larvae reach the third and fourth instars. Closely monitor fields that tend to be dry or have a southern exposure.

Potato leafhopper adults have not been reported in the state as of May 11; however, they should start arriving within the next couple of weeks. Alfalfa insect scouting guides are available from your county extension office.

Black cutworm numbers collected in pheromone traps by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture have been low.

Potato Research Plot Established

Penn State potato variety trials were planted last week in the Lehigh Valley. The trials provide information to area potato growers, processors, and researchers on the performance of new potato varieties. Clearview Farms (Herbert and Sherwood Geiger) are the cooperating farmers who assisted university researchers in planting the plot on their farm. This Danielsville potato and poultry farm will be the site of a field meeting in early September where area growers will be able to visit this site to examine varietal differences.

A total of 55 different potato varieties were planted at Clearview Farm. Twenty-nine of these varieties were planted in three replications. Some of the existing standard varieties such as Atlantic, Norchip, Monona, and Katahdin were planted as well as new varieties Spartan Pearl and Coastal Chip. Most of the other varieties planted are varieties that have not yet been named and are numbered varieties from USDA Beltsville and New York potato breeding programs.

Mild Winter Favors Stewart's Wilt Of Sweet Corn

The bacterium which causes bacterial wilt (Stewart's wilt) of sweet corn survives over winter in the bodies of corn flea beetles. During mild winters (when the average temperature for December, January, and February is greater than 30 degrees Fahrenheit) more flea beetles survive than during colder winters. Therefore, Stewart's wilt is likely to be more severe following mild winters than colder winters.

Sweet corn growers in areas of the state where Stewart's wilt occurs (especially southeastern Pennsylvania) should give special attention to Stewart's wilt control in 1990. Controls include use of resistant varieties and controlling flea beetles by use of insecticides. The "1990 Vegetable Production Guide" lists the resistance of the varieties recommended for Pennsylvania.

Triticale: Has Its Time Finally Come?

Triticale is a high-yielding blend of wheat and rye. Its origin is shrouded, but it has been around more than 100 years. While almost unknown in the U.S., triticale is planted on several million acres worldwide.

Many of the genetic difficulties that have plagued triticale over the years have been overcome, though uniform end-use characteristics are still something of a problem. Newly-developed dwarf and other short-stemmed varieties have taken care of lodging (stem breaking) and other harvest difficulties.

Triticale crop yields equal or surpass wheat when grown in similar settings. New varieties are quite a bit more disease resistant than early strains. Conditions seem favorable for triticale's wider acceptance.

Triticale has the potential to increase world grain production because it can be grown under conditions that are inadequate to consistently grow standard high-yielding grains. It is highly drought resistant and thrives in many marginally productive soils.

In the 19th century, as now, cross-pollination occurred naturally, notably in adjacent fields of wheat and rye. In fact, it has been a common cultivation practice in parts of Europe not to separate plots of rye, barley, and wheat. However, the resulting hybrid seeds were small and sterile. Also, yields were low, and the plants were quite susceptible to diseases. Uses of this crop were nonexistent.

In 1876, plant breeder Alexander Wilson became the first to study the crop when he cross-pollinated wheat and Scottish rye. But the result again produced sterile offspring.

In the 1950s, researchers at the University of Manitoba became interested in triticale as part of an effort to combat leaf diseases that were plaguing durum wheat. Rye's natural defenses against such diseases contributed to triticale's development as a useful crop. Triticale's sterility problem was overcome in the 1950s and seeds were developed for distribution, though many other difficulties.

Research on triticale also progressed in Europe. On a limited basis, some experiments took place in the U.S. as well. A big boost for serious long-term plant development came in 1964 when Manitoba and the International Maize and Wheat Improvement Center (known as CIMMYT) joined forces.

Still, research progress was very slow until the key breakthrough came about by accident.

In 1967, a portion of a CIMMYT test crop in Mexico was unintentionally pollinated by dwarf bread wheats from nearby fields.

The resulting strain of triticale, known as armadillo, appeared to solve most of the crop's problem at once. The new crop was high yielding, short stemmed, disease resistant, and early maturing.

Today, although CIMMYT estimates that triticale is planted on over four million acres worldwide, area is relatively small in the U.S. Only 60,000 acres of both spring and winter varieties are grown in the U.S. Only a few acres are growing in the Lehigh Valley.

Over two-third of the global triticale cropland is now made up of winter varieties in France, the USSR, and Poland. Thus, most of the current triticale is grown in developed countries on fairly good cropland. But agronomic studies indicate it also may outperform wheat and rye in marginal conditions — such as those in some food-aid countries.

Under neutral or favorable conditions, today's triticale is able to match or surpass most of wheat's key vitamin, mineral, and protein levels, although its quality is still inconsistent. Protein levels, for example, can vary by as much as 50 percent in a single year, making the crop unreliable for certain users. Triticale, however, can produce a crop under conditions in which many wheat varieties would die. Other early triticale difficulties (few seeds that were typically shriveled) recently have been overcome.

However, under marginal growing conditions, where the crop would be the most beneficial, low test weights remain a concern. Research on new varieties is under way in Mexico in the hope that flour yields for triticale and wheat grown in difficult conditions can be made equal.

Plan Gets Approval

NEW YORK — A plan whereby dairy farmers contribute money for milk promotion activities of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc., headquartered in Syracuse, N.Y., was recently approved for another year by N.K. Garber, acting marketing administrator of the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area.

These milk promotion activities include advertising, nutrition education, publicity for dairy products, marketing and product research, and informational services.

This year the deduction under the "positive letter" will again be applied as a credit against the 15 cents per hundredweight dairy promotion deduction required by the Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983.

Up to 10 cents designated by producers for an approved local promotion program such as that of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. is eligible as an offset to this mandatory 15-cent deduction.

Dr. Garber said that the recent approval allows handlers regulated by the marketing orders to send "positive letters" to their dairy-farmer suppliers. A dairy farmer who receives a letter will be considered to approve, for one year, deductions of 10 cents per hundredweight from his monthly milk checks, unless he notifies his handler in writing that no deduction should be made. Producers in New Jersey and New York are not subject to this program because statutes require deductions in those states.

Moneys deducted from payments for milk delivered on or after May 1, 1990 will be paid directly by the handler to the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc.

The acting market administrator explained that participation in the local program is voluntary for both handlers and producers, and a participating producer may have deductions stopped at any time by notifying the handler. A producer who receives no letter need not contact his handler since no deduction will be made for the local program.

In approving the plan for the coming year, Garber pointed out that there has been no substantial opposition by producers to the use of the positive letter procedure.

Balthaser Interns With PDPP Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Creating a fall CHEERS, the non-alcoholic dairy beverage program, promotion kit and participating in this summer's event marketing promotions will keep 20-year-old Tammy Sue Balthaser, of Bernville, busy this summer. Balthaser recently joined the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program staff as a summer promotions intern.

This Berks county native has a strong background in dairy promotion. She served as the Pennsylvania State Alternate Dairy Princess for 1988-89. Balthaser is the daughter of Wilson and LaVerne Balthaser and is currently a sophomore at Penn State University studying agricultural business management.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is a dairy farmer funded organization charged with advertising and promoting milk and dairy products.

PHA Announces Summer Intern

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — William Curley, a Montrose native will be serving the Pennsylvania Holstein Association as a summer intern.

Bill, a senior at Penn State, has been active in the Penn State Dairy Science Club. He is currently serving as sale chairman for the 1990 Nittany Lion Fall Classic and is a brother at Alpha Zeta Fraternity.

As a Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association member and active 4-H'er, Bill received extensive showing and judging experience. He was a state 4-H Dairy Judging winner and member of the 1986 Pennsylvania 4-H Dairy Judging Team.

During his senior year at Penn State, he will be a member of the Penn State Dairy Judging Team. During the summer, he will be working in many areas of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association including membership service, youth activities, and promotion and sales. He can be reached at the Pennsylvania Holstein Association office, 839 Benner Pike, State College, 16801, (814) 234-0364.

Service Specialists Graduate

RACINE, WI — Vernon Anderson, service specialist at Carlisle Farm Service, has just completed a 4½-day training course at the Case IH training Center. The course emphasized the repair and servicing of Case IH axial flow combines.

This training program included information on hydraulics, drive train, electrical and electronics, threshing, and separating systems.

To sharpen their service skills, students performed hands-on testing and troubleshooting of the electrical and hydraulic systems. They also made adjustments to the headers and combine threshing and separating system.

NUMBER ONE IN RESEARCH

Big Yields On Lighter Soils.

This fast-growing Group III variety combines drought adaptability with very good Phytophthora tolerance. For maximum yield and stress tolerance This high-performance variety does well with no-till practices, and we recommend planting at moderate populations in 30-inch rows. AP-3023 has a very good resistance to shattering, protecting your yield when harvest is slightly delayed.

AP-4321

Short, Stout and Bred to Yield.

You can expect big yields when you plant this high profit early Group IV variety on your better soils. It adapts very well to narrow-row planting and responds strongly to fertility. AP-4321 produces excellent yields without lodging. It's an excellent companion to popular AP-350.

AP-350

The Soybean The Others Would Love to Beat!

This proven performer is the benchmark early Group IV variety.

Maturity is 4 days later than Williams 82, and 1 day later than AP-4321. It produces consistently high yields and has excellent resistance to Phytophthora root rot. AP-350 does well even on wider rows and adapts to a wide variety of soil conditions and management practices.

Aerospace Perspectives At Symposium

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Researchers from around the globe met recently at Greenbelt, Maryland, to report how data from satellites and airplanes can shed light on down-to-earth topics such as droughts, monsoons, harvester ants, boll weevils and forest fungi.

More than 60 scientists from 20 countries presented their research at the 15th annual science symposium of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Beltsville, Maryland Agricultural Research Center.

R. Dean Plowman, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Research Service, said this is the first time the symposium was to be held at Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt. Goddard, part of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, co-sponsored the meeting with ARS' Beltsville center.

The symposium's theme was remote sensing for agriculture. Plowman said scientists at the symposium examined how some of the newest space technology can help agriculture and the environment.

Most of the research is aimed at interpreting measurements of spectral radiation — light, heat, and microwaves reflected or emitted from soil, water and plants, said ARS physicist John C. Price. "We're continually improving formulas and techniques for comparing the spectral measurements made from above with the realities on earth," said Price, of Beltsville's Remote Sensing Research Laboratory. He and Goddard physical scientist Darrel L. Williams are the symposium planners.

As interpretations become perfected, Price said, remote sensing will be increasingly used to monitor vast expanses for crop and forage growth, health, insect and plant disease outbreaks, forest preservation, drought, soil erosion, lake and stream sedimentation, and numerous other phenomena.

Among the research findings presented were:

- Airborne agriculture videos. ARS scientists say videotaping farms and forests from aircraft could fast become a preferred approach when fine detail and immediate answers are required to fight a fast-spreading plant disease, for example. Unlike data from satellite-based systems, airborne video can be viewed right away. Also, high resolution video equipment already on the market can distinguish ground features just a few feet apart — something currently available satellite images don't do. In research at Weslaco, Texas, ARS scientists mounted three black-and-white video cameras in a plane and synchronized them to record the terrain from several thousand feet up. A yellow-green, red, or near-infrared filter was fitted on each camera. Combining these spectral bands with super VHS recording capabilities, the researchers identified harvester ant mounds and salty soils in cotton fields, chlorosis disease in grain sorghum, dif-

- Cutting widths from 6'10" to 9'4" for tractors 40 to 100 hp.

•Monitoring drought from space. Scientists from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration will demonstrate a new computer program to identify, track, and portray drought conditions detected by satellite. Recent droughts around the globe underscore the need for full, accurate, and timely assessments on regional and even continental scales. This information could help governments prepare for potential economic and agricultural disruptions. Research at NOAA shows that certain kinds of satellite data on vegetation can be combined with weather and ecological data to determine the intensity and geographic scope of droughts. NOAA's interpretations of satellite data have been highly accurate in monitoring drought conditions in part of the U.S.

•Satellite versus boll weevils. Data from the French SPOT Satellite is helping Texas officials monitor compliance with a 1987 state law that requires Rio Grande Valley farmers to shred and bury cotton stalks after harvest. This deprives the boll weevil of a comfortable winter home in the buds and immature fruit remaining on the stalks. ARS scientists learned how to use SPOT data to identify fields where stalks have or haven't been plowed under. The data costs a half-cent an acre — far cheaper than driving by or flying over every cotton field in the 3,100 square-mile valley. The stalk destruction technique, developed by ARS researchers, cuts the need for boll weevil insecticides by up to 80 percent. Full compliance with the Texas program could save the valley farmers $15 million annually in pesticide costs.

•Hard rains in Arizona. Late

July to mid-August is the "monsoon season" for the semiarid southwest, and this year about two dozen scientists from ARS, NASA, U.S. Geological Survey and several universities will conduct experiments in the Walnut Gulch Basin surrounding Tombstone, Arizona. They'll wield everything from rain gauges to multi-spectral radiometers to moisture-sensing radar. Three planes and three satellites will aim other sensors from above. If all goes as planned, the findings could further establish the usefulness of remote sensing in monitoring semiarid regions, where water supplies and ground water recharge are critical issues. Precipitation, runoff, water movement into and through the soil, soil moisture, water uptake by plants, evaporation and other factors in the basin's hydrologic cycle will be documented. Then will come the main thrust of the research: comparing groundbased measurements to those made at the same time from high above.

•Aerial assessment of beneficial fungi in forests. Fungi of various kinds make important contributions to many ecosystems, but little is known about the ways some fungi enhance the growth and quality of forests. From studies of southern pine forests in the southeastern U.S., scientists from the U.S. (NASA) and Finland found that remote sensing data from aircraft can help clarify the roles of these fungi in forest ecology. That's because spectral data on the density and greenness of forests are tied to the presence of certain fungal species and their levels of helpful infection. The evidence suggests that fungi-forest interactions vary by fungus species. This kind of information could lead to enabling foresters to determine which fungi are most beneficial.

types, land use, and erosion are essential to the success of soil conservation programs on farms, in parks, and in community development. Obtaining the data by hand is time-consuming, so USDA's Soil Conservation Service (SCS) wants to shift more of the data-collecting to aircraft and satellite. Such data, transmitted to earth in digital form and converted by computers into maps and photo-like images, can show how a farm field's different soils, which may require different farm practices to control erosion. SCS will report on its efforts to establish a fully computerized system for each SCS field office to collect, store, process, and display remote sensing data for conservation planning in its local area.

Funds Needed To Send Dairy Team To Nationals

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Funds are needed to send the state dairy bowl team onto national competitions next month.

The Olympics of dairy knowledge, the national dairy bowl is organized by the Junior Holstein Association which holds the event every year during a its national convention. This year the event is to be held in Charleston, S.C., from June 23 to June 28.

The right to represent Pennsylvania in the 1990 competition was earned in February by a group from Lebanon County.

Captained by David Lentz, and coached by Mike Kunkle, a technician for Sire Power Inc., the team is also comprised of Terry Hill, Duane Nolt and Rebecca Sonnen.

Lentz and Sonnen are both sophomores at Penn State University. Hill is a senior at Northern Lebanon High School recently accepted to Penn State to study dairy production and Nolt is a junior at Lebanon Christian Academy.

Alternates for the competition are Kennel Bomgardner, currently the county's dairy princess, and Sherry Donmoyer, former FFA member who is currently employed on her home dairy farm. Last year, through the help of local donations, Donmoyer had spent three and a half months in Australia working on a 500-acre dairy farm.

Kenneth Winebark, county dairy extension agent, said that although funds are coming in, the cost burden to local supporters is significant. The total cost for the trip is $4,000, and much more money in order to send the team.

"Although each of the members of the dairy bowl team has tried to set aside some funds to make this trip possible, the costs of education has to take a priority," Winebark said.

"Therefore, it seems only right that the agricultural community should pull together now, to better enhance their own image nationally and also to help ensure that these youth become productive members of the agricultural community, who later can help support such trips for tomorrow's youth," he said.

Anyone wishing to donate any amount to support the team can call Winebark at (717) 274-2801, ext. 350, or mail a check made out to: Lebanon Valley Chamber of Commerce Dairy Bowl Fund, at P.O. Box 899, 252 N. Eighth St., Lebanon, 17042.

A SPECIAL THANKS TO
JUNE DAIRY MONTH

OUR STANDARD TRACTORS AREN'T.

Kubota M-30-Series tractors range from 43 to 76 horsepower. So they're big enough to do all kinds of chores around a farm. And they're loaded with standard features.

For example, wet disc brakes, hydraulic draft, position and combination implement control. Power steering and direct fuel-injection also come standard. You can choose a 2- or 4-wheel drive model.

It's easy to see why we say Kubota standard tractors aren't. They've got all the features you need to take on a big workload. In fact, the only thing small about 'em is the price.

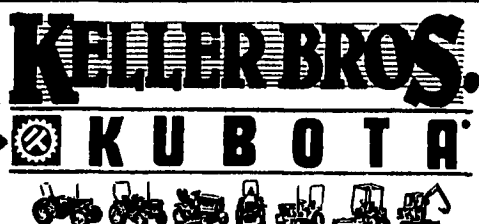

Come in soon and take a look at our new standards.

Radio Ads Highlight Milk

COLUMBIS, Ohio — Pennsylvania's official beverage - milk - is the focus of two new radio advertisements which began airing throughout the Commonwealth, this month.

Guernseys Break Records

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — A pair of two-year-old cows, Rozelyn Rons Jocelyn and Land Of Living Invest Kiss, have recently completed 30,000 pound milk records. These are the first two-year-olds in breed history to complete production records over 30,000M.

These high production credits are only one of the things these two young cows have added to the list of their credentials.

Rozelyn Rons Jocelyn, bred and owned by Rozelyn Farm of Lynden, Washington, is the recipient of all four 1989 national production awards. The awards will be presented at the National Convention in Evansville, Indiana. They are the New England GBA Trophy for the highest Manure Equivalent (ME) milk record; the Nyla Bedford Trophy for the highest two-year-old ME record; the Tarbell Trophy for the highest ME butterfat record and the California Protein Award for the highest ME protein record. Her 2-03 record also qualifies her for Milk Flow Queen status. In 305 days she made 28,090M* 1,383F* 1,078P*. Her record at 365 days, is 32,850M* 1,611F* 1,271P*. This 365 day record ranks her first for all three production categories in the junior two-year-old cow division.

She has type and pedigree as well. Scored Excellent as a two-year-old, she is a daughter of Idle Neer Rondas Hornet. Her Plainview Farm Top Hornet, national class-leading dam made over 140,000M lifetime. Jocelyn's maternal sister, Rozelyn Ables Jackie was scored VG-85 and produced over 29,000M 1,400F 1,100P. This national class-leading sister was also a Gold Star Dam.

Land Of Living Invest Kiss not only produced over 30,000M but is the breed's youngest cow to be scored Excellent-94. This 1989 All-American Three-Year-Old made national class leading records with 26,750M* 1,203F* 910P in 305 days and 31,220M* 1,434F* 1,091P* in 365 days at two years and 10 months. These records ranked her number one for 305 day milk and protein production and fourth for butterfat as a

The "Top 10 Reasons Why Milk is the Choice of Pennsylvanians" were developed by the American Dairy Association on behalf of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc., Mid East United Dairy Industry Association, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

The 60-second ads are a spin-off of the American Dairy Association's popular "Top 10 Reasons" national campaign which began airing last December.

The "Top 10" campaign emphasizes health, nutrition and taste, with an element of humor to make the messages more memorable to radio listeners.

The ads target the 18- to 49-year-old audience with the goal of making milk top-of-mind because adults don't always think of milk's nutritional value as an important part of meals and snacks.

And it is the aging baby boomers, the 25- to 49-year-olds, who offer a tremendous potential in building milk's share of the total beverage market.

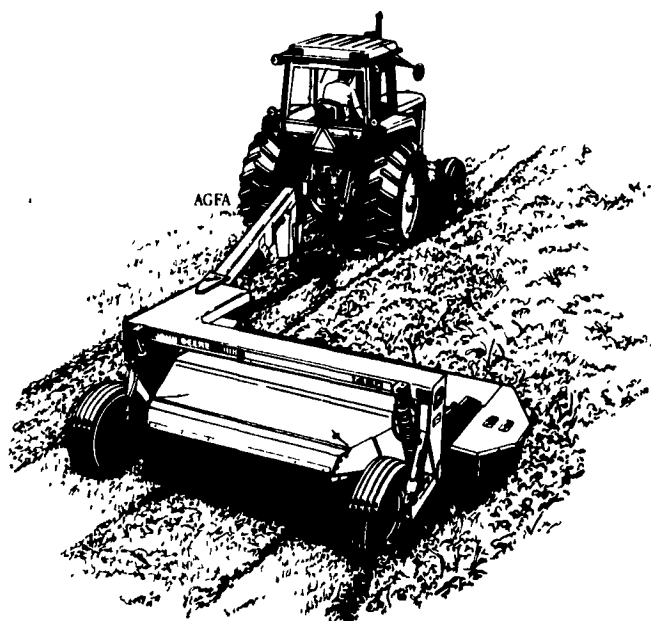

The "Pennsylvania Top 10" offer such notable inclusions as: "It is the official state liquid of Pennsylvania;" "The Nittany Lions put it on their training table, shouldn't you?;" "It must be good for you, they drink it by the pailful in Lancaster County;" "It's the unofficial beverage of Lackawanna County;" and "Milk's protein makes Interstate driving a ball."

These commercials will continue to run through June 3. They will then be aired in the fall on a rotating basis with the four new national versions of the American Dairy Association's "Top 10 Reasons."

Low Cost Ventilation For Your Dairy Barn

CHORE-TIME

Chore-Time's 36" diameter Panel Fan offers an ideal balance of energy-efficiency, air moving muscle, and long-life reliability. By hanging the fans from the ceiling, and using Chore-Time's unique Oscillator Drive, uniform air movement is achieved.

Tests have demonstrated that, when using a mister in conjunction with the fans, milk production, reproduction, and weight retention are enhanced.

Oscillator provides uniform air movement in all parts of the barn. One Oscillator works all fans in a free-stall barn.

Our fans can be mounted to move air down the length of a building — or on the outside walls to blow air in or out.

PORTABLE HI-OUTPUT FAN GOES WHERE IT'S NEEDED
Chore-Time's Portable Fan is ideal where easy mobility is desired — and where high-output at low energy cost is needed. This, as well as our 36" Panel Fan above, produces 108,000 CFM on 1/2 hp motor (chart below refers to both fans). Both have galvanized steel blade, shroud, and other metal parts. Motors have self-aligning ball bearings — not just sleeves.

Put a Vicon three-bladed disc mower through wet, tangled crops—even fire ant hills—and then compare the difference.

With almost double the number of cuts per minute over two-bladed competitors, and the extra suction created by Vicon's unique triangular discs, it's easy to see why Vicon CM disc mowers are the choice for fast, clean NO-PLUG performance.

Rugged, low profile cutterbars in 5'6", 6'9" and 7'10" widths, reversible blades and heavy duty discs, deliver reliability and capacity when time is tight.

SPREAD's THE WORD

Spread's the word at Ideal Industries with a line of manure spreaders that are big on performance - but easy on your budget! Ideal's Nu Hawk flail tank spreaders offer a more efficient, less expensive solution to all your manure spreader needs. And Nu Hawk spreaders are competitively priced to provide a more economical way to fertilize and build up the organic matter in your soil.

Built to meet your complete loading and spreading requirements, Nu Hawk spreaders provide a variety of features and options for consistent year round spreading of all types of manure.

All Nu Hawk models offer either right or left side discharge and a straight or folding rear panel to clear low barn cleaners. As well, Nu Hawk's tractor controlled hydraulic lid openers and copper bearing steel lids and tanks resist damaging corrosive manure acids.

For more information on Ideal's new line of Nu Hawk flail tank spreaders, see your local Nu Hawk dealer.

Rear drive.

This heavy duty enclosed drive system features rugged high speed chain and sprockets, trouble-free ball bearings and massive alloy shafts. Shafts are welded and permanently aligned in the auger tubing to eliminate shimming of flanges and to maintain alignment. Entire system runs continuously in an enclosed oil bath for added protection and longer life.

Tuff-Glide bearings.

Sleeve type front auger bearings made from 1/2" Tuff-Glide require no grease and are not affected by moisture or acid. Greatly extend bearing life and reduce friction for smoother performance over a longer period of time.

Patented square auger design.

Proven square sectional top augers provide outstanding agitator mixing action. Each unique square corner grabs the ration to produce a thorough blending of ingredients. Heavy-duty sectional notched bottom auger and exclusive Oswalt "shear-shelf" construction help eliminate wedging by pulling roughage materials apart.

Easy to replace. Designed to release at torque level of 100% above normal mixing requirements. Easily accessible.

These Oswalt Mixers do a better job of mixing and carry the industry's only five-year mixer warranty!

Mix and process your rations and hay... the Oswalt way

Better design and more know-how have made Oswalt the leader in mixing.

Oswalt TMR/Hay Processors are clearly superior in their ability to mix all types of ration ingredients, including dry hay. A reel-type mixer, particularly when fully loaded, retains a quantity of the dry hay in the center of the reel which then simply turns over with the reel and receives little mixing. Your hay just gets a free ride and your final mix is uneven at best. In an Oswalt TMR/Hay Processor, the hay is processed and evenly and aggressively mixed throughout the ration. It has no place to hide.

A key element of mixing dry hay into a ration is processing the hay while all ration ingredients are being mixed. That means tearing the hay apart and reducing fiber length during the mixing process.

In an Oswalt, the notched bottom auger working against the shear shelf, does the primary job of tearing the hay slabs apart and reducing the length of long hay stems.

Exports Boost Ag Sales

READING (Berks Co.) — Pennsylvania farmers and agribusinesses exported roughly $236 million worth of food and other agricultural products in 1988, according to Ezekiel S. Ketchum, president and chief operating officer of Meridian Bancorp, Inc.

In the April issue of Ag Letter, Meridian's quarterly agribusiness newsletter, Ketchum told readers, "When you sell to an offshore buyer, you don't just shuffle American dollars from one U.S. bank account to another. You actually bring new money into the U.S. economy."

"Agricultural products are one of the best means of offsetting the tremendous amounts of money we pump into the economies of our trading partners when we buy their products," he said.

In an Ag Letter feature story, the complications and the promises of selling to overseas buyers were topics of a discussion between Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff; Ronald Gaskill, director of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Market Development; and William Hughes, Meridian's vice president for agricultural lending.

Gaskill said the Department of Agriculture expands foreign sales of Pennsylvania products by promoting them overseas, by keeping farmers and processors informed about the possibilities, and by lending technical assistance to individuals and firms who need help getting their products into the hands of foreign buyers.

Secretary Wolff cited as one example a maple syrup producer who came to the department for help in filling an order for an Italian buyer. The department helped him overcome packaging hurdles he needed to clear before the Italian government would allow his syrup into the country.

Two of Meridian's customers were cited in another Ag Letter story as export success stories. Scott Sechler, president of Sechler Poultry, Inc. in Strausstown is the biggest U.S. exporter of chicken to Canada.

Sechler points out in the article that the export part of his business was filled with hassles when he started 13 years ago. But by giving the Canadian buyers what they want, and by making certain he meets Canada's stringent sanitation requirements for his trucks, he's been able to build a solid reputation and a profitable business in Canada.

Dale Schnupp, once a Myers-town chicken farmer, is now a manufacturer of grain roasters, some of which he sells to Canadian buyers. Unlike Sechler, Schnupp doesn't actively court orders from foreign buyers, but he's happy to build a roaster for anybody anywhere in the world.

In addition to Canada, Schnupp has sold roasters to Czechoslovakia and Mexico, and has inquiries from other South American countries and from Africa.

Both Sechler and Schnupp stressed the need for perseverance in dealing with export regulations. Both also said they had succeeded in exports not by underpricing foreign vendors, but by supplying premium product at a profitable price.

The Ag Letter is published four times a year by Meridian Bank's Ag Lending Department.

For more information about the issues covered in the latest edition, or to receive a free copy, write to Meridian Bank, Ag Lending Department, PSC-8, P.O. Box 1102, Reading, PA 19603, (800) 222-2150.

U. of Del. Pest Hotline Ready

NEWARK, Del. — University of Delaware cooperative extension is again using its crop pest hotline to report on in-season crop pest activity as part of its integrated pest management (IPM) program. The code-a-phone system is already on line.

The hotline provides farmers with information on field scouting methods; first outbreaks of pests; peak pest activity; economic threshold information; and treatment options for insects, weeds, and diseases in commercial crops.

Information for these reports will be collected by IPM scouts, USDA-APHIS survey personnel, extension specialists, and agents and private consultants.

The hotline information will be updated weekly during May. New reports will go on the system by 10 a.m. Wednesdays. During June, July, and August, messages will be updated by noon on Tuesdays and Fridays.

Delaware residents can reach the hotline by dialing (800) 345-7544. Out-of-state residents should call (302) 451-8851.

THE SEED FOR FEED

Management For Grazing TE HAYGRAZER II

HAYGRAZER II is the summer annual that all hybrid sorghum sudans are compared to. Properly managed, it makes more TDN per acre than any crop you care to mention. It is a multi-purpose crop that can be used for grazing, hay, green chop, haylage, green manure, or for a cover crop.

HAYGRAZER II grows extremely fast, sometimes 2" per day under ideal conditions. It produces enormous amounts of lush green foliage. After cutting, each stalk produces 5-10 tillers which provide amazing regrowth.

Extension Assigns Agent

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — George R. Hurd, formerly of Indiana, Pennsylvania, has recently joined the cooperative extension staff of Franklin County, according to county extension director John Z. Shearer. While he will be stationed in Franklin County, Hurd will also be serving Adams, Cumberland, and York counties.

Hurd will serve as environment and urban rural resource development agent in the four-county area. His educational programming areas will include solid waste management, recycling, land-use issues, and issues relating to rural-urban interface.

"Hurd's experience as environmental planner and county recycling coordinator for Indiana County (including the development of Indiana's solid waste management plan) makes him a valuable asset to the four-county area," said Shearer.

As a member of the Penn State cooperative extension staff, Hurd will be available to provide educational assistance to county, township, and boro officials, as well as to professional engineering firms and other individuals. He will also be available to address service clubs, civic clubs, and other organizations on environmentally related issues. Hurd will be working under the direction of Dr. Paul Wangsness, Capital Region extension director, and Shearer. His services are available by calling any of the four county cooperative extension offices or (717) 263-9226.

Family Is Paramount At Tri-Day Farm

BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent
SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — When Curtis Day, 46, moved from Damascus, Maryland, to Shippensburg he brought his wife, children and cows with him, of course. He also brought his parents. And his grandmother.

But, if you've ever met the Day family, that really isn't so surprising. While quality cattle are important at Tri-Day Farm, family is paramount. All family members except Day's 91-year-old grandmother, Bessie Howes, who is now in a nursing home, are involved with the day-to-day operation of the farm.

Day's wife Ann, who grew up on a dairy farm in Rosemount, Minnesota, does the inside and outside feeding of the family's 51 head of registered Holsteins. Cows are milked in 59 comfort stalls with a pipeline, but are housed in freestalls. They are fed a TMR on the bunk, and the highest-producing ones receive a topdress in the barn. A graduate of the University of Minnesota, Ann is a registered pharmacist, but has not sought off-farm employment since moving to Pennsylvania. She is responsible for the farm's computerized record keeping.

Sons Matthew, 11, and David, 9, rise at 4:50 every morning to help milk the cows before leaving for school. Seven-year-old Sarah does not help with morning chores, but she feeds hay to the cows in the evening.

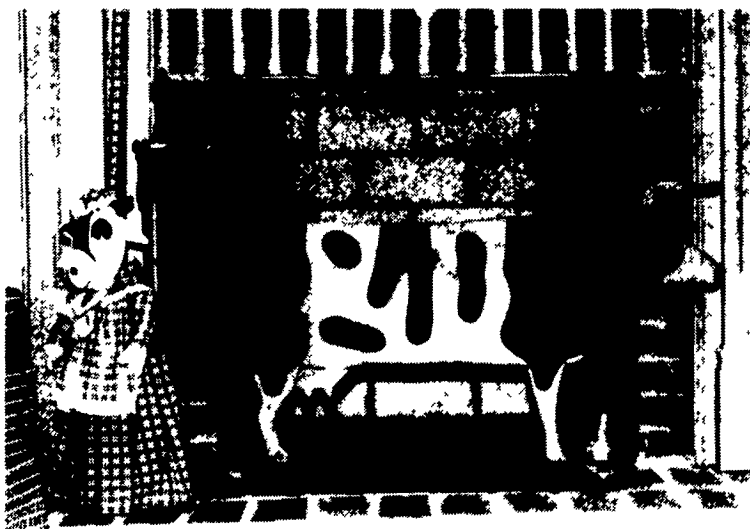

Lucille Day, 71, Curtis's mother, takes care of the calves, while her husband, Roger, hauls manure almost daily and does much of the other tractor work. Various family members feed the operation's 43 heifers.

"In Maryland, I helped him; here, he helps me," Day said of his 72-year-old father. The younger Day, an only child, worked for the United States Postal Service as a mail carrier for 26 years, which he said eventually led to high blood pressure and frequent headaches. During that time, he helped his parents milk 25-30 cows. After he and Ann married and had three children, "we decided to milk cows," he said. "We looked at farms (in Maryland), but urban sprawl had made land prices high. We looked around and saw this place," about 90 miles from their former home. "We didn't want to wait any longer, so we made the plunge," he said, and moved to Shippensburg in May 1989. He had quit the Post Office only a month before.

Now, "my blood pressure is lower every time it's checked," (Turn to Page E9)

Day said, "and I haven't had a headache since we moved here." He admits to mowing the grass for relaxation.

The Days spent only about a month in the 120-acre farm's original house, which they had planned to remodel. However, when rotted beams caused the middle section to sag, and water came through the bricks into the living room, they consulted an expert. It was determined that it would be more cost-effective to destroy the old house and build a new one rather than try to fix the original house's myriad problems.

"We were classifying the same day the house was bulldozed," Day said. "We were out in the barn, and I looked over and told Ann, 'There goes your house.'"

Neighbors salvaged some beams and other items from the house before it was demolished. The Days incorporated two items — a chandelier and a mantelpiece—into the 2,300 square foot house they built on the site.

The old house was bulldozed on July 3, 1989, and the Days moved into their new home shortly before Thanksgiving of the same year. While waiting for the house to be built, Curtis and Ann and family lived with the elder Days in a house at the end of the lane. Roger and Lucille built a new home nearby also, moving into it in February 1990.

The Day's new house is open and spacious, with oak floors in the living room and dining room. All the decorating, which includes many cow motifs, was done by Ann without the assistance of a decorator. Some of Ann's handiwork — she is proficient at sewing, tole painting and braiding rugs — is displayed in the home.

"The old house had four or five bedrooms," she said, "and we had promised each of the children their own bedroom. We had to stick with that promise," so the new home includes four bedrooms upstairs.

The huge, beautifully furnished living room is partially the result of sacrificing a portion of the front porch to bump the front wall of the living room out several feet. While Ann's dream house would include a porch that wrapped around the entire house, her husband said, "We don't have time to sit on the porch, anyway."

But the Days do take time to participate in activities with their

The "Quality Crafted" Line

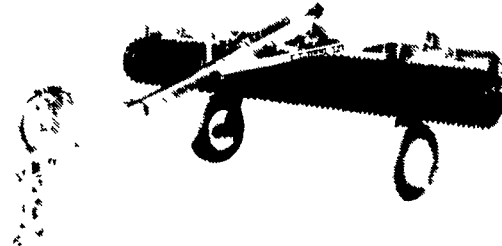

Better Seedbeds...Better Stands!

SINGLE GANG PULVERIZERS

This model pulverizer has earned a reputation as one of the industry's huskiest, heaviest smooth wheel pulverizers available, weighing in at approximately 130 pounds per rolling foot 10 ft. thru 16 ft.

P10 PULVERIZERS

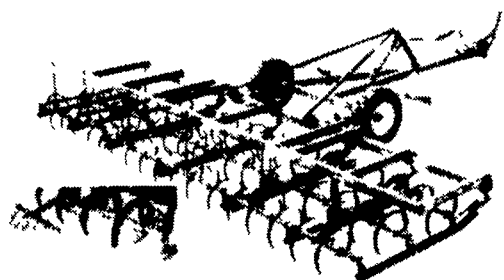

P10 SERIES TRANSPORT CONCEPT Brillion's transport concept is new to the industry. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduces drawbar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transporting. 10 ft. thru 16 ft. AVAILABLE WITH 20" DUCTILE WHEEL.

X-FOLD PULVERIZERS

The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers... and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 36'.

CART HARROWS

CART MOUNTED HARROWS Allows each section of the harrow to follow the contour of the ground but also has a cart that converts the machine for easy transport. 16 ft., 20 ft. & 24 ft.

20 INCH DUCTILE

ROLLER WHEELS

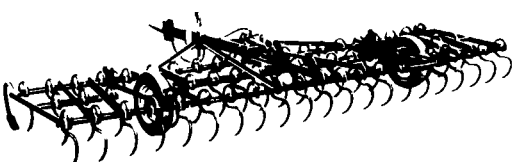

The fact that Brillion leads the industry in the sale of Pulverizers and Pulvi-Mulchers is because all Brillion Roller Wheels are made in Brillion's own modern foundry. This directly affects the cost and quality of these machines and gives Brillion a considerable advantage over the competition. Brillion's newest design, a 20", six spoke ductile iron notched wheel, carries a FIVE-YEAR LIMITED WARRANTY AGAINST BREAKAGE.

XXL PULVERIZER

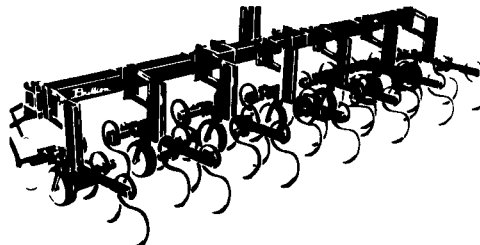

The XXL is designed to match large-sized tillage tools. Working widths are 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 feet, yet the XXL folds down to only 16 feet 5 inches for transport. Brillion's lighter weight, 20-inch ductile iron roller wheels make it possible to widen the machine without drastically increasing the weight.

SPRINGTOOTH HARROWS with "INSTANT" TRANSPORT

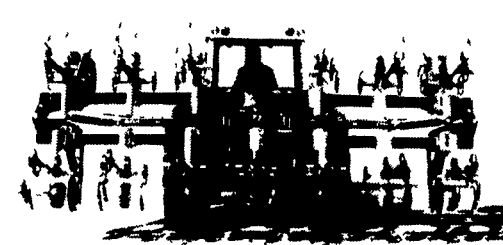

STS and STR series have low profile design with heavier tooth mounting bars, longer wheel wells and PRE-SET depth control. STR models have "C" shaped or ribbon teeth. STS models are equipped with spring tines. 8 to 20 ft.

"S" TINE CULTIVATORS

The "S" tine has a four-way tooth movement that is designed for high speed cultivation in conjunction with chemical weed control. The spring tines perform well in dry or wet soil, even in rocky ground. The vibrating tines not only kill weeds, but also mulch the soil and level the ground. 4, 6 & 8 Row.

FLAT FOLD CULTIVATORS

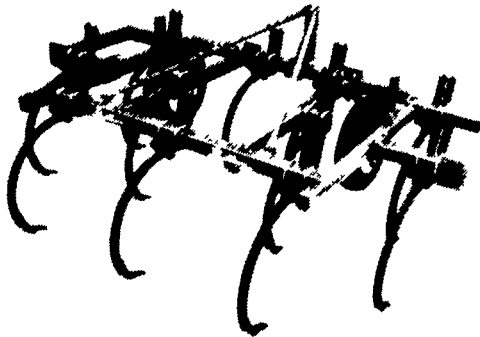

This distinctive Brillion features results from rigid parallel links made of high strength gray iron — each link weighs 12 pounds. The ends are fitted with 2" wide Nylatron sleeve bearings. With this wide bearing surface, frequent resettings in the field are eliminated. 6-8-12 Row.

FLAIL SHREDDERS

MOUNTED CHISEL PLOWS

The CPP series of mounted models enables you to turn short and fast... to transport easily, utilizing your tractor's hydraulic system. 7, 9, 11, 13 or 10, 12, 14, 16 ft.

SUB-SOILERS

The husky, curved shanks of the Sub-Soiler dig down as deep as 16 inches, shattering compacted layers of plow sole and lifting the hardpan while it is being broken. 3, 5, 7, 9, 11 shanks.

DEEP TILLS

This 9 shank model has a cutting width of 11'3" and is fitted with the optional drawbar hitch. It is equipped with the coulter gang assembly, which has 10" vertical adjustment. Shanks are set at 15" spacing but may be converted to 30" spacing by raising the rear row of shanks. Depth is controlled by hydraulic gauge wheels.

3-SHANK DEEP TILLS

The three shank model, shown above, has a Category II hitch. With a cutting width of 7'6", it is ideal for operators with smaller acreages and horsepower. It is extremely maneuverable, yet provides the same basic deep tilling job as its "big brothers."

7-SHANK DEEP TILLS

The 7 shank model shown here, as well as the 5 shank model, has a Category III hitch. This model is equipped with single individual trash cutting coulters and cuts a 17'6" width. It uses manual gauge wheels.

AG SEEDERS

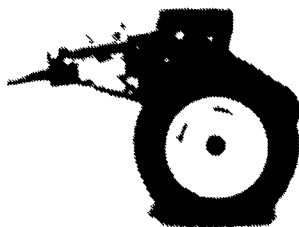

SURE-STAND SEEDERS Get robust, productive stands every time by putting the seed into the ground where it belongs. Saves up to 50% on seed costs. 5 ft., 8 ft., 10 ft. & 12 ft.

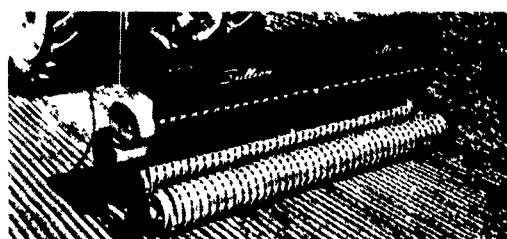

HYDRAULIC TRANSPORT KITS FOR SURE STAND & TURF MAKER GRASS SEEDERS

IN TRANSPORT

Your seeder is raised by your tractor's hydraulic system. Seed rollers have about 11" of ground clearance. A hinge type transport lock, similar to that used on other Brillion machines is simple, yet secure for road travel. Kit includes hoses to tractor, four flow restrictors, cylinders and transport locks.

TURF MAKER SEEDERS

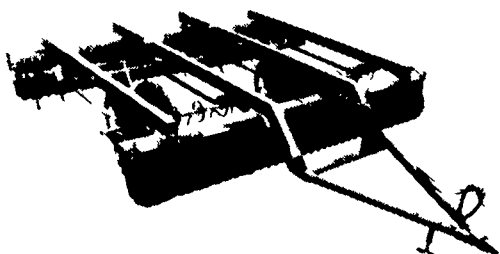

This Brillion specialty seeder utilizes the same world famous seeding method made popular by the "Sure-Stand" agricultural model grass seeder. Variations in seedbox capacity and seed metering mechanisms make these the ideal seeder for special requirements of professional landscapers, turf and sod raisers. 10 ft.

88-INCH PULVI-MULCHERS

This 88" Pulvi-Mulcher was originally designed for the European market, to meet transport limits. However, this new width has found a home among American operators who have limited width requirements...like truck farmers, nurserymen, fruit and vegetable growers.

ML SERIES PULVI-MULCHERS

PULVI-MULCHERS Build a firm clod-free seedbed — one that lets all the seeds germinate at one time. 12 ft., 13 ft., 8", & 15 ft.

WLS PULVI-MULCHERS

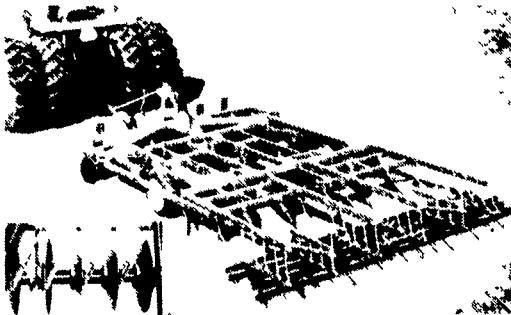

The latest example of how Brillion has met the challenge of the earth and the competition. The front rollers break up surface clods. "C" shaped ribbon teeth or "S" spring tine teeth break up the soil to 6" in depth and pulls clods to the surface. 21 ft. 8", 25 ft. & 30 ft.

SOIL BUILDERS

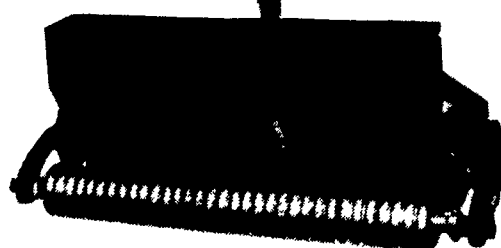

SUPER SOIL BUILDERS Expanded frame for residue flow-thru without plugging. Coulter gang can be hydraulically controlled to save maintenance dollars. 5, 7, 9 & 11 shank.

SOIL GROOMERS

Main illustration shows 12-foot Soil Groomer with spike drag harrows. Inset photo shows new disc arrangement with 18" dia. discs that move soil inward to reduce ridging. Scrapers are adjustable. 12 to 30 ft.

LANDSCAPE SEEDERS

Like the larger models, the 5'4" crushes, seeds and rolls in one operation, tucking seeds in the top 1/4" of the soil... in a firm clod-free seedbed that gives thick, even stands at greatly reduced seeding costs. The shallower seeding depth is just right for controlled moisture and growth conditions.

children.

Last summer, Ann used an old bridesmaid's dress to make a Cinderella costume for Matthew's cow, Luscious. Matthew dressed as Prince Charming, and the pair was named overall champions at the Maryland State Fair. Their photo appeared in the July 1989 issue of "National Geographic World," with the slogan, "Milk's the One" prominently displayed on the cow's side.

The family recently hosted the fourth grade class from Corpus Christi, a Catholic school in Chambersburg. All three Day children attend the school, and are the only students who live on a working farm. David showed his classmates the chickens he raises, and Curtis explained the various stages of a cow's life, showing them the calves, heifers, dry cows and milk cows. He milked a cow for the children and showed them the feeders and other aspects of the operation. "We put in a plug for dairy products, too," Curtis said. "We fed them ice cream!"

The family was surprised to discover, upon reading thank-you notes from the children, that the item that most fascinated the students was the magnet given to cows for hardware.

Curtis serves as advisor to the Cumberland County Junior Dairy Bowl Team, of which David and Matthew are members. The team won a recent contest at Pennsylvania State University, with Matthew, a sixth grader, placing first in reasons and David ninth. The team also took third place at the Pennsylvania State Junior Holstein Convention in February.

Curtis brought excellent credentials to his position as advisor. In 1960 he won the national 4-H Dairy Cattle Judging Contest in Waterloo, Iowa. The next year, he earned the Highest Individual Scorer designation in the International Competition in Cambridge, England. The engraved, silver milk can trophy he won was presented to him by the Queen Mother of England.

He is no stranger to the show ring, either. "I'll judge any chance I get," he said. In April, he judged the 234 head of cattle entered in the Maryland Spring Show, and has been invited to judge the Franklin County 4-H Round-Up in August. His early mentors were John Morris and the late Dorothy Emerson.

The boys have inherited their father's love of show cattle. Both have show animals which they ready for the ring themselves. They also help select the sires for their show calves. "They are very involved and interested," Ann said. Curtis added, "If they're going to work, they will have a say, too."

The family showed at the Eastern Show in Harrisburg in September. Their three-year-old, Lyncholm Valor Pixie, took third place in her class and was named Total Performance Winner of the show. Pixie, an All-Pennsylvania three-year-old, also won the three-year-old class at the Southcentral Championship Show in August. The Days own this Sir C Valor daughter, who is classified 90 points, in partnership with Kingstead Farms. She is pictured on the cover of the Spring 1990 Holstein Directory of 21st Century Genetics.

At the Shippensburg Fair last July, the Days showed six heifers, and brought home top honors in the Junior Yearling, Senior Yearling and Junior Best Three Female classes.

At the Day's February 1990 classification their BAA was 105.6. They had three Excellent cows, one of which is a homebred animal, and 14 Very Goods.

In 1988 Tri-Day Farm received the Progressive Breeder Award

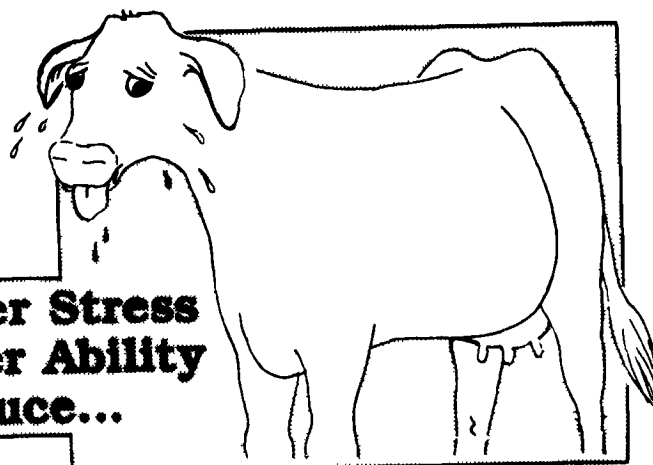

Ann does all the record keeping for the farm.

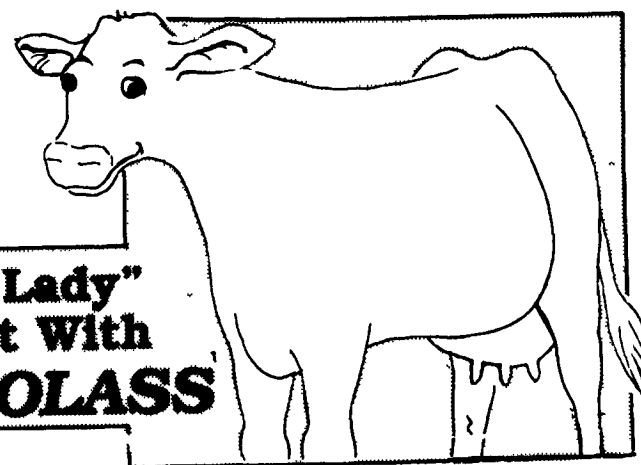

David takes full care of his poultry flock, collecting the eggs every day after school. He reports that he gets 9-11 eggs a day from his 13 hens.

Hot Weather Stress Reduces Her Ability To Produce...

Give "The Lady" A Boost With THERMOLASS

Hot weather is a major stress factor on your dairy cows' ability to produce their maximum potential. As a cow's body temperature increases she tends to experience a depressed appetite resulting in less intake of total feed. This leads to:

- A.) A Drop in Milk Production.
- B.) Depressed Butterfat Levels.
- C.) Reduced Reproductive Performance.
- D.) All of the Above — and none are Beneficial.

Thermolass, with it's high level of sugars provides a "quick-release" source of energy. In addition, Thermolass has proven to be a stimulant in increasing the cows appetite and aids in increasing rumen activity resulting in:

- A.) Increased net energy content of the total diet.
- B.) Increased digestibility performance.

The extra, "quick-release" energy, increased appetite, and stimulated rumen activity translates into healthy cows producing more milk and maintaining or slightly improving butterfat levels.

UNIONTOWN (Fayette Co.) — Fayette County cooperative extension will host the 1990 Pennsylvania Capon Conference on Wednesday, June 27 at the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Penn State University's capon production program, known nationwide for its leadership in the industry, continues to help producers improve their management, processing, and marketing skills. Capon production is an attractive enterprise for the part-time farmer, 4-H and FFA member, as well as the commercial poultry producer.

This year's program will include topics such as "The Prevention of Health Disorders in Cockrels Prior to Caponizing," "Success with A Commercial Capon Enterprise," "Organizing a 4-H Capon Program," "Getting Your Birds Off to a Fast Start," "Conducting Capon Research in the Field," "Processing Equipment," "Selecting Caponizing Tools," and a 4-H Capon Club members panel. During the final hour of the seminar, there will be an optional "hands-on" caponizing clinic.

To register for this event, send your check or money order in the amount of $11.00 per adult and $8.00 per person under 18 years of age to Capon Conference, c/o Wm. F. Gallagher, Fayette County Extension Office, Ground Floor, County Building, Uniontown, PA 15401. Make checks payable to 4H Operating Account-Fayette County.

The registration fee covers lunch, coffee breaks, and all educational materials. Registration should be sent no later than June 20, 1990.

The program will begin with registrations, coffee and doughnuts at 9 a.m. and conclude at 5 p.m., including the one-hour optional caponizing clinic.

Computer Serves As Almanac

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A new computer software package soon will give consumers the chance to sample Red Delicious, York Imperial, and other apple varieties grown with the help of artificial intelligence.

The software, developed over a period of four years by Penn State researchers, is one of the first expert systems available to fruit growers. "These systems are called 'expert' because they combine the knowledge of a wide variety of specialists and simulate the decision-making process they would use to solve problems," said Dr. James Travis, Penn State associate professor of plant pathology.

When growers who use the Penn State Apple Orchard Consultant turn on their computer, the knowledge of plant pathologists, entomologists, horticulturists, meteorologists, and economists is at their fingertips. Growers who need advice on how to manage their orchard can bypass the phone and consult the computer system.

"The system is more than just a collection of data," said Travis. "It's not just a computerized production guide — it actually helps growers think through a problem. The apple orchard consultant can evaluate information, diagnose problems and symptoms, and recommend action."

Using the software program, growers create a profile of their own orchard. They update that profile daily with information on weather conditions, insects and disease. Then they can present a problem to the system. The system considers all the variables and uses its storehouse of knowledge to offer recommendations.

Because the Penn State program treats every orchard as unique, there will be less need for growers to follow standard recommendations offered by printed production guides.

Consumers concerned about chemical residues in their food will be glad to note that this expert system takes a conservative approach to chemical applications by recommending cultural controls such as disease-resistant varieties, crop rotation, and biological control agents wherever possible.

"We find out more about alternative pest control strategies daily," said Travis. "It's always been complicated for growers to keep track of all the developments. An expert system can be updated much more quickly than a production guide, giving growers access to the most current information on pesticide use and legislation."

While the program is geared toward Pennsylvania apple growers, researchers at other universities have expressed interest in adapting it for local use.

Penn State researchers are working on expert systems for peaches, raspberries, beekeeping, turf, alfalfa and corn — laying the groundwork for the computer to become the farmer's almanac of the future.

It is twice as absorbent, provides better fly control, reduces ammonia odor, and carries neither dust nor fungus, mold or other diseases. It spreads better, decomposes faster in soil and slurry systems and is weed free. Moreover, it should equal or surpass sawdust, shavings, straw and corn stover in providing necessary organic matter in the soil when manures containing it are spread.

Cedar Crest FFA Participates In Land Judging

The Lebanon County FFA land judging contest was recently held at the Dale Hoover farm in Annville.

Eighty contestants from county chapters of the FFA participated. The contestants scoring took into consideration aspects of the land like, slope, stoniness, texture, depth of soil and internal drainage.

The students also had to identify conservation practices to be used on the land and hazards in special uses, such as, home building and ponds. The top placings, both from Cedar Crest, were Brian Knapp and Chris Long who tied for first with a score of 260. Grant Sholly finished fourth with a score of 250.

The following members from the Cedar Crest Chapter also participated: George Steiner placed sixth with a score of 228. Steve Arnold and Jason Krall tied for seventh with a score of 223. Placing ninth was David Wease with a score of 222 and Greg Moyer finished tenth at 221.

Cedar Crest also had the top team. Adam Hain and Tim Eimenheiser from the Soil Conservation District and Service helped organize the event. Tim Eimenheiser was also the judge for the contest.

Cedar Crest FFA Holds Officer Elections

On April 26, the Cedar Crest FFA held its officer elections for 1990-91. The newly elected officers are president - John Risser; vice president - Ammon Peiffer; secretary - Chris Long; treasurer - George Steiner; reporter - Randy Brandt; sentinel - Jason Krall; chaplain - Brian Nornhold; parliamentarian - Nathan Seyfert; asst. secretary - Andy Schwab; asst. treasurer - Jamie Eisenhour; asst. reporter - Joey Kwaitkowski; and asst. vice president - Tom Camasta.

Ammon Peiffer and John Risser were also elected to Lebanon County FFA offices. They will represent Cedar Crest as county president and reporter, respectively. The new officers will be installed at a future meeting.

Middleburg FFA

Wayne Hassinger II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hassinger from RD Middleburg, placed second in the 1990 Regional FFA public speaking contest held at Montoursville High School.

The extemporaneous public speaking contest tests the student's ability to write, orally present the speech, and to answer questions in a controlled environment and a given time allotment.

The regional competition consisted of numerous FFA members who placed either first, second, or third in a 13-county competition.

The top three contestants will represent the north central region in the state contests, which will be held at The Pennsylvania State University in June.

Middleburg FFA Competes In Envirothon

On May 8, the Susquehanna Valley Conservation District sponsored the 1990 Area Envirothon at the Shikallemy Marina in Sunbury.

The competition tests the contestants abilities in such areas as soil management, aquatic resources, wildlife conservation, forestry, and current environmental issues.

This year, there were 40 teams represented, which consisted of almost 200 high school students from schools located in the Susquehanna Valley.

The Middleburg FFA Chapter sponsored two teams, which consisted of Paul Crawford, Corey Willow, Danny Bobb, Levi Aurand, and Boyd Martin on team A. On team B, the contestants from Middleburg FFA consisted of Richard Erdman, Ken Sims, Dan Huhns, and Chad Oldt.

The Middleburg FFA Chapter's team A placed first in the Envirothon and will represent the valley in the state competition, to be held in June. The Middleburg FFA Chapter's team B placed 13th in competition.

Parliamentary Procedure Team

The Kennard-Dale FFA Parliamentary Procedure Team recently won first place in both the county and area competitions. The team advances on to the regional contest held May 2, 1990 in Gettysburg.

A Parliamentary procedure team is judged on their parliamentary procedure abilities, public

NCGA, Others Support Clean Air Amendment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In a joint letter, the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF), the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), and the National Farmers Organization (NFO), have asked Congress to support an amendment to the Clean Air Act that would establish a national policy requiring the use of cleaner burning fuels in some of the nation's most polluted cities.

The amendment, introduced by Rep. Bill Richardson (D-NM), and Rep. Ed Madigan (R-IL), calls for a 2.7 percent oxygen content in all reformulated gasoline and requires a 25 percent cap on the aromatic components in reformulated gasoline.

In addition, the amendment sets standards for benzene, lead, additives, ozone-forming emissions, and hazardous air products aimed at seriously attacking the nation's polluted air problems.

"The use of oxygenates in gasoline will be the first step toward ensuring a cleaner environment for all Americans," said NCGA President Alan Kemper, a Lafayette, Indiana corn farmer.

"As the lead phase-down began in the late 1970s, the oil industry increased levels of aromatics such as benzene, toluene and xylene to boost octanol levels," Kemper said. "These components have been more harmful to public health and our environment than some of the lead they replaced."

Benzene is a known carcinogen and xylene is an extremely photo reactive compound that contributes significantly to the formation of ozone.

The Environmental Protection Agency has stated that the use of oxygenated fuels such as ethanol, ETBE, and MTBE in gasoline dramatically reduce the emission of poisonous carbon monoxide (CO). Because of this CO reduction, the formation of ozone is also substantially reduced.

"The primary objective of the Richardson-Madigan amendment is cleaner air, but it would also have a positive impact on our reliance on foreign oil imports and an improved balance of trade," Kemper said.

Board Announces Winner

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Ivan Strickler was named the third recipient of the Richard E. Lyng Award in a recent ceremony at the annual board meeting of the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board (NDPRB). The Lyng Award was created in 1988 to "recognize outstanding service to dairy promotion."

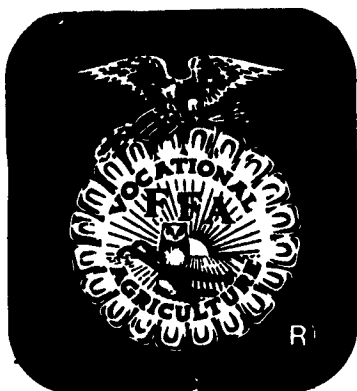

"From his chairmanship of one of America's largest dairy cooperatives, to the board of directors of the World Dairy Expo, to the presidency for the Holstein Association and more, Ivan Strickler has time and again demonstrated his commitment to building a strong coalition within the dairy industry. He is truly deserving of this public recognition and appreciation for his work on behalf of dairy farmers across America," said Richard E. Lyng, former secretary of agriculture in announcing the award.

Under Strickler's leadership, NDB has set new standards of excellence for promotional advertising.

The NDB has received more than 50 awards from various associations, agencies and magazines for its dairy promotion advertisements. Coalition building and cooperative efforts have also played a key role in the success of NDB's promotional efforts.

From the onset of the first joint endeavors of the NDB, Strickler generated outreach efforts to coordinate projects with national, regional and local dairy groups to create unified dairy campaigns to increase dairy consumption.

Former recipients of the Richard E. Lyng Award include: 1988-Richard E. Lyng; 1989-Eugene C. Meyer and Joseph J. Westwater.

A Personal View Of Dry House Farm

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — From up on the catwalk, I could see everything — the heifer pens and freestalls, the bunk feeder with cattle, the milking parlor, the bank barn, both dry manure storage areas, and the pit. I could also see a lot of this farm's 100 acres. And if I followed the catwalk back to the bank barn and peaked out through the big doors, I could see the calf pens and machinery shed. My only worry was dropping the camera.

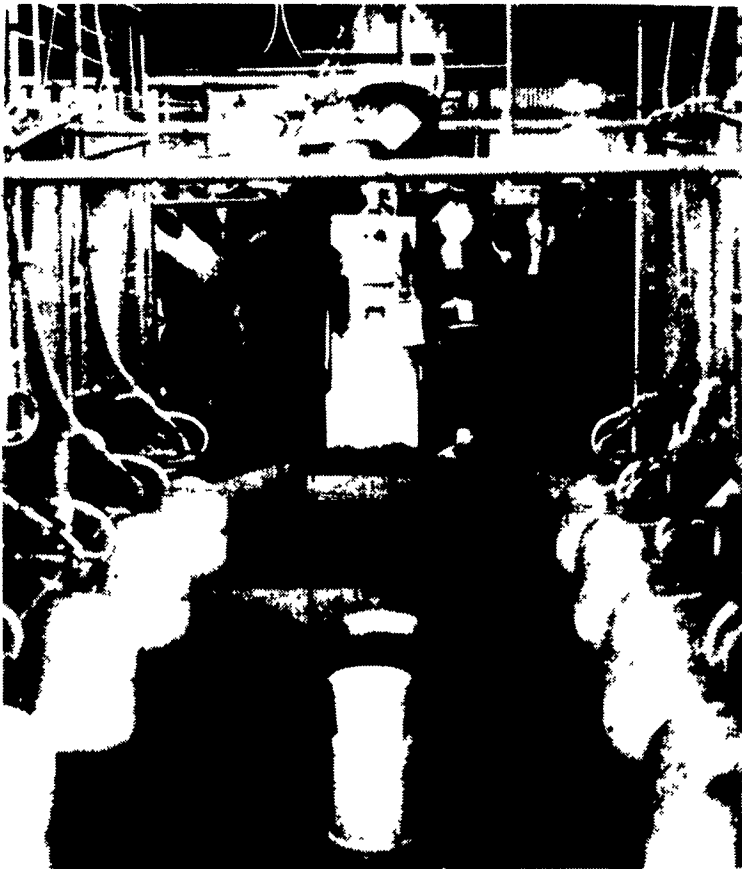

Everywhere you look on Dry House Farm, you see efficiency. Owned by brothers Lester and Ray Yoder of Belleville, Mifflin County, Dry House Farm's 100-cow dairy set-up is both work and time efficient. Because of dedication to their church and community, Ray explains, "We want a setup that we can have time off or even have time to go to meetings — where one guy can do the work."

The layout of the buildings on Dry House Farm are work and time efficient in themselves. With the milking parlor and bank barn at one end, the adjoining building, a three-sided structure under one roof, runs for 208 feet. The farm's only bunk feeder runs lengthwise. Parallel to the feeder on the long open side is the pit with manure storage areas at both ends. Beside the bank barn, under the roof, lies the heifer pen, a freestall for up to 40 milk cows (high producers); a storage area for hay, sawdust, and tractor (for cleaning out); a freestall area for 40 low producers; and a dry cow and bred heifer area. Cornstalk bedding is used in the heifer area. In the freestalls, sawdust is used over buried tires. The old stanchion barn provides a convenient work area for the vet with room for 10-15 cows. Adjacent to this, a homemade headgate and holding pen make maneuvering heifers easier for artificial insemination. When leaving the milking parlor, a series of gates guide cows to either of these pens or out to the bunk feeder. All cattle feed at the same bunk but at different times and are maneuvered by gates. Many of the gates are drive-through with strands of electric wire dangling down. This makes cleaning out less of a nightmare since it is done twice a day.

Lester and Ray keep flies to a minimum by using the Mister Fly system, which runs the full length of the open barn. The mister sprays diluted Pyrethrins four times a day.

Hay is stored in the top of the bank barn and, by sliding down properly placed chutes along the catwalk, the hay is fed to older calves housed below. The catwalk also enables Lester and Ray to easily check the cattle at night.

Two- to three-day-old calves ride to the calf hutches in a hand-pulled cart, much like a golf cart only longer. In designing the calf hutches, Ray and Lester allowed for more pens than needed. Each cleaned pen air dries, eliminating the need for disinfecting. At one end, a small elevator runs hay and bedding above the calf pens to be stored.

The milking parlor on Dry House Farm, with features such as automatic take-offs, make milking a one-man operation.

Lester and Ray kept fellow basketball players in mind when planning their machinery shed. The 64-footx80-foot metal building houses equipment on both sides, but the center, with its high trusses and paved floor, is reserved for the full-length basketball court. Along one wall, stairs go up to a platform where shop tools and equipment hang neatly on the wall. The milking parlor, built in

LEADERSHIP AT WORK™

With a farm that is time and work efficient, Ray spends more time with his wife Jane; son Jason (pictured here), 9; and daughter Kristina, 6.

All cattle are fed at different times at Yoder's only bunk feeder. Ninety cows are fed in 15 minutes.

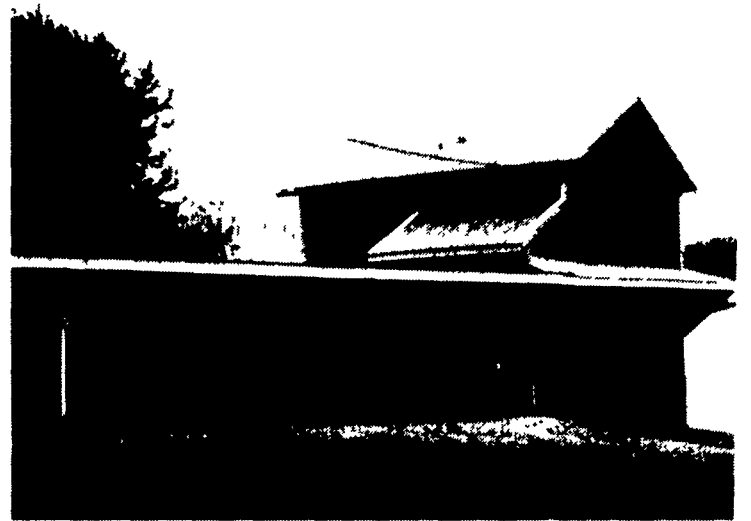

Lester took a couple of years to plan. Lester traveled from Jersey to Michigan to look at parlors. "The parlor itself is designed for a one man operation — to catch the cows, to hold a sick cow, as well as for the vet — to keep cows in," Ray explains. The double five parlor has automatic take-offs, a full length overhead door where the cattle come in, and a crowd gate. Above the ceiling, through vents, a 36-inch fan draws fresh air in from outside. Sliding glass doors at the other end provide sun-whoever is milking.

When the parlor was installed, Lester and Ray implemented a work schedule where one man milks each morning from 4:30-7:00 and the other milks in the evening from 3:30-6:00. While one person milks, the other feeds and cleans out. This schedule is kept for a week until Sunday when they switch. The Sunday morning milker milks again Sunday evening and continues with evening milking the following week. Ray dule so "we both know what's going on. Whoever milks in the evening is responsible to check the cows," Ray explains.

When field work needs to be done, one person can continue the field work while the other milks and feeds. Dry House Farm operates without regular full- or part-time help. Ray's wife, Jane, helps with the feeding when needed.

Dry House Farm's calf hutches have hay and bedding stored above.

Lester Yoder farms with his brother Ray. One man milks mornings (4:30-7:00) for one week while the other milks afternoons (3:30-6:00).

Lester and Ray's sound herd management has earned them the President's Club Award from Pennfield feeds. This award recognizes herds with an average of 20,000 pounds of milk and 700 pounds of butterfat. Dry House Farm's herd average, which has been going up for the past three years, is currently 20,190 pounds, 626 pounds protein, and 3.6 fat.

Factors contributing to higher herd averages include genetics and a solid feed program. Lester and Ray participate in ABS's Genetic Mating Service, which matches cows with bulls.

To feed efficiently, the Yoders have divided the herd. The high producers, fed for 80 pounds of milk, receive high moisture corn, 38 percent protein pellets, 2 pounds of hay per day, and 1/4 haylage and 1/4 corn silage as their forage. Low producers are fed for 50 pounds of milk. The high producers are milked first in the morning and last in the evening for maximum milk production.

Amazingly, 90 cows are fed in 15 minutes. The three silos unload onto three separate belts that weigh the feed. These belt-weighers feed onto a single belt that carries the ingredients to the bunk feeder.

Herd management also includes health care. In the milking parlor, each cow's bag is cleaned with a damp paper towel. To help prevent mastitis, Ray and Lester never spray the bag to wash it. Their herd's somatic cell count is below 96,000. After the cows are milked, the cows walk through a fiberglass foot bath filled with copper sulfate. This is done three days out of the week for foot rot.

In speaking of future changes, Lester and Ray believe that the present herd size is enough for two people. The silage capacity, herd size, and amount of work are all in balance. To add anything would "throw everything else out of whack."

Ray and Lester own and manage a farm that is not only productive, but efficient and enjoyable. Ray, his wife Jane, and their two children, Jason, 9, and Kristina, 6, spend free time hiking and visiting places such as zoos. Ray also teaches Sunday School, is on the Worship Committee and Board of Elders. Lester is DHIA's local president, is on the Crops Association board, and the Farmers Milk Handlers board. Also, he is on the Sunday Evening Program Committee at the Maple Grove Mennonite Church.

Dry House Farm, in the family since 1927, has hosted tours for Penn State's Dairy Science classes, grade school groups, the Rotary Club, bankers and churches. Last year 15 Japanese extension agents and farmers visited Lester and Jay's farm. From atop the catwalk, which runs the length of the barns, one can see Dry House Farm's efficiency at work.

Dairy Farmers Receive $12.75 For April Milk

THOMAS JURCHAK
Extension Agent

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — After dropping from a record high of $1.54 last November, cheese prices plummeted 28 cents to $1.26 in February and dropped the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series $2.91, from $14.93 in December to $12.02 in March. Helping were the declining exports of powder.

Then, while everyone was bracing for further drops as we headed for the spring flush with increasing milk production, cheese prices rebounded an unprecedented 11 cents to $1.37 the first week of May. At the same time, powder prices stiffened in response to a strong domestic demand.

The two combined to increase the M-W to $12.75, the forecasters back to their drawing boards to revise their farm price projections for this summer and fall.

With the volatility of dairy product prices, there was some concern about holding the $1.37 on cheese prices, but even that record high for April improved another penny by the end of the month.

At $12.32 the April M-W is the highest for the month since 1983; when it got there because the support price was $13.10 and the Commodity Credit Corporation of USDA was buying cheese for $1.39, butter at $1.49 and powder at 94 cents to support the milk price.

So, we still have a record for April this year and we did it with market prices rather than support prices.

What Next?

On the theory that there's a reason for everything, even in a year when dairy product prices and milk prices that follow are providing surprises almost monthly, you have to ask what happened this time and what may happen next?

Cheesemakers normally would be expected to be building their inventories at this time of the year when milk supplies are ample in anticipation of increasing sales in the fall for the holidays.

They got burned last spring when milk production in Minnesota and Wisconsin dropped dramatically in the spring when it should have been increasing. That was one of the reasons for your record high milk prices last fall and what made cheese prices go from $1.13 last spring to $1.54 in November.

So, one explanation is that cheese dealers are beginning to fill their supply pipe lines as they normally would now and that's why cheese prices advanced 11 cents last month.

That may have been partially true but the cold storage holdings don't show that.

Private stocks of cheddar cheese in March were only three percent higher than a year ago, when they were pretty low.

Another explanation and part of the answer is that milk supplies aren't increasing as rapidly as the current demand for cheese and dealers are selling cheese as fast as they can make it with the available milk.

In either case, it appears that cheese prices and the M-W may have bottomed out already and the 30 cent increase in April is the start of a trend that will continue through the summer.

There are some forecasters who are now predicting that if that happens you'll end up with a higher farm price average in 1990 than you had last year.

So, what was shaping up in the first three months to be a bad year following a good year, now may turn out to be a good year followed by a better year. But let's not bet the farm on it yet.

Farm Price

In the meantime, you still have to live with the effect of the lower M-W price in February, as reflected in the Class I price in April that dropped $1.72 like the M-W in February.

The Class II price for April increased with the current rise in the M-W, but you'll find that your uniform or blend price for April in Order 2 will be $12.75 or 70 cents less than March but still $1.16 better than a year ago.

Your Louisville Plan, however, lost only 20 to 30 cents so the market price drop was only 60 cents from March.

Total milk shipments in the pool are increasing seasonally but still 3.6 percent below last year. However, Class I sales are also lower this year and that has affected your blend price the last three months.

Support Prices

With the M-W at $12.32 already $2.44 above the $9.88 support price, you wouldn't think there was any need for changing product prices. However, the CCC doesn't buy milk to support farm prices, it buys butter, powder and cheese.

In spite of market prices for cheese and powder above the support price, butter is still a problem and the only dairy product being purchased by CCC.

The Secretary of Agriculture has the option of setting product prices as long as they reflect the support price and last month he did that.

The change in butter and powder prices were increased six cents to 85 cents and butter prices were lowered 11 cents to 98 cents.

As expected, the market price for butter fell as much as the support price so even the 98 cents is still too high to clear the market.

The reason behind the support price cut was to save money and with the CCC buying 10 to 14 million pounds of butter a week you can appreciate the savings even at 11 cents a pound.

If the support price on butter was 98 cents back in October when the marketing year started there would have been a savings of nearly $45 million by now.

Here Come The Subs

As though we didn't have enough problems with the increasing surplus of butter, due to decreasing demand and record breaking exports of skim powder that put a lot of butter into government stocks, now there are a number of butterfat substitutes readying market.

However, the news isn't all bad because the first one to get approval from the Food and Drug Administration can be made from milk proteins and cheese makers are looking forward to expanding markets for whey.

Made by Nutra Sweet, the fat substitute is called Simplese and will be used very soon in a frozen dairy dessert called Simple Pleasures.

So far this is the only product approved by FDA using the new fat substitute, but Nutra Sweet has applied for approval for its use in yogurt, butter, margarine, soft cheeses and even mayonnaise and salad dressing.

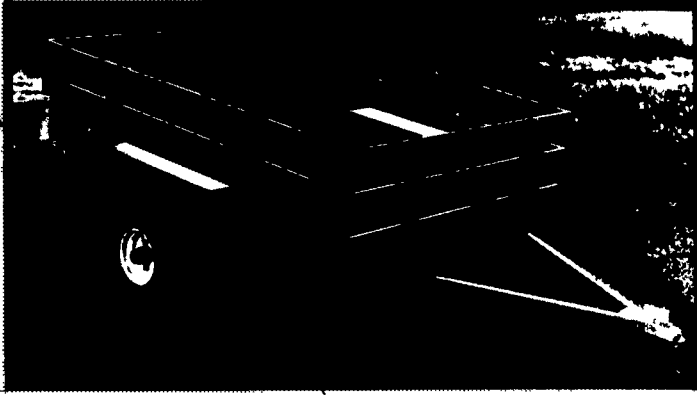

Made from milk or egg white proteins, the product may have real consumer appeal, but no one is guessing its impact on the dairy industry.

Other fat substitutes are being made without using dairy products but so far none have received FDA approval.

All of these products have been developed but it's ironic that they should come on the market when butterfat is at its lowest price in 12 years and private label brands of butter are being used as a loss leader item in a supermarket at 99 cents a pound. That was 10 cents below the support price at that time for car load lots delivered to a warehouse.

Miss Metzler told how the society was organized and who the first officers and members were. The first meeting was held June 6, 1935, in the home of Mrs. Lefever.

Mrs. Aaron Shirk presented gifts to nine past presidents. Dr. John W. Price, curator at the North Museum, Franklin and Marshall College, gave an illustrated lecture on "Over the Garden Wall."

Each member responded to the roll call by naming her favorite flower. Devotions were led by Mrs. John Homsher, and one new member, Mrs. Jacob Herr, was installed.

Hostesses for the anniversary meeting were Mrs. Amos Shaubach, Mrs. Homsher, Mrs. Jesse Groff and Miss Annie Sides. Approximately 45 members were present.

Grange Calls For Ed Funding

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange, which represents 42,000 rural Pennsylvanians, supports a thorough and efficient system of public education to serve the needs of students across the state.

Over the years there has been an increased responsibility placed on students; employees, and communities to update and expand curriculums, provide meals, and transportation; and to maintain buildings, wages, and benefits to employees. Unfortunately, even though the state is continuing to demand more services and programs from the school districts, they have not appropriated the necessary funding to implement them.

The Grange believes the current level of funding proposed in the state budget does not include adequate funding for basic education. When education is underfunded or inequitably distributed, the mission of the state to provide access to all students for a thorough and efficient education is seriously threatened.

"The education of our children is too important to Pennsylvania's future be placed on the back burner when considering the budget," said William Ringler, state master.

The Grange contends that all basic and mandated education programs should be fully and continuously funded by the General Assembly, including any new mandated programs.

their own table service. Call (814) 259-3471 or send a post card to H C R 61 Box 50, Blairs Mill, PA 17213, letting them know how many will be attending.

UREA & BY-PASS PROTEIN

If protein costs are high, like they normally are, the value of non-protein nitrogen in dairy rations becomes very attractive to cost conscious dairymen. Concentrates containing urea are being used profitably & efficiently by top dairymen with herds producing in excess of 25,000 pounds of milk.

The lactation ration must provide a balance of nutrients to the rumen microbes first and then provide by-pass nutrients. If excess by-pass protein is in the ration, poor rumen fermentation results & production suffers - particularly in high producer rations with abnormally high fiber. Soluble protein sources or urea must be added in these cases.

Urea complements rations high in rumen by-pass protein by providing a source of ruminal ammonia needed for bacterial growth and fiber digestion. This is of particular importance when fat is added to the ration.

Urea works only in the rumen by helping multiply rumen bacterial protein - much of which will by-pass the rumen anyway.
